THE DAILY EXAMINER

NOVEMBER 8, 1897. RAVAGES OF YELLOW FEVER.

The Loss to New Orleans Will be Over Seventeen Million Dollars.

"I am told that the loss to New Orleans alone, on account of the yellow fever epidemic, will amount to $17,000,000, said Dr. P. H. Bryce, of Toronto, who recently returned from attending the annual meeting of the American Health Association at Philadelphia. The doctor met a number of southern practitioners during his absence, and gleaned considerable information with respect to the results of the visitation of 'yellow jack.' 'For the past six weeks,' continued Dr. Bryce, 'no person has been allowed to enter any southern city or town without having a certificate showing where he had spent the three weeks previous to his arrival. This regulation is enforced even in the case of persons coming from the Northern States. The effect is to practically tie up the whole trade of the South. 'In the North are congregated hundreds of Southern refugees, who are waiting for the advent of cold weather in order that they may be enabled to return to their homes without running any risk from the contagion. People in this cold climate have no idea of what a yellow fever panic means, and how ardent at such a time is the longing in the South for a drop in the temperature. 'The plague is increasing rather than abating. In the last twenty-four hours there have been twelve deaths, making a total of 195 since the outbreak began. The total number of cases has been 1,640 and half of these are still sick. The mortality amounts to 13 per cent, and with 50 per cent of the total number of persons attacked still down, the mortality may go up to 21 per cent. of the whole.' PREPARATION OF SHEEP FOR THE WINTER.

An old saying among sheepmen that is applicable in all parts is, that a sheep that goes into the winter season in good flesh, is half wintered. While this saying may have been more true in olden days than it is now, yet it may serve to draw the attention of the farmers to the condition of their flock. If the sheep are thin in flesh, an effort should be made to secure a surplus of flesh on them before they go into winter quarters. See that they have good pasture. If that is not to hand, they give them a little extra feed, for as likely as not the sheep are hunting for something to eat on bare pastures, and losing flesh every day. Feed a few turnips or a little grain, so that if the sheep do not gain any in weight, they at least do not fall away as they are almost sure to do if left to forage for themselves on poor pastures. This is the season of the year when a piece of rape comes in very handy. If you have not got a piece for this year, be sure you make preparation for

of the Modern Duel. First Second—I think the swords have soaked long enough in the antiseptic compound. Second Second—I think so. Did you scatter the chloride of lime under the tires? 'Yes, and I burned sulphur in the branches.' 'Good. How about the bushes?' 'They have been sprayed with that No. 1 deodorizer. Did you sprinkle the lawn?' 'Yes. I used the camphorated wash.' 'Excellent. Shall we start the rotary atmospheric purifier?' 'I think so. One moment—did you kindle the fire under the medicated bath?' 'I did. And I also put the hot water bottles on the portable furnace and set the mustard plaster where it would warm.' 'Then I think we are all ready.' 'I think so. Messieurs, we are quite ready.'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Head For Finance. 'There's no use talking,' remarked the curbstone statesman wearily. 'It's impossible to make a woman understand even the first principles of finance.' 'What's the matter now?' inquired another member of the old guard. 'While I was down town yesterday, it appears, the baby accidentally swallowed a quarter.' 'Yes?' 'Yes, sir. And what does my wife do but call in a doctor and pay him $5 for getting that quarter back.'—Chicago Times-Herald.

How to Live Long. Old Parr, it is said, died from the effects of an unusual burst of luxury, and many other very old people, after living in the simplest possible way for many years, have succumbed at last to the effects of luxury indulged in on birthdays or other festive occasions. The oldest inhabitant of Yarmouth, who died a few days ago, is another illustration of the fact that the worst thing that can be done for very aged people is to supply them with luxuries beyond what their systems have grown accustomed to. The old man, who was well into the nineties, had every promise of becoming a centenarian, when he was unfortunately discovered in connection with the jubilee festivities, and, as the oldest inhabitant, was given the place of honor at the local festivities and was to be provided with the usual 'comforts for his declining years' for the future, as he was in very needy circumstances. He has responded promptly by dying.—Westminster Gazette.

Fifty Years Ago.

Who could imagine that this should be the place where, in eighteen ninety-three that white world-wonder of arch and dome should shadow the nations, polychrome... Here at the Fair was the prize conferred on Ayer's Pills, by the world preferred. Chicago-like, they a record show, since they started—30 years ago.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills

have, from the time of their preparation, been a continuous success with the public. And that means that Ayer's Pills accomplish what is promised for them; they cure where others fail. It was fitting, therefore, that the world-wide popularity of these pills should be recognized by the World's Fair medal of 1893—a fact which emphasizes the record: 50 Years of Cures.

a suitable piece next season. It not done already, make a thorough inspection of the flock. Examine all the ewes, and call out those that have poor mouths, defective udders, or that are very thin in flesh, or that from any other cause will not make profitable animals to keep over winter. Get rid of them to the butcher, or in other ways. Give those ewes that are coupled this fall all the requirements which will help to develop for you a healthy good lamb. See that you have proper shelter for them when the cold rains come on. The change from grass to hay should be gradual. Another important item to attend to before the cold weather comes on, and one that should not be postponed, even if it is a busy time—you cannot afford to feed sheep ticks or lice all winter. Therefore select a suitable day and the sheep. It is not yet too late, if proper precautions are taken to guard against the sheep taking cold. It will pay you to do it.

TOO MUCH RESPONSIBILITY.

The Colored Porter and His Excuse For His Educational Shortcomings.

While the colored man at the depot was loading the trunks on the baggage truck a small boy of his own color approached him and said: 'Sam, kin I spoke wid yo' a minit?' 'Boy, who yo' callin Sam?' demanded the man as he dropped a trunk to confront the youngster. 'I ze callin yo' Sam, of co'se.' 'Waal, dar ain't no of co'se to it. My name, sah, are Samuel Brown. If yo' wish to spoke to me, yo' must call me Mistah Brown. Now, what yo' got to say?' 'My sistah sent word to yo', Mistah Brown.' 'Oh, den yo' got a sistah?' 'Yes, sah, an she dun tole me to tell yo' somethin.' 'She did, eh? Did yo'r sistah know dat I was Mistah Samuel Brown?' 'Yes, sah.' 'An dat I had de responsibility of dis railroad on my shoulders?' 'Yes, sah.' 'An she didn't dun write me a note?' 'No, sah. She dun tole me to say it to yo'.' 'Boy, don't yo' fool wid a pnsion in my posishun. Why didn't yo'r sistah dun write me a note?' 'Kase, sah, yo' couldn't read it if she did.'

The man reached out and caught the boy by the arm as if to shake him, but directly a smile broke over his face and he released his grip and said: 'Dat's so, boy, an yo'r sistah can't dun write her own name to save her neck. I ze got de responsibility of dis railroad on my shoulders an she's got de responsibility of de dressmakin bizness on hers, an we hain't got no time to sagaciate around wid red ink an blue paper. Yo' jes' wait till I percolate dis baggage up to de train an den yo' kin go ahead an disqualify yo'r invidious information.'—New York Sunday World.

It is stated that Henry Geordiedied a comparatively poor man. Beyond the heritance of his name, the property in a book which is not completed, his home in Fort Hamilton Park and an insurance policy for $2,000 in a benevolent association, he leaves nothing to his family. He lived out of the profits of his pen, and with that he was a poor salesman. His home and land about it is probably worth $15,000.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 4.—This morning a slight earthquake shock was felt here, rocking buildings. It was of seven seconds duration, but as yet no damage is known to have been caused by it.

His Heart and His Wheel. She took my heart, the cruel girl, And crushed it beneath her wheel, But it might be worse, So I shall not curse— It might have been my wheel. —New York Herald.

Little Boy (pointing to the shop window)—What's them? Mother—Those are diving suits, made all of rubber, so that the diver shall not get wet. Little Boy—I wish I had one to wear when you wash me.—Tit-Bits.

Revised Version. Mary had a little dog, But lost it—oh, the pity! It fell into the mutton stew Way up in Dawson City. —Omaha World-Herald.

As Nearly as Possible. She—Tell me truly, now, is your heart wholly mine? He—As nearly as it is possible, I being a loyal patriot. George Washington, you know, is first in the hearts of his countrymen.—Boston Transcript.

Must Be a Boston Girl. In Anna's heart I fain would ask a Working claim for me, her fond like, But, lo, she is a small Alaska And twice as cold as any Klondike! —New York Journal.

The Missing Links. She—What are these missing links we hear so much about? He—Oh, they were some golf links that were located in a certain western town before the cyclone struck it.—Yonkers Statesman.

Solution of an Old Problem. The sewing circle owed a debt On the pastor's pulpit chair, And when at last the claim was met It made the circle square. —Chicago Tribune.

Just the Thing. 'Rogers must have been fitting up a flat.' 'Why so?' 'He's at work now trying to invent a folding butter dish.'—Detroit News.

A Change of Diet. Perhaps 'tis true that up above Music is the food of love, But here below, so it would seem, It thrives on bombous and ice cream. —Chicago News.

The Official Prompter. Tom—What prompted you to propose to Miss Passy? Jack—Miss Passy.—Brooklyn Life.

A Matter For Gratitude. Oh, fate is kind indeed to him Whose children cluster at his knee Instead of climbing on his neck, Where most of them prefer to be! —Detroit News.

Too Close For Comfort. Hammond—How did Skinnum happen to lose on that latest deal? I thought that he stood close to the right people. Beans—That was just it. He was up against them.—New York Journal.

Spicy. 'Any spicy features in the new play?' 'Well,' the lady answered, 'John had his mouth full of cloves.'—Kansas City Journal.
