

Sir Hector on P. E. Island.

MISSIONS SUPPLIED—THE VISIT TO SOURIS—NOTES BY THE WAY—THE RECEPTION AT SOURIS—INSPECTION OF THE BREAKWATER AND MARINE HOSPITAL—REPRESENTATIONS MADE—ON TO MISCOUCHE—AN UNUSUAL AND PLEASANT RECEPTION—THE MINISTER AT SUMMERSIDE.

On Monday evening the Lieutenant Governor gave a dinner party in honor of the Minister of Public Works. The guests were members of the Local Government and other officials.

Early yesterday morning, Sir Hector called upon the Hon. J. C. Pope, with whom he held a short conversation.

At ten minutes past one yesterday, Sir Hector and suite, took passage in a special train for Souris. They were accompanied by A. C. MacDonald, M. P., F. Brecken, M. P., Hon. W. W. Sullivan, Hon. Donald Ferguson, George W. DeBlais, Esq., J. R. P. F., Judge Raddin, Major Peake, J. M. P. Brecken, Esq., of the Bank of P. E. Island, L. B. Archibald, Esq., Superintendent of the P. E. Island Railway, Eustace Haviland Esq., Private Secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, William Kennedy, Esq., and others. The train was in charge of Conductor Kelly, the driver being Mr. Bell.

On the way, Sir Hector conversed freely and affably on topics concerning Canada at large and this island in particular. A leading idea of his is the promotion of the "solidarity" of the Dominion. He spoke of the settled policy of the Government toward that great end; and mentioned several things that might be done which would tend to make us all feel that we are a people, not of separate provinces, but of one great country—the great Northern Nation of America. His talk was very pleasing.

had but a short time to prepare for the coming of the Minister. It was after eleven o'clock before any one there received notice that Sir Hector would visit the town. Nevertheless, they had their flags up, their leading people at the railway station ready to receive and welcome him, and the following address prepared for presentation on his arrival:

ADDRESS: To the Honorable Sir Hector L. Langevin, C. B., Q. C., Minister of Public Works, &c.

Sir,—On behalf of the people of Souris, we have much pleasure in extending to you a cordial welcome on this occasion of your first visit to our village. It is always a source of peculiar pleasure to us to enjoy a visit from those occupying high and distinguished positions in the councils of our country; but our pleasure on this occasion is greatly intensified when we behold in our present visitor, not only the popular and gifted Minister of Public Works, but the distinguished representative of the French Canadian element of this Dominion alike beloved and esteemed by his countrymen and his Sovereign Queen.

And we now gladly congratulate you, Sir, on the worthy mark of royal favor recently conferred upon you by Her gracious Majesty. We much regret that your stay amongst us is of such short duration that time will not permit your visiting the rural scenery surrounding our village.

Although formerly occupying but a comparatively isolated position, our village has steadily prospered since railway facilities were extended to it; and now, enjoying as it does, the eastern terminus of our Island railway with the increased harbor accommodation afforded by our breakwater, it bids fair to be, at no distant day, one of the leading business centres in this Province.

We hope Sir, that you may be favorably impressed with your visit, and that on some future occasion you may have the honor of giving you a more extended reception—one more substantially expressive of our esteem for one of Canada's most gifted sons.

The Address was read by Michael McCormack, Esq., High Sheriff of King's County, and was signed by a number of leading men.

SIR HECTOR'S REPLY. Sir Hector replied with a short impromptu speech, as follows:

GENTLEMEN,—I thank you most cordially for this warm address of welcome. I thank you also for the kind and pleasing manner in which you congratulate me on the honor which Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen has recently conferred upon me. Your congratulations, indeed, are such as I shall never forget. Not only do you congratulate me on the honor I have received but you also congratulate me on being here as a representative of the French race. Well, gentlemen, if I am here as a representative of the French race, it is because I have received the confidence and support of the people of my own nationality residing in my native Province. As a Minister of the Crown, however, I am here among you as a representative of all the races composing this great country; and I would like to see every nationality to understand that in this Dominion all stand upon the same common ground, without respect either to creed or nationality. We are to be one great nation—the nation of Canada. Let each of us try, without distinction of race, to build up and consolidate this great country. Let each man try to do better than his neighbor in promoting those arts of peace which conduce to a nation's prosperity, and by doing as much good work as he can, advance the interests of the State. We are free to govern ourselves; and we have in addition the powerful protection of the Mother Country. But if we have great political advantages, we have also a great duty to perform. It is our duty, not only to love our country, but to do all that we can in order that she may gain a high rank and position in the world. In the United States we have neighbors who are prosperous and great. We should be as patriotic, as united as they are; for we have as good, as able, and free institutions on this side of the line. For instance in the United States, the President, being elected, appoints his Cabinet Ministers; and they can do as they please for the next four years, without regard to the wishes of the people's representatives—they cannot be turned out of office. Here, in Canada, the Queen reigns through her representative, the Governor-General, who acts on the authority of Ministers of the Crown directly and immediately responsible to the representatives of the people. The Ministers of the Crown are, therefore, the servants of the people; and when they do wrong or do not perform their duty, the people can, if they choose to do so, turn them out. But, as long as they do well, the people will do well to retain them in office. I have come here in order that I may know the people and their requirements; and I want the people to know when, in 1883, on that great day of the people, they come to poll their votes—I want them to know for whom they are voting. Some say, "This is a small Province; you are about the larger Provinces." I want to show you, gentlemen, by my presence among you, that this is not true, I want you to understand that the present Government is just as careful for the interests of Prince Edward Island as it is for those of the largest Province of the Dominion. We wish not to look to the province or the race, or the religion, but to supply, as far as we can, the requirements of all, quite indifferently of whether they be English, French, Scotch or Irish, or of any other consideration. I am very glad to have met you gentlemen; and I hope that next year I shall enjoy the same pleasure.

After being introduced to a number of gentlemen, Sir Hector proceeded to inspect THE BREAKWATER.

This very useful and necessary work has lately been strengthened by a piece of crib-work, built by Messrs. John McLean & Co., which the writer heard highly commended by the Civil Engineers; and it is believed that when the additional repairs which are to be made this summer are completed, it will securely withstand the fury of the most furious gale.

ANOTHER BREAKWATER WANTED. While examining this work, Hon. L. Kieckham and J. R. McLean, Esq., directed the attention of the Minister to the advisability of building a breakwater at Lobster Cove, on the other side of the harbor. It appears that a distance of about one hundred and fifty feet. This shall render it impossible for sailing vessels, when the wind is in a certain direction, to make the harbor formed by the present breakwater. It is therefore, proposed that a structure (the cost of which it is said would not be great) should be built on the shoal, so that vessels could make it and lie at Souris West until the wind should change, or as long as necessary.

Sir Hector said it was his practice never to make a promise in any case which he did not thoroughly understand; and, until he had enquired further into the matter, he could not, therefore, make any promise in this case.

FROM SOURIS TO MISCOUCHE. After remaining at Souris about an hour, viewing the scenery, talking with the people, and (in company with Lawrence Kieckham, Esq., M. L. C.,) visiting the Marine Hospital, Sir Hector and party set out for Miscouche. While taking this long ride, our railway was the subject of much comment, and Mr. Archibald and his ranchmen came in for a good deal of merited credit. The travelling averaged (including stoppages) about thirty miles an hour; and sometimes the speed would be increased to thirty-five or more miles an hour. Yet conversation could always easily be kept up, and there was little, or rather no, swaying of the train. Everything went on smoothly and steadily; and we heard the remark that "the Island railway is now the best narrow gauge road in America."

AT MISCOUCHE CONVENT. When the train arrived at Souris it was nearly nine o'clock. Carriages were in readiness, and the party were quickly conveyed to the Convent. As they entered the grounds, the Church and Convent bells rang out peals of welcome; and a large body of villagers and habitants of the surrounding settlement were (notwithstanding the lateness of the hour) assembled to receive their distinguished visitor. Here they met Father Doyle and Judge Kelly, of Summerside; and, as they entered the Convent door and ascended the staircase to the hall, the pianos who attend it, gave them a most agreeable greeting. The hall was appropriately prepared for the occasion; and all the arrangements were perfect. There was no crowding, no noise, no disorder. When all were present Mr. Damase Perry stepped forward and read the following—

ADDRESS: A l'Honorable Hector L. Langevin, C. B., K. C. M. G., &c.

HONORE MONSIEUR,—Au nom des habitants de Miscouche, pour la plupart de votre nationalité, nous vous souhaitons la bienvenue dans notre petit village Acadien. C'est la première fois que nous sommes honorés de la visite d'un Ministre d'Etat de même origine que nous et comme nous reconnaissons en vous une personne de talents supérieurs, entièrement dévouée aux intérêts de nos pays, nous sommes doublement heureux de cette circonstance que vous amène au milieu de nous. Nous nous rappelons avec orgueil la haute distinction qui vous fut conférée, il y a quelques années par notre Bien Aimé et Regretté Pontife Pie IX, et cette autre faveur plus récente de notre Gracieuse Souveraine, qui vous a fait élever à la plus haute autorité de l'Eglise et de l'Etat.

Quoique notre paroisse ne présente rien d'éclatant ni de remarquable, nous avons une vive confiance dans notre avenir, nous aimons raison d'être reconnaissant pour la prospérité qui nous a été faite par nos humbles occupations. Nous sentons que nous vivons sous de douces lois impartialement administrées, et les efforts constants que vous avez faits, comme un des chefs de l'opinion publique pour unir toutes les classes dans un lien de sympathie, de paix et d'harmonie, nous ont fait d'autant plus plaisir qu'ils ont été couronnés d'un plus grand succès.

Nous demandons que la Divine Providence vous accorde une longue et saine vie, et que vous puissiez continuer à nous servir de notre pays, et que l'avenir ajoute un nouveau lustre à vos travaux passés.

Miscouche, I. P. E., le 12 Juillet, 1881.

TRANSLATION. To the Honorable Hector L. Langevin, C. B., K. C. M. G., &c.

HONORED SIR,—In the name and behalf of the people of Miscouche (for the most part of whose nationality) we bid you a sincere welcome to this our little Acadian village. This is the first time we have been honored by a visit from a Dominion Statesman and Cabinet Minister of our own dear race, and as in your person we recognize one of distinguished abilities, we naturally appreciate the occasion with more than ordinary satisfaction. We recall with pride the high distinction conferred on you some years ago by our deeply mourned and lamented Pontiff, Pio Nino, and the more recent mark of the Queen's favor in investing you with the order of Knighthood, furnishes further evidence of the estimation in which you are held by the highest authority in Church and State. Although we have little of local note or attraction to invite your attention, yet we know you will be glad to be informed that in our own walk of life, we have reason to be gratified for the fair share of prosperity that attends our humble occupations. We feel that we live under benign laws and institutions, impartially administered, and the constant exertions which you have made as one of the leaders of public opinion, to unite all classes in common sympathy, and aim for peace, harmony and good fellowship, have been peculiarly gratifying to us, the more so, as those patriotic efforts have met with a large measure of success. We pray that Providence may bless you with many more years of health in the service of our country, and that your future career may give a new lustre to your past record.

Sir Hector replied eloquently and at some length, speaking in the French language. He thanked them for their kind welcome, pointed out that the fact that he had received a mark of the Royal favor and was one of the Ministers of the Crown, was a sign to them that the French Canadian people are, in this Dominion, on an equality with the people of other nationalities; exhorted them to attend carefully to their duties as free citizens, and to educate their children so that when they come to be men and women they may take their rightful place in the society and creditably perform their proper parts in the government of this great and growing country. He pointed to Mr. Landry in New Brunswick, and Mr. Arsenault in this Province, as well as to other gentlemen, holding positions in the Government of the country, to show that representatives of the French people in Canada may obtain the highest places in the gift of the State. He also spoke briefly in English; and we are informed that he afterwards stated that the reception he had received at Miscouche was one of the most tasteful and altogether pleasing he had ever received.

AT SUMMERSIDE. It was after ten when the party arrived at the Clifton Hotel in Summerside. Here Sir Hector was met by R. Hunt, Esq., David Rogers, Esq., Cornelius Howatt, Esq., (late Speaker of the House of Assembly) James Campbell, Esq., Finlay McNeill, Esq., Dr. Jarvis, Messrs. Stacey, Saunders, Stewart, Fanning, Delaney (2), Green, McAlvie, and others. Mr. Rogers read the following address, to which his name and those of several other leading townsmen were appended:—

ADDRESS. To the Honorable Sir Hector L. Langevin, C. B., K. C. M. G., &c., &c.

Sir,—We, the undersigned citizens of Summerside, gladly avail ourselves of the occasion of your present visit to this town and neighborhood to offer you our congratulations on the distinguished honor which has recently been conferred upon you by Our Gracious Sovereign.

In this mark of Royal favor we recognize an additional proof of the eminent services you have long rendered to our Queen and country, and we beg to assure you that in no part of the Dominion does this Imperial compliment invoke a more hearty sentiment of approbation than in this Island Province.

While you are a stranger to us, personally, we have, nevertheless, become acquainted with your record as one of the first Canadian statesmen; and the manner in which you have discharged the arduous duties of the many positions which you have filled in Parliament and under the Crown, has always inspired our admiration.

To your efforts, indeed, very much of the cordial feeling which warmly exists between the two great races composing the inhabitants of this Dominion is unquestionably due.

We trust, Sir, that you may long be spared to enjoy your latest honors, and loyally to assist your colleagues in the future, as you have in the past, toward consolidating in the bond of substantial progress and patriotism the different nationalities of which our country is comprised.

We have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servants, Sir Hector made the following REPLY:

GENTLEMEN,—I am very much pleased at receiving from you this Address, and your congratulations on the dignity which it has been my good fortune to see conferred upon me by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. I have accepted the honor not only as a recognition of my exertions in the service of the Queen and of my own country, but also as a new proof on the part of the Sovereign of her desire to treat all her subjects with the same consideration and liberality, and to make between them no difference in regard to religion or nationality.

I feel especially the congratulations you offer me and the approbation you express of this mark of Royal favor, coming as they do from this most distant Eastern Province of the Dominion. They show more and more how the great work of Confederation is successful, and how you, the inhabitants of this beautiful and prosperous Province, interest yourselves in every event which may more or less conduce to the welfare or honor of Canada.

I thank you, gentlemen, for the very feeling terms in which you convey to me your approval of my public services, and of the manner in which I have discharged the duties of the responsible positions which I have filled in Parliament and under the Crown. I assure you that I have applied, and I continue to apply, myself to the consolidation of the good feeling which exists between the two great races which compose the largest part of the Canadian people. The two races are to inhabit this great country of ours. They have both special qualities which by their union are sure to make of this nation one of the most powerful and prosperous of the world. It was the intention of the fathers of Confederation that it should be so. Their fellow-countrymen will not destroy their work, for it has been found wise and good. I need not tell you, gentlemen, how happy I am to find that in the eastern garden of Canada the same feeling of loyalty and contentment that I have observed in the four other Provinces which I have already visited, it is the best sign and proof of the wisdom of those who have brought about the present state of affairs; it shows also what can be expected of a people who appreciate so well the blessings of self-government, and our connection with such a mighty empire as that of Great Britain.

HECTOR L. LANGEVIN. Summerside, July 12, 1881.

A GOVERNMENT BUILDING WANTED. Mr. Shaver, chairman of a deputation appointed for the purpose, then brought to the notice of Sir Hector the pressing need of a new Custom House and Post Office for Summerside; and explained that there is now no safe in which public documents, registered letters or other valuables in the hands of these departments may be kept. Sir Hector promised to submit to the Government any representation they might make on the subject, and stated fully the course it would be necessary to pursue. He also promised to give the matter his best consideration when it was brought to the notice of the Government.

Sir Hector remained at the Clifton all night, and left this morning by steamer for Shediac and Moncton. While on the island he won golden opinions.
