THE room in which a number of friends pass the evening smoking either cigars or inferior tobacco, will have an unpleasant odor next morning. Let the same friends smoke only the "Myrtle Navy" and they will find quite a difference in the room next morning. If it is reasonably well ventilated, as with a fire-place for instance, no unpleasantness whatever will be found. The purity and fine quality of the leaf used, is the reason of this.

"An ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure" is an old adage but true. In view of predictions that this country is liable to be visited by more than an ordinary amount of contagious disease this year, it behoves all to inquire about and practice every sanitary measure, especially cleanliness, which as a preventive, offers some one means of escape at least; and in this how important the article of Soap as to quality fit for use; certainly all inferior grades made so by foreign substances and adulterations of a questionable character, should be rejected, that there may be no taint left on the person or clothes which might in any way invite the germs of these various diseases. A first-class article, made by known reliable manufacturers, is the only kind that can be safely used or recommended. In the use of a standard soap, like the "Welcome," made by Curtis, Davis & Co., there can be no risk, being the goods of a firm whose name on soap is a sufficient guarantee of its purity.

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.]

THE END.

General Grant's Last Moments—His Pulse Reaches 165—He is Kept alive by Stimulants of Brandy.

MT MCGREGOR, N. Y., July 23. At 7 o'clock, p. m., Gen. Grant seemed sinking. At 8 15 Dr. Douglas left the cottage.

"How is it doctor?" was asked him. "He is dying," said the physician.

"Will he live an hour?" was asked again. "Oh, yes, and possibly more, but he is passing away," was the response; and after a little time at the hotel, Dr. Douglas returned to the cottage.

At 9 o'clock Gen. Grant's pulse was up to a point of 165 beats a minute, and was fluttering.

MT MCGREGOR, July 23—1 a. m. The General remains in the same quiet condition, his pulse and respiration being unchanged, and there is a feeling that he may tide over the midnight season of weakness, and until 4 a. m., hypodermics of brandy are being used.

Latest.

MT MCGREGOR, July 23. General Grant died at 8.03 this morning, all day long letters and telegrams of sympathy have been pouring in upon the family, from all over the country, and the Governor's of nearly all the States, have officially announced the General's death, and directed that proper means of respect to his memory be displayed. About the cottage it has been a day of quiet and silent grief, a squad of the Grand Army men are on duty about the cottage, to guard it from intrusion.

The physicians to-day, made a formal request that they might be allowed to make a post mortem examination, but this was refused by the family, who declared that they had confidence in the judgment and treatment given by the attending physicians. As a consequence no autopsy will be held.

LONDON, July 23. News of the death of General Grant has created a profound impression in the city.

Flags at the American Exchange and at the American Consulate were placed at half mast the moment the news reached the city. Large portraits of the dead hero, draped in mourning, were placed over the balconies and doors of both buildings. The whole front of the American Exchange was heavily draped.

Obscene Prints.

LONDON, July 23. Sir Richard Ashton Cross, Home Secretary, was asked in the Commons this afternoon by Denzil Roberts Ouslow, Conservative, how long the government was going to permit the sale of obscene illustrated prints. Mr. Ouslow referred to the hawking of an obscene paper which, with the reprint of the Pall Mall Gazette's revelations pictorially illustrated, has for several days past been vended in the streets of London. The Home Secretary said that persons published obscene matter at their own risk, and that whatever might be said of the motives of those who made the first publication, nothing but evil could be the result of the pictorial publications like those referred to. The police had been specially ordered to watch the management of this illustrated paper and take suitable action against the proprietors for any violations of laws against the publication of obscene matter.

News from the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, MAN., July 23. There is great rejoicing here over the land grant to the Northwest Central from Brandon to Battleford, and the prospect of the early construction upon the Canadian Pacific southwest extension, and the outlook for a bountiful harvest creates a buoyant feeling since the close of the insurrection.

The Bank of Nova Scotia somewhat surprised two of its employees, Private Orde and Pitblado, of the 90th, by presenting them on their return with checks for the full amount of their salaries during the time of absence.

Defeat of the British Government.

LONDON, July 24. The Government was defeated in the House of Commons by a vote of 180 to 130 on the clause of Medical Relief Bill.

The Parnellites opposed the Government.

On the announcement of the result of the division, Sir Michael Hicks Beach announced that the Government relinquished responsibility for the Bill.

Sir William Harcourt immediately accepted the responsibility on behalf of the Opposition.

The discussion on the bill then continued, Mr. Collings moving an amendment to put down the Bill. An amendment to the rejected clause is almost certain to be rejected in the House of Lords, and a conflict will thus be raised between the two Houses.
