HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Paul S. Devlin had as dinner guests at her apartment on Saturday evening, members of the Red Cross staff. The party was given in honour of Miss Verna Darrach, who has recently resigned as Director of Red Cross Nursing Services for P.E.I. and leaves shortly to take a position in Moncton, N.B. On this occasion, Miss Darrach was presented with a parting gift by her conferees.

The Lothians entertained Saturday evening at their summer cottage, Thymewood, Stanhope, at a hamburger picnic. The guests were the faculty and staff of the Prince of Wales College and the party was from four-thirty until seven-thirty.

There were approximately thirty-one guests present who sat around the blazing fireplace in the large Lothian living-room. At this happy gathering Mr. Lothian had the opportunity to introduce his new assistant biologist, Robert Lemon, a graduate of Western University in London, Ontario.

Two other new members of the faculty were also present, Miss Valerie Ross and Mr. Peter Lewis.

Mrs. W.A. Graham held a tea Friday afternoon at her home, Bay View, in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. L.H. Lee, the former Miss Lilla Graham. Mrs. J. MacNeill and Mrs. J.H. Andrews assisted the hostess at the tea hour.

Mrs. Graham left the island forty-six years ago. She married Mr. Lee in 1912. They have resided in Togo, Saskatchewan, ever since.

The tea was very much enjoyed by everyone present. It gave Mrs. Lee the opportunity to visit with old friends and to make new ones. Mr. and Mrs. Lee will visit with the Grahams several weeks before returning to their home.

Wendy visited in London and was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton Phillips. With London as a base she visited the many surrounding places of interest. Wendy has now entered her third year at Prince of Wales College.

Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Fraser, Bellevue, and their little son, John Wayne, left Friday for Montreal to visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce MacKenzie.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Yes, The Pigloo Serves Simply Delicious Food

"We should have a pigloo" Mack commented this morning looking into a sty where his Dad and grandfather were wrestling with the problem of an indifferent mummy and her family of hungry and (temporarily) unloved small ones.

This is a rare state of affairs at Alderlea, where there is usually complete understanding between animal and husbandmen, and every tolerance between mother and new-born, though of course at farrowing, certain rules and regulations must be religiously observed. But this time was different. This was one of a trio of young sows of a litter, comely things, offspring of a much respected mother and line.

"They'll all be the same", James commented, easing the secured patient into a more comfortable position while the small ones in a remarkable first family of ten, now along a young bosom begged to be nursed.

"Yes" Mack said, "we should get us a pigloo, or else make up a farrowing-crate. Then we'd have no trouble."

"But as a rule we don't have much trouble" we offered.

"Quiet!" James said softly. "I believe she has a notion to..."

We held breaths there in a silence broken only by the complaints of the piglets.

"Aren't you going to feed your babies?" James spoke soothingly to the little mother. "Come. Do, just for a second or two, because they're so hungry" he coaxed.

"Come!" the younger farmer echoed.

And then in the hush, came those not unmusical notes of a maternity pen, which to hear indicate perfect understanding and accord between mother and small ones — and the babies were nursing!

The farmers' faces brightened with smiles. Mack grinned.

"Everything will be all right now", he commented turning away to the out of doors, and the schoolbag and small bicycle awaiting him there.

"How about lessons? Are they under control?" we smiled.

"I think so," he nodded.

"Can you spell 'Tuesday' this morning—the word's in your home work?"

"T-u-e-s-d-a-y" he spelled without hesitation. "But" he frowned. "That's no way to spell it anyway. Why have they that 'E' stuck in? There's no need of it at all!"

And Granddaughter came then, neat in jacket and the pink-sprigged skirt, she made in last year's sewing class and away they went cycling happily to their school which sits all of a mile away down beside the River Road.

"You never saw a prettier night than this is, Ellen" James smiles now at the door. "Just step outside and see."

Until tomorrow — — — Diary, Good-night.

MR. & MRS. ROBERT W. SHARKEY

St. Paul's Church Is Scene Of Pretty Wedding

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Church, Summerside, on September 15 at 9 a.m. when Marie Frances Poirier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Poirier, Summerside, became the bride of Robert William Sharkey, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emile W. Sharkey, Edmonton, Alberta. Rev. Justin MacDonald performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The church was attractively decorated with baskets of gladioli and the guest pews were marked with yellow 'mums. Mrs. Thomas Perry was in charge of the wedding music and accompanied Miss Betty Blaquiere, who sang appropriate wedding hymns during the Nuptial Mass and the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor length wedding gown of white nylon net over taffeta with lace bodice and long sleeves. Her beautiful nylon net headpiece and veil were sent to her by her girl friend in Germany. The headpiece consisted of a tiny net pill box, which formed points around the face. Also included were two small matching bows, which were attached to the front of her dress. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Miss Shirley Gallant as maid of honor, and Miss Pearl DesRoches, as bridesmaid, wore identical gowns of coral and pink chiffon over taffeta, with matching head-dress, mitts and shoes, and they carried bouquets of yellow and deep pink gladioli, respectively.

Mr. Mac Bartoszynski was a groomsman and Mr. James MacIntyre was the usher.

Mrs. Poirier chose for her daughter's wedding a navy dress with navy and black accessories and a corsage of red gladioli. Mrs. Peter Downing, the bride's maternal grandmother of 90 years was attired in navy with matching accessories and a corsage of mauve and white gladioli. Mrs. M. Poirier, the bride's paternal grandmother, wore a dress of grey flowered silk with navy accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

Following the ceremony a reception for sixty guests was held at Birch Hill Lodge, where the bride's table, with its attractive arrangement of white gladioli, was centered with a three tier wedding cake. The toast to the bride was proposed by the best man, to which the groom responded. Mr. Walter Somier, Jr. read a number of telegrams from friends of the groom in Alberta, also one from the bride's brother, Robert, in Toronto.

For the honeymoon trip throughout the Maritimes, the bride changed to a rose knitted suit with white feather hat, black accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

On return, Mr. and Mrs. Sharkey will reside in Summerside, where the groom is employed with the Imperial Oil Company. Previous to her marriage the bride was on the staff of Smallman's Ltd.

Out of the province guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Poirier, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mrs. Leo Michaud of Rhode Island; Mr. and Mrs. George Torrgerross, uncle and aunt of the groom, of Edmonton, Alberta; Corporal Frank E. Arsenault of Meaford, Ont.

Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at the Legion Hall, where a large number of friends and relatives assembled also at the home of Mrs. Jessie Cooke, when the fellow employees of Smallman's Ltd. gathered to present her with many lovely gifts. Delicious refreshments were served. Photo by Sears of the Read Studio.

The Chief Commissioner Visits Prince Edward Island

The Girl Guides of Prince Edward Island were all in gay party mood last evening at the Charlottetown Hotel.

The raison d'être was that their Chief Commissioner, Mrs. W. Rankine Nesbitt, was in the province and was their guest of honour.

First of all the younger group had met Mrs. Nesbitt at the Community Centre. This was followed by the adult reception at The Charlottetown.

Mrs. Nesbitt is now known from coast to coast in Canada. This is her second visit to Prince Edward Island and the welcome accorded her was almost in the nature of an ovation.

Women prominent in the Guide work of course, were all present.

Many of these had started in this work in Prince Edward Island and in other parts of Canada when the organization was not in the powerful position that it is today.

These people gave of their youth and their enthusiasm for a work they simply loved.

Almost without their realizing it for some time, the organization had greatly expanded.

These women found themselves in prominent positions, not because of trying to realize personal ambitions, but because they had quite unconsciously grown along, also, with a great work.

As for Mrs. W. Rankine Nesbitt she is a worthy daughter of a military father, an exemplary wife and mother of a man who stands for the highest principles in Canadian business and professional life.

This womanly woman with the direct gaze is resolute in her desire to serve in Girl Guide work. Thus she not only builds for Canada but for those much desired international relationships.

To end on a more intimate strain: Our beloved Island authoress, L.M. Montgomery, put these words in the mouth of one of her characters, Janet Gordon, in speaking to her niece, "The Master thinks you are 'verra, verra bonnie, Kilmenny'."

That old Scottish expression so dear and so much used in all generations, was brought over on the ships by those who pioneered our nation.

It is applicable in the present Canadian speech. From the nearest little pet of a Brownie (with its Christmas order already in for two front teeth) the interesting adolescent promising teenager to the revered leader, all join in saying "isn't she verra, verra bonnie!" This remarkable Mrs. W. Rankine Nesbitt, Chief Commissioner of the Girl Guides, our inspiring visitor.

NEW HAVEN W. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Haven W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Neil MacKinnon on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd.

Meeting opened by singing the ode and repeating the creed in unison. The roll call was answered by 15 members paying 25 cents which realized the sum of $3.75. There were four visitors present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. School committee reported chalk, toilet tissue, yard stick, Grade 10 Geography and a music book needed for the School. It was moved and seconded that those articles be purchased.

Plans were made to have a pantry sale in Charlottetown as soon as a place is available.

A Thank-you card was read from Mrs. Alex MacPhee for treat received. The correspondence was read and discussed.

The new committees were appointed as follows: School, Mrs. Melville Pollard and Mrs. Richard MacPhee; program, Mrs. G. S. Tierney (re-appointed) and Mrs. Murphy.

The collection for the evening was $1.35 and the next place of meeting is to be at Mrs. Richard MacPhee's with roll call to be one cent for each letter of your name.

An interesting split p. herbs contest was put on by Mrs. Fl. M. Boyle and won by Mrs. Murphy.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by several members.

Canned Shrimp Causes Newlyweds' First Spat

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

A tearful young bride phoned me recently.

"Don and I just had our first big spat," she sobbed. "It was about the canned shrimp I cooked for dinner. They were so salty we couldn't eat them."

"What did I do that was wrong?"

"What type of canned shrimp did you use?" I asked.

"I have the can here. It says 'drained wt. 5 oz. avoird., medium wet pack' — whatever all that means."

CANNER'S LANGUAGE

"That is canner's language for five ounces of shrimp ready-to-can, weighed before canning. It is then combined with enough salt and water brine to fill an eight-ounce can, designated, by the way, as holding approximately one cup."

"Oh! So the can contained five ounces of shrimp and the rest was brine!" exclaimed the bride. "I thought this liquid should be used as in other canned foods to add flavor and save food values."

"Your reasoning is absolutely right, my dear," I assured her. "You are in no way whatever to blame."

Processors packing shrimp in brine should state on the can label that the shrimp should be drained and rinsed with cold water before using. The brine should not be used. The shrimp can then be used in any way desired. And all weight contents of all cans should be given in language the average consumer can understand.

Tomorrow's dinner: Green pepper coleslaw; shrimp noodle bake; new carrots with asparagus; strawberry, coconut, and pineapple gel; hot or iced coffee or tea; milk.

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6:

Shrimp noodle bake: Open, drain and rinse 2 (8 oz.) cans medium-sized small shrimp (wet pack).

In a bowl, mix 4 c. cooked rice (regulation or instant), ¼ tsp. garlic salt, 1 (10¼ oz.) can Marina sauce, 1 tsp. mayonnaise, 2 tsp. each chopped scallions and parsley.

In a buttered 3-pt. baking dish, spread 1-3 of the rice mixture. Top with a layer of shrimp. Continue, making 3 layers of each. Top with seasoned bread crumbs. Bake about 35 min. or until browned in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F.

Strawberry-Coconut-Pineapple Gel: Boil 1¼ c. canned pineapple juice 2 min. Stir 1½ envelopes unflavored gelatin into ½ c. cold water. Stir into the pineapple juice.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

For gay color and bright flavor add a chopped pimiento to coleslaw.

Reverend Father Ayers then addressed the meeting and urged the women encourage the people to buy religious Christmas cards in order to show the true meaning of Christmas. There being no further business the meeting was adjourned. An Act of Consecration to Our Lady was recited by Father Ayers.

YORK POINT W. I.
