

Some English Railroads.

English railroads, although of necessity comparatively short, do an enormous business. In an address on the business of the London and North-Western railroad, which recently appeared some figures are given whose vast magnitude holds as well as attracts the attention of every reader.

Brother Gardner Thinks.

THAT GROANING ABOUT THE WICKEDNESS OF MANKIND IS TIME WASTED.

"De ole man Peters war ober to my cabin las' nite," said Brother Gardner as the lamp was turned up for business.

"Uncle Ben Johnson war in to see me de odder Sunday, an' he had also lost all confidant in de world. Some one had gim him a 20-cent piece fur 25 cent, an' he ain't gwine to look fur honesty in any human begin' arter die."

"Dr Widler Clovertop war' weepin' when she entered my doah yesterday afternoon. Somebody had stated the story dat she sold her coal stove to buy herself a pair of silk stockin's, an' she declared dat she would neber—no neber, except to ha'r any one speak de traf agin' She was ready and willin' to believe de world chuck full o' liars an' slanders."

"I has heard mo' dan one member of dis club sot down wid a grunt of despair an' groan out agin' de world. You hasn't had a fa'a show; luck has bin agin' you; you hev bin robbed an' deceived by your friends, an' so on to defend."

"Now, my frens, de fack am dat human natur' war neber any better, an' probably not much wuss, dan you find it to-day. Five hundred y'ars B. C. men told lies an' indulged in false pretense an' cheated each other in a hoss-trade. Women gossiped an' slandered an' played hypocrite, and if you bought a crock of butter from a farmer it was just as apt to have a stone in de bottom as not. Dis drappin' down on a cheer like a bag o' sand an' goanin' about de wickedness o' mandkind am time throw away. You do your full shoer of lyin' an' cheatin' an' deceivin', an' you sholdn't squeal when some one gits de bulge on you. Pay yer debts, but don't pay until de bills am sent in. Tell de truth, but 'keep 'nuff back to hedge on in case you put yer foot in it. Be candid in yer speech, but doan't tell all yer know fur at least a week. Use yer taybars right, but keep club in reserve for back yard nuisances. Let us now proceed to bizness which has assembled us togeder."

How to Name the Girls.

In the first place, give the girls in baptism only one name. She will be perfectly content with it. Her lover never requires, never uses but one of her names if she have half a dozen. In the height of his tenderness he never says, "Amelia Jane, come to my arms!" He simply extends his arms and cries, "Jane!" In the second place, when the girl marries let her always keep her surname. Then, whenever we see a woman's name we shall know whether she is married or single, and if she is married we shall know what her family name is.
