ALL ABOUT THE TEETH.

WHEN THEY COME AND HOW TO CARE FOR THEM.

The Family Dentist as Needful to First-class Health as the Family Physician—The Gums Require Care as Well as the Teeth.

Fine teeth add so much to the beauty of the face that too much care cannot be bestowed upon them.

The deciduous or temporary teeth are twenty in number. The central incisors are cut between the fifth and seventh months; the lateral incisors between the seventh and tenth months; anterior molars make their appearance between the age of twelve and fourteen months; the eye teeth between fourteen and twenty months, and the posterior between eighteen and thirty-six months. Collectively these are called the milk teeth. There never was a period in the history of medical or surgical dentistry when so much attention was given to the temporary or milk teeth as at present. Not only are the teeth of toddlers and children filled, but they are straightened, cleaned and, when needed, loosened to facilitate the perfection of the second teeth. The well born child of two years has his cup, brush and little vial of tooth powder.

The permanent teeth number thirty-two. The first molars appear between the ages of five and seven years; the central incisors between six and eight, the lateral incisors from seven to nine, first bicuspids, nine to ten; second bicuspids, ten to eleven; canines, eleven to thirteen; second molars, twelve to fourteen, and the third molars or wisdom teeth between the seventeenth and twenty-first year. The teeth of the lower jaw are cut, as a rule, two or three months before those in the upper jaw.

The family dentist is rapidly becoming as popular and indispensable in well conducted households as the family physician. It costs comparatively little to have each member make one visit a month to a surgeon who examines the mouth and puts it in a healthy condition. Not only are the teeth cleaned, but the gums are treated and a tainted breath corrected. These consultations pay in the long run, for, aside from a saving of expense in the prevention of decay or disease, much needless pain is saved the patient.

There are a few rules for the care of the teeth and gums that all skilled practitioners indorse.

Avoid extreme temperatures. Even the strongest dentine may be injured with very hot or cold foods. Breathe through the nose or else cover the mouth in very cold weather.

Cleanse the mouth night and morning with a soft brush and tepid water. Brush from the gums towards the cutting edges. The common practice of brushing crosswise does the teeth little good and the gums much harm, making them sore and, if the brush is stiff, causing them to recede. Particles of food get between the teeth and must be removed by local attention.

Rinse the mouth after eating. Use a quill if necessary, but passing waxed silk between the teeth is a surer way to free them from deposits.

A teaspoonful of listerine in one-half a glass of cool water is an excellent disinfectant. Used as a gargle three times a day, it will cure sore or loose gums.

All scented soaps and fancy dentifrices are to be avoided. The alkali in the soap is injurious to the gums, and, unless the formula of the dentifrice is known, it is worthy of suspicion. Powdered charcoal is as mischievous as the gums so many people ignorantly use. No matter how finely it is powdered, there is always just one particle to be feared that may cut the gums or scratch the enamel. There is nothing better than precipitated chalk. It is cleansing, absolutely harmless, very inexpensive, and, flavored with wintergreen, mint or orris, it is a refreshing and agreeable tooth powder. It is not advisable to use even this more than three times a week. The gums are sensitive, and frequent or hard brushing is not desirable. Mouth-rinsing and the use of dental silk should follow every meal or repast.

All liquid medicines and acid drinks should be taken from a medicine spoon, glass tube or straw and the mouth rinsed with a weak solution of soda or listerine.

People who use their teeth to crack nuts, draw corks, cut twine, etc., are to be pitied.

If a plate is worn it should be cleansed after each meal and left out at night.—New York World.

The Eyes.

The keenness of the sailor's organs of sight is almost proverbial. This effect has two causes. The cold salt spray flashing into the seaman's eyes strengthens and hardens them. Also, the mariner's practice of constantly piercing the atmosphere to see something, often absolutely undiscernible, greatly trains the organ in clever acuteness. A thought it immediately suggested. Would it not be beneficial to teach the children to test their ability to see distant objects? The hands of the courthouse clock, an incoming vessel, a faintly appearing train, the rapidly fading forms of birds in flight, and many other objects that the little ones would be eager to notice if so directed, would aid to expand and perfect the various delicate and minutely beautiful parts which compose the eye.

Infants are frequently born with eyes so weak that they "water" upon exposure to wind or light, even when judiciously advanced to these. This weakness may be cured by frequent bathing with water of the saltness and temperature of tears, or, as in my experience has been of more value, dashing cold water over the eyes each time before being taken out, and never bathing the baby's face, especially about the eyes with warm water. Cold tea is also recommended, and may do the work for some and fail in other cases.

Stub Ends of Thought.

A dog that won't give up to the wag of his tail will kill sheep.

Love is the oasis in the desert of matrimony.

There is a nobler inducement than the sense of duty.

Poetry is useful as well as ornamental.

A bachelor is a vulgar fraction.

Why isn't it as easy to say a good thing of one, as it is to say a bad thing?

Prosperity, as a rule, is not an aid to religion.

Other people sometimes get tired of the man who never gets tired of himself.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great Blood and Nerve Remedy.

AMUSEMENT IN THE CUP.

Watch Your Cup of Tea for Great is its Prophetic Value.

If you have two spoons in your cup it is a sign that you will figure prominently at a wedding before the year is out.

If cream or milk is put in your cup before the sugar it will cross your love.

A tea stalk floating on top of the tea is called a stranger, says a writer in the Baltimore Herald. When this happens to unmarried women they should stir the tea briskly and then place the spoon in the centre of the cup, holding it quite still.

If the stranger in its gyrations is attracted to the spoon he will come that evening; should it, however, cling to the sides he will not come at all.

We may observe that it really depends on the state of the atmosphere as to whether the stalk goes to the middle or not.

It is a sign of fair weather if the clusters of air bubbles, which usually rise after the sugar has been put in, collect themselves and remain in the centre of the cup. If, on the contrary, they straggle to the sides, it is a sign that it will certainly rain in a few hours.

This cluster of bubbles is also called a kiss, and portends that the owner will thus be saluted during the course of the day.

A cluster of tea-leaves with a few stragglers at the front at the bottom of the cup signifies a hearse or a funeral, while the couple of leaves at the bottom, if close together, signify a wedding.

If the tea grounds take the form of a woman on the side of the cup, it signifies a rival in love; if it looks like a bird, it means news from a distant friend; if it looks like a book, it refers to a well known acquaintance who is at college, if it looks like a tree, it means soon taking a journey into the country if two stalks come together, it means that you are to meet a man; if it looks like a snake, it is an enemy.

If it is a dog you will meet or hear from a friend; if it looks like a house or a shed, it means that when you are married you will keep house for yourself and not board; if it looks like a spire, it means that you will be married in church, if it looks like a duck or a swan, it means that you will cross the ocean; if it looks like a bridge, it is a understood sign that your marriage will be happy and your life long and sweet.

If it looks like a man fishing with a rod, it points to a preacher who may either officiate at your marriage or become your husband; if it looks like a man with many spots lying before him it means that your husband will be rich and may be a banker; if a broken bridge turns up on one side of the cup, it means that your marriage will be unhappy. If there are undulations on the outer side of the cup, some faint and some heavier, it means a checkered life or a career of struggle, sometimes light and sometimes severe.

Interesting Nail Tests.

Elaborate experiments made under the direction of the United States Ordnance Department to test the holding power of cut and wire nails respectively show a decided superiority for the former both in spruce and pine wood, says the New York Sun. Thus in spruce stock nine series of tests, comprising nine sizes of common nails, longest 6 inches, shortest 1½, the cut nails showed an average superiority of 47.51 per cent. in the same wood six series of tests comprising six sizes of light common nails, the longest 6 inches and the shortest 1¼, the cut nails showed an average superiority of 47.40 per cent., in 15 series of tests, comprising 15 sizes of finishing nails, longest 4 inches and shortest 1½, a superiority of 72.22 per cent average was exhibited by the cut nails, in another six series of tests, comprising six sizes of box nails, longest 4 inches and shortest 1½, the cut nails showed an average superiority of 50.88 per cent in four series of tests, comprising four sizes of floor nails, longest 4 inches and shortest 2, an average superiority of 80.03 per cent was shown by the cut nails. In the 40 series of tests, comprising 40 sizes of nails, longest 6 inches and shortest 1¼, the cut nails showed an average superiority of 60.50.

Lime Water.

To make lime water put about a pound of unslacked lime in a large bowl, pour over this three quarts of boiling water, let it stand for ten minutes, then stir well with a stick. Place the bowl in a cool place for eight or ten hours; at the end of that time pour off the clear water letting the sediment remain in the bottom of the bowl. Bottle the clear water and keep in a convenient place. A tablespoonful of this may be added to a glass of milk to be given to a patient with an acid stomach.

In case of burns cover the burned parts with a cloth wet in lime water. Keep the cloth wet by pouring on a little of the water as often as the cloth dries.—New York World.

The Year of Greatest Growth.

In boys is the seventeenth; in girls the fourteenth. While girls reach full height in their fifteenth year they acquire full weight at the age of twenty. Boys are stronger than girls from birth to the eleventh year; then girls become superior physically to the seventeenth year, when the tables are again turned and remain so. From November to April, children grow very little and gain no weight; from April to July, they gain in height but lose in weight, and from July to November they increase greatly in weight but not in height.

Eccentric Ladies.

The lovely little village of Llangollen, in North Wales, is famous as the place where for 50 years dwelt the "Eccentric Ladies." Many stories are told of them. One of their eccentricities was that whenever they walked abroad they wore men's high silk hats. When they died they were laid to rest side by side in the old Llangollen churchyard.

An Application for Boots.

To make boots waterproof and keep them soft melt and mix thoroughly one pound of tallow, a half pound of beeswax, one-quarter pound of resin, two ounces of neat's foot oil and two ounces of glycerine. Apply it warm to the boots.

The Retort Unkind.

Cholly—You can always tell a gentleman, don't ye know, by his collahs and cuffs. I am always pahticulah about that. Crusty old gentleman—Yes, and if I were your father, I should be particular to see that you were properly collared and cuffed.
