IS THE GUARDIAN PROGRESSIVE?

MR. EDITOR.—The Guardian accuses THE EXAMINER of opposing a night telegraph service because you have not put up a light in favor of it, and uses "slow," "mossback," etc., to describe it.

A few years ago, many were agitating for a train and steamboat arrangement by which American and western mail and passengers could reach here twenty-four hours sooner,—a much more important matter to the province than the few telegrams that would come by night. Where was the Guardian in this agitation? Let the editor look the matter up and he will find open hostility to the proposition by the Guardian. The Guardian did not want other provincial dailies to reach here twenty-four hours sooner, but it wants the particular advantage to itself of the telegraph night service—a near approach to the private subsidy business.

MISREPRESENTATION TO PERFECTION.

MR. EDITOR.—The morning Grit organ thinking to make a point in favor of the Tarte Government, says that Canada pays on her debt 3.14 per cent. and Great Britain 3.50. Now, don't you think that is misrepresenting the case, and the editor of the morning grit organ knows it? Great Britain's debt averages less than 2 1/2 per cent., and Canada's almost 3 1/2 per cent., quite a difference in favor of Great Britain! The last loan made by Great Britain for two years is quite a different thing to a loan for 25 or 30 years. If a British loan for 30 years was put on the market it could be obtained for less than 2 1/2, whereas Canada would have to pay 3 1/2. Comparing two year loan with a 30 year one is just what the grit organ is capable of doing, provided it will help the present Boodlers at Ottawa.

A snake in the grass is what I call the morning organ. It will only dup some innocent people in the county who think it is partly independent. I know it.

SEED GRAIN COMPETITION.

After having visited most of the competitors in Prince County, we are pleased to find that so many of them have entered heartily into the competition, under the direction of Prof. Robertson, for the selection of seed grain. We have found the crops good in Prince County and the part of Queens we have visited. Among the school children in Prince County who seem to have an intelligent idea of the good that will result to agriculture from a careful selection of the best heads from the most vigorous stalks we might mention Mary L. McNeill, Elmsdale; Alfonso Brown, Grand River; Otto C. Bowness, Montrose; Rachael Rose, O'Leary; Mabel McLean, Lot 10; James Marchbanks, New Annan; W. E. Gladstone Ross, O'Leary; S. H. Gordon, Lot 6. In Queens, we might mention, among others who are doing their best, Chas. A. McKinnon, Graham's Road; Fred Houston, Mayfield; Edgar Gillispie, Long River; Frank McKay, Sea View; Samuel McLeod, Ross Valley; Chester A. McKay, Park Corner.

We look for great good to result from this competition, as it will be an education to the younger people who will be the farmers and farmers' wives of the future in the matter of improving the cereals of the country, and the only way they can be improved is by selecting the best each year.

LETTER OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

[COPY]

L. B. Miller, Esq., Principal of Charlottetown Business College and Writing Academy, Charlottetown, P. E. Island:

DEAR SIR.—Permit me to thank you for your kindness in securing for me the position which I now hold as Stenographer and Assistant Accountant in the wholesale and retail hardware house of Messrs. Dodd & Rogers, of this city. The position is a pleasant one—finding no difficulty, whatever, in doing the work—and I shall always feel most grateful to you for your interest in my behalf. Permit me also, through you, to thank the teaching staff of the C. B. C. for their kindness to me while a student.

As you are aware you got this situation for me before I had completed my course, but I hope to further prosecute my studies under your tuition when the evening session opens. During my tuition I found the course of study in the business, shorthand and typewriting departments so interesting and pleasant, and afterwards its application to actual business so beautiful and profitable that I wish every young lady would learn what an advantage a business education is. Even as an accomplishment I would consider a course in the C. B. C. well worth the time and money. If my influence will be of any service to you or the College, at any time,

I am yours at command,
MIRNIE GALLANT.

PERSONAL.

Wealth has given John D. Rockefeller an income which any monarch might envy, for he comes very near to receiving more money in the course of a year than all the crowned heads of Europe combined.

That last princely dividend of the Standard Oil Company caused the world of finance to pause and think how much the King of Petroleum really possesses. Andrew Carnegie, and that canny Scot has an income of $20,000,000 a year himself, says that John D. Rockefeller is the wealthiest man in the world. It is conservatively estimated that Rockefeller's income is $30,000,000 a year.

John D. Rockefeller	$30,000,000
Czar of Russia	12,000,000
Emperor of Germany (as King of Prussia only)	3,852,770
Emperor of Austria-Hungary	3,875,000
King of Italy	2,858,000
King of Spain	2,000,000
Queen of England	1,925,900
King of Portugal	634,440
King of Greece	259,000
King of Norway and Sweden	575,525
King of Saxony	735,000
King of Wurtemberg	449,000
King of Roumania	237,000
King of Bavaria	1,412,000
King of Belgium	660,000
King of Denmark	227,775
King of Servia	240,000

It will soon be time for moving. You can't get to a nicer part of Charlottetown than Brighton. See advertisement of House to let in another column.
