Perseverance.

Years ago, a German boy read of the siege of Troy, and made up his mind to find the ruins of that ancient city. Troy had perished three thousand years ago—if, indeed, it ever existed at all. But said the little German 'I will find it though.' Though a poor lad slaving at work till bed time, he procured books and taught himself six or seven languages. He pushed on and prospered, until as a merchant he had made a fortune. Every step of this study and money-making was taken with the aim of fulfilling the vow of his boyhood.

In due time he started eastward with a company of labourers, and for long years he pursued his search. At last he found Troy. His discovery caused a sensation through all Europe. A short time ago the treasures of gold, silver, and bronze dug out of the palace of the Trojan King were exhibited at South Kensington Museum. For three thousand years the buried ruins of that city had lain covered with sand, and by many it was regarded only as a fabled creation of poetry, but Dr. Schlieman, at his own expense, and by his own amazing enterprise, made the discovery for the world.

Think of it. A poor lad learning languages, making money, spending seven years or more in far away deserts sustained through a lifetime by one fixed resolution. He vowed in boyhood that he would find Troy, and he did find it. This German lad said, "Put down my name," and when life was far spent he succeeded in hacking his way into the temple of fame.—Selected.

Whither children love to go ;
It's their playing, romping, swinging,
That give great joy to me
While the Dinkey-Bird goes singing,
In the amfalulu tree.

There the gum-drops grow like cherries
And taffy's thick as peas—
Caramels you pick like berries
When, and where, and how you please :

Big, red sugar plums are clinging,
To the cliffs beside that sea,
Where the Dinkey-Bird is singing,
In the amfalulu tree.

I'm sure you like to go there,
To see your feathered friend—
And so many goodies grow there
You would like to comprehend :

Speed, little drams, your winging
To that land across the sea,
Where the Dinkey-Bird is singing,
In the amfalulu tree.

A Pair

One morning in June a very hot day, A donkey was quietly munching his hay, When he lifted his voice and began to bray.

A gosling, who lived in the farmyard nigh,
Happened just then to be passing by.
And thought it a vulgar way to sigh.

'My dear sir,' said she in some surprise,
'How can you make the terrible noise?
It's worse than the shout of a dozen boys.

'Do express your thoughts in a quieter way,
Or if you even ventured to neigh
It would not be so bad as that terrible bray.'

'Pray don't stand there and dictate to me;
To whom do you think you are speaking?' said he.
'Oh that I can very soon tell you!' said she.

'Your mother, the old sweep's donkey-cart drew,
Your father the ragman's truck once overthrew,
So what can one expect from a donkey like you?

She delivered her speech and then waited in vain,
The donkey had turned away in disdain,
But after a minute he thus spoke again,—

'No doubt you expect me to make an excuse,
But I'll not waste words on you, for what is the use
If I am a donkey you'll soon be a goose.'
