

Mr Attlee Addresses Press Club

The following are excerpts from the text of Mr. Attlee's speech at the National Press Club on December 6:

campaign, routed the North Korean armies. The fact that, faced with overwhelming odds, the United Nations forces are now in difficulties, should not obscure what was done under General MacArthur's skillful and resolute leadership.

our policy has not always been understood here and sometimes is criticized. We are asked how we can recognize and have diplomatic relations with the Government of China, when its policies are in contradiction to the United Nations objectives in Korea and when its nationals are engaged in conflict with our own forces.

Now, you will have seen that we published the Colombo Plan for cooperative economic development in South-East Asia. The second title of the Plan is, I think, significant. It is "The New Horizon in the East."

Because we are persuaded that military and political policies are not enough, there must be economic and social policy. Our aims is to try to get rid of these terrible extremes of poverty that you find in the East that form places at which all kinds of dangerous movements may breed.

With our partners in the Commonwealth we keep all these matters under review. As you may know, I am meeting my fellow Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth in London early in January. I shall be very glad to go into that family gathering fresh from the intimate talks I am having here with President Truman.

So we naturally bring into our discussions in Washington the views points we derive from our special position.

I am giving you some of the thoughts which form the background of the policy of the British Government towards China. I know

CHRISTMAS CAROL SERVICE
KIRK OF ST. JAMES
MONDAY, DEC. 18th—8:15 P.M.
Chancel Choir assisted by Boys' and Girls' Gallery Choirs.

A Happy Christmas To All
My Friends!
God bless your house with Christmas Cheer
And sweep away your every fear;
And happiness that knows no end
Breathe through each moment, and attend
My friends within that home so dear!
To grow throughout the coming year
Sincerely,
JOHN ROBERT LAMONT CAMPBELL
(John of "The Lilacs")
If I have brought you just "one" Golden Moment, then I have done something for you.

Congregations Laud Minister
Tribute to the "outstanding" ministry of Rev. Edwin J. White, minister of St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church, Point St. Charles was paid by his congregation Sunday on the eve of his departure to assume the pastorate of First Presbyterian Church Edmonton, Alta.
Three neighboring churches cancelled their evening services to allow their congregations to attend the service in St. Matthew's Church. Thus an audience of over 650 heard Mr. White give his farewell sermon.
Afterwards a reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. White. Representatives of six other churches were also present.
Mr. White was presented with a large cash gift, and Mrs. White received a purse and cash gift. James Halliday, clerk of session, presented the gift to the minister, and Mrs. Halliday, president of the Ladies' Aid, the gift to his wife.
Arthur Fuller, chairman of the board of managers, presided, and pointed out the achievements of the congregation had made under Mr. White's leadership. He also noted that Mr. White, during his nine years at St. Matthew's had given strong leadership in the Montreal Presbytery, of which he had once been moderator.
Other speakers included Rev. H. N. Eilley, Centenary United Church; Rev. J. G. Stones, Main Memorial United Church; Rev. J. K. Brown, St. Columba House; Rev. H. E. Secord, Point St. Charles Baptist Church; Rev. G. F. Leigh, Grace Anglican Church; and Capt. J. W. Crozier, Salvation Army Point St. Charles Corps.

Greek Orthodox and Catholics Celebrate Christmas Festival In Yugoslavian Churches
(Legation of Yugo-Slavia, Ottawa)
During the Second World War in which the peoples of Yugoslavia took part to liberate their country from enemy occupation and also from their own traitors, Yugoslavia, after being a monarchy for some twenty-five years, officially became a Peoples Republic on November 29th, 1945. After the Constitution the church in Yugoslavia separated from the state.
Regardless of this the people are free to express their religious feelings without any prohibition. One proof of this is the religious freedom in celebrating Christmas days. The two main religions in Yugoslavia are Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholic. The Roman Catholics celebrate Christmas on December 25th and the Greek Orthodox celebrate on January 7th.
Preparations for the feast begin two days before Christmas. The day before Christmas the people go out early in the morning to cut down the Christmas tree. During the day preparations are made for the feast which is on Christmas Eve. Prior to the feast the members of the family bring straw into the house and place it on the floor under the table. After the straw has been put in its proper place the members of the family gather around the table and the head of the family lights three candles, and says Grace. In the villages the celebrations usually begin with a gun salute. In the morning some members of the family go to church and take part in the morning service on Christmas day. After the service the people return home and the celebration continues throughout the day.
Those are the general customs of celebrating Christmas in Yugoslavia. In the towns and villages there are also some small differences in the way the Greek Orthodox and the Roman Catholics celebrate. One of the differences is that the Greek Orthodox celebrate three days due to the fact that St. Stephen's day comes on the day after Christmas and therefore the people continue with the celebration. The Roman Catholics celebrate only two days. (The above interesting communication was received too late for inclusion in today's Christmas supplement.)
