THE LYCEUM.—The complimentary benefit tendered Miss Mills last evening was very well attended. "Nobody's Child" was put upon the boards in a capital manner. Miss Mills, as "Joe, the Waiter," was excellent, and Mr. Ashton gave a splendid impersonation of "Peter Grice, the Miser." The rest of the support was good. The Citizens Band was present and rendered some choice music. During the evening Miss Mills was presented with two handsome bouquets. Miss Mills, Mr. Ashton and the other members of the Company have made many friends during their stay in Charlottetown, and the announcement that they would likely return in the autumn was received with applause. The Company plays in Summerside to-night.

A Simple Trick!
ANYONE CAN DO IT.

Most houses, however, have too much self-respect to indulge in it.
 We prefer doing our business honorably rather than gain a cheap notoriety by appropriating other people's ideas.
 Some time ago we named a certain brand of Gloves
CHICAGO GLOVES.
 We guaranteed the quality and advertised the price. Another firm advertised the glove under the same name and cut the price. It's a simple trick—anyone can do it.
 To-day we are offering out the balance of our "Chicago" Gloves at

58 CENTS
 It's a simple trick. Simply observe that an other firm offers them at 68 cents, and mark the goods accordingly.
BEER BROS.
 Our Store is too popular and we are doing too large a business to please some people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

In View of the Dog Days.

SIR.—Some time ago all owners of dogs were required to have them distinguished by a collar round their necks with the owner's name written or stamped upon it, under a penalty of the owner being fined or the canine confiscated to the tender mercies of a young man hired to make away with dogs whose owners did not pay up according to law. The times seem to have changed and the city is almost infested with dogs without name or distinction. Have taxes been paid on them? If not, why not? The warm weather is here. Sometimes the unlicensed dogs are dangerous.

Thrilling Adventure With a Bear.

Yesterday morning about nine o'clock, as Mr. James H. Mallard, of Gowan Brook, was driving his young mare to pasture, he observed a bear in the centre of a ten-acre field of oats. Having no weapon, and knowing that bruin would make his escape before he could return from home with a gun, he determined to attack him with his felly. Adjusting himself, he drew rein and charged. The felly made for the bear in right down earnest, and was upon him in an instant. She struck at him with her fore feet and knocked him over, then turned and went for him with the heels. Mallard, thinking the bear was dead, dismounted, when, to his surprise, the then wounded bear stood on his haunches and showed fight. James went for him with the boots for a short time, but seeing that bruin was regaining strength, began beating a hasty retreat towards a stone that lay at a short distance from him. Picking up the stone, he struck the bear on the head and knocked him down, he again went for him with his boots, but the bear finding it a little too hot, made for a bush near by. Mallard returned home, gave the alarm and returned to the bush armed with a pitchfork. After searching for bruin again for some time he caught sight of him running for another bush. James pursued him and overhauled him on the run, drove the fork into his side and held him there until one of his neighbors arrived on the spot with an axe and finished him. Looking around they observed two other bears making for the wood. Quite a posse of marksmen, well armed, are now in the forest looking for the two bears that made their escape. But it is doubtful if they will be as successful as young Mallard was without firearms or weapon.

MOORE & McLEOD,

Successors to Perkins & Sterns.

Charlottetown, June 15, 1893.

TO-DAY the Annual Regatta of the New York Yacht Club takes place. It's a great day, because the winner will be the yacht selected to meet the English vessel which has crossed the Atlantic in the hitherto vain effort to recapture the America's Cup. The cup is lost if our best yacht fails to win the race.

They will look after the races; you look out you won't lose your bargains which we are offering now. We have decided to sell everything in the Store—it matters not what it is, it's bound to go if you want it. We cannot afford to give them for nothing and send them to your home with a coach and three, but for a consideration scarcely worth mentioning we will do as much for you as any other white men. Seeing is believing. Step in and see what we can do if you want anything in our line; and if you don't want anything, come in and we will grant you rest to your weary bones.
