MOTHER OF 16 SEEKS ELECTION

Mrs. Milvina Labine, 65, a 220-pound widow and mother of 16 children, is seeking election as reeve of the township of Raynside, 10 miles northwest of Sudbury, Ont. At the piano are some of the eight wards of the Children's Aid Society now living with her. About men she says: "They'll find they can't kick me around . . . I'm too heavy for that." (CP Photo)

Alberta Swine Industry Threatened By Disease

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's swine industry, already plagued with rock-bottom market prices, is in a running battle with an invincible hog disease called Erysipelas.

There is no doubt of the outcome. Erysipelas, sometimes fatal and often crippling, has been increasing in incidence in the last five years, and veterinarians report that the chances of stamping it out are "practically nil."

Last year there were 270,000 cases in Canada—most of them in Ontario and Alberta. The number of hog deaths was not known here. Most recent reports in Alberta was of 21 pigs that died on a farm near Hanna, east of Calgary.

ANTIBIOTICS CUT LOSSES

Eventual extent of swine losses will depend entirely on farmers, officials here say. Hogs contracting the virulent disease—which usually strikes in hot weather—can be saved by quick action with penicillin and other antibiotics.

Erysipelas takes three forms. The worst is the acute type, causing sudden death. Another form affects the animal in the joints, causing crippling. A third and milder type results in "diamond skin" — a mass of purplish blotches on the hog.

The organism responsible for this bacterial infection is hardy, and able to live a long time in soil after leaving the body. Good sanitation and husbandry cannot always prevent the disease, which travels easily along the well-enclosed hogs.

IMPOSSIBLE TO RID

Dr. E. E. Ballantyne, head of the Alberta government's veterinary service, said Wednesday it is virtually impossible to get rid of the disease, which can be carried by healthy-looking hogs. His department concentrates on field work aimed at keeping losses to a minimum.

In Alberta, erysipelas has become more widespread as the hog population has increased. When hog prices zoomed last year to an average $53 a head, hundreds of farmers entered the swine business. The result was a 27-per-cent increase in the province's swine population, to its present 1,860,000.

Since then, prices have dropped steadily. At the Edmonton public stockyards on Wednesday, grade A hogs were even with the federal support level at $21.50 a hundredweight, compared with $30 a few months ago. Officials see little hope of immediate recovery.

Meanwhile, the Alberta swine population still is big, and includes hogs owned by farmers who entered this field with little experience.

Veterinarians say the old hands in hog raising are having little trouble with erysipelas. Heaviest losses are being suffered by inexperienced farmers who cannot recognize the disease when it appears and do not take prompt action.

Stress Promise Of Freedom, U.S. Vice-President Urges

LONDON (AP)—Vice - president Richard Nixon said Wednesday night the defeat of communism should not be the West's main objective.

"Let us speak less of the threat of communism and more of the promise of freedom," he told a banquet in London's ancient Guildhall.

"Let us adopt as our primary objective not the defeat of communism but the victory of plenty over want, of health over disease, of freedom over tyranny."

Nixon threw in a word of praise for "that much maligned institution—British colonialism."

CAN BE PROUD

Recalling his travels through lands which once were colonies, he said Britain could be proud of her colonial administrators who imbued their territories with great ideas for the future.

The banquet, held by the English Speaking Union, capped a crowded second day of Nixon's four-day visit to Britain.

He was at the House of Commons in the morning for another quick session of getting acquainted talks with government leaders.

After that came a hurried ride to join the Queen in a ceremony dedicating a new American chapel at St. Paul's Cathedral as a memorial to the 28,000 Americans killed in operations here and from British bases in the Second World War.

As dusk fell, Nixon called on Sir Winston Chorchill. He and the elder statesman, who will be 84 Sunday, talked for 24 minutes—and Nixon came out with word that he expects Churchill to visit Washington next May as guest of President Eisenhower.

Oldest Eskimo Bones Displayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The oldest Eskimo bones ever recovered—from a period about 600 B.C.—were displayed Wednesday by archaeologist Bill Taylor of the National Museum.

Three battered ribs and a lower jaw with 11 teeth constitute the oldest known Eskimo remains identified so far, the scientist said.

It was discovered among a rash of various artifacts in diggings on an island off Sugluk near one of the most northern points in Quebec province.

Mr. Taylor said at a press conference that the summer's work "just about" doubled the museum's collection of carvings.

He said the remains are solid evidence that the Eskimo Dorset culture, reigning in the north from about 600 B.C. to 1400 A.D., was physically Eskimo rather than Indian as suggested by some authorities.

Refuse Bail Reduction In Bond Case

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A New London man, arrested by federal authorities on charges of receiving stolen Canadian bonds, was ordered held at the prison in Danbury Wednesday after losing an appeal to have his bail lowered.

Judge Robert P. Anderson denied a request for a reduction of the $100,000 bail set by a federal court judge in Hartford Tuesday for Bernard J. Ezhaya.

Ezhaya, 45-year-old Boston industrial relations consultant, was indicted by a grand jury in Hartford on charges of receiving stolen bonds from multi-million-dollar bond thefts in Canada earlier this year.

The FBI said that $76,000 worth of stolen bonds were found in two banks at New London. They said they had been pledged for loans by Ezhaya.

Early Wednesday, the FBI announced that an additional $50,000 worth of bonds were recovered in a bank at Waterville, Me.

Ezhaya was rearrested at his home in New London Tuesday night in connection with the Waterville transaction.

At his arraignment before a federal commissioner here Wednesday, Ezhaya's bond was set at $50,000, bringing the total bond against him to $150,000.

Counsel for Ezhaya, who has already posted $50,000 bond, asked Judge Anderson to set aside the $100,000 bond ordered Tuesday.

The robberies were at the Caisse National d'Economie in Montreal last Jan. 25 and at the Brockville, Ont., Trust and Saving Company May 4.

THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

BY HIS EMINENCE CARDINAL McGUIGAN

SEEKING THE CITY TO COME

"What shall I do when God shall rise to judge? And when He shall examine what shall I answer Him?" Job 31, 14.

How quickly time passes. For the most part people do not like to dwell on this truth; and yet there are times when this thought can have a very salutary effect on our lives. Men are continually trying to hide the fact that they are growing old. They are constantly in search for the fountain of youth in the form of pills or tonics or any scientific discovery which offers them the slightest hope that it will keep them youthful.

No matter what we may do to put this thought from our minds, inevitably we must always come back to the fact that we do not have too much time here in this world. God has given us gifts in abundance, but the gift of time, He has strictly limited. "For we have not here a lasting city, but we seek one that is to come."

Even during the most joyour event of the coronation of a Pope a ceremony takes place to remind the Holy Father of this truth. Three times during the procession to the main altar, the Pope is halted by the master of ceremonies to receive a small brazier of glowing coals and a handful of flax that the Pope throws on the fire. Then, as the flax flares up and is gone in a puff of smoke, the master of ceremonies looks into the Pontiff's eyes and intones the ancient warning: "Holy Father, thus passes the glories of the world."

The Book of Wisdom tells us that our lives are like ships that pass through the sea, like shadows passing over the earth, and when they are gone, they leave no mark. "And our name in time shall be forgotten, and no man shall have any remembrance of our works."

There is only one who remembers our works; before Almighty God our lives do leave a lasting mark and it is on our good works and them alone, that the final judgement will be made. The great accomplishments that a person may have achieved in a worldly way will mean nothing, for on the last day men will realize that nothing matters except the good works they have performed while in this world.

Good works may call for sacrifices, sorrow, and restraint, but the wisdom of performing them comes from the fact that we are putting off a temporary pleasure to gain a much greater eternal good. Many men are unconvinced that the effort necessary to insure eternal happiness is worth while. And yet, these same men find it eminently reasonable to perform very heroic acts in their pursuit of some vague comfort and happiness that may come for a short time at some later period in their lives.

Some of these men make such harrowing sacrifices for this indefinite future that one sometimes wonders how they can endure the strain. They study for years, work long hours and give up hope of sometime being able to sit back and enjoy themselves.

This time of year is a good time to make an accounting of our lives to see if we are putting first things first, to see if we are concerned as much with our eternal destiny as we are with the uncertain future that lies ahead of us in this world. On this last Sunday of the Ecclesiastical Year we should look forward to the new year that is coming, and determine how we must change our lives to best utilize the time that has been allotted to us to work out our future for all eternity.

Our Blessed Lord has indicated to us what we must do: "I must work the works of Him that sent me whilst it is day; the night cometh when no man can work." Every moment is important and must be accounted for on the last day. The time is short and there is much to be done. God has given us the time; we must spend it with Him and for Him. This is the hope that St. Paul expresses for all of us that "whether we watch or sleep, we may live together with Him."

If we use our time well in doing God's Will, the thought of the quick passage of time and the uncertainty of death will no longer have the power to cause us fear For, strong through Christ is our Holy Faith, intimate with Christ at Holy Mass, supported by Christ in His Sacraments, and living in Christ by brotherly love, we shall be ready to answer for ourselves on the last day without misgivings.

Icy Roads Lead To Car Collision

MONTAGUE — Despite the efforts of the department of highways yesterday in facilitating travel conditions for motorists, icy roads led to an accident between a 1958 Consul driven by a resident of Montague and a Chevrolet driven by a resident of Vernon, near Alberry Plains School.

The Consul proceeding towards Charlottetown, went out of control, striking the on coming Chevrolet. Considerable damage was sustained by the Consul. No one was injured.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official reserves of gold and United States dollars rose by $29,100,000 in October to $1,917,300,000. 'Springhill Fund' Dance Planned For Boston Area

By GAVIN SCOTT

BOSTON (CP) — More than 1,000 Canadian-born residents of the Boston area will attend a dance Dec. 12 that will wind up the Canadian - American Club's Springhill disaster fund drive for victims of the Nova Scotia mine tragedy.

Club president Ronald J. Redquest says the campaign likely will net between $5,000 and $6,000, which will be added to Nova Scotia Premier Stanfield's fund to aid the people of Springhill. An earth upheaval in Cumberland No. 2 mine there took 75 lives. Ninety-nine men were saved.

Redquest, a native of Sydney, N.S., who now lives in suburban Canton, says club members are busy selling tickets for the dance to be held at the Inter-Colonial building in Roxbury. Two dance bands will donate an evening of their music.

DONATI S CONTINUE

Club officers continue to receive contributions to the fund, Redquest says. More than 5,000 letters appealing for donations were sent to former Canadians in New England.

"We need the final push of the dance proceeds to put us over the top," Redquest says.

Club members considered earmarking their fund for a special use at Springhill because of reports that not all needy persons in the town benefitted from the general fund.

But one club member, David MacDonald of Boston who is a former resident of Sydney, investigated how Premier Stanfield's fund was put to use and convinced club members that the general fund "was the best in every way."

BEST DESTINATION

Bennet McInnis of Cambridge, formerly of St. Peter's Bay, P.E.I., says MacDonald talked with a minister, a priest, two union men, a banker and a lawyer in Springhill, where he visited during a Maritimes business trip. "We're satisfied the general fund is the best place to send our money," McInnis says.

Meanwhile, the club continues with other charitable work to aid needy Canadians in Massachusetts. Dances and entertainment for members provide funds for the assistance.

The club, recently reorganized with the objective of enrolling all local Canadians in the area, also plans a vocational directory to help new arrivals find jobs.

More than 4,000 persons of Canadian descent are on club mailing lists. A news letter is published monthly with notes on meetings of interest to former Canadians.

Club activities include bowling and hockey.

TIMELY NOTES ON FUR TOPICS

The Furriers Council, a joint sales association of 54 firms, acts as the leader in all matters pertaining to furs in Sweden. A resume of their operations appeared in a recent issue of "Women's Wear Daily", and the report states that long-haired furs are coming back.

Beautiful stoles of blue fox were seen and greatly admired. Sweden is justly proud of its home-bred minks. Skins worth $10,000,000 were exported in 1957, and mink in every shade was represented in this year's collections. Some light mutations closely resembled finest wild mink. Full-length coats retailed at $1,700 to $7,000, but mink was also seen in jackets, boleros and collars.

The president and treasurer of Lloyd's Fur Studio, Hartford, Connecticut, pleaded guilty to charges of operating a nation-wide fur coat remodelling fraud. A federal grand jury had him indicted on September 18 on charges of placing fraudulent ads in a national magazine offering to remodel fur coats for $22.95.

The indictment charged that after some customers mailed fur pieces to Lloyd's the accused added other costs, sent back substitute coats, and failed to return left-over fur.

FROM JAPAN

A despatch from Tokyo, dated November 12, states that exports of mink skins to the United States dropped slightly in the third quarter of 1958, but the nine-month total figures were still about 10 percent ahead of 1957.

The shipments were, for the nine months; 294,200 undressed and 2,100 dressed mink; exports in the same period last year were: 263,300 undressed mink.

The Retailer Mink Clinic, which Canada Mink Breeders Association has been staging with marked success in Western Canada, will soon be presented in Montreal, Toronto, and Eastern anadian cities.

Plans have been made to entertain about 300 retailers and their sales personnel at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. In Montreal, a clinic for French-speaking personnel has been arranged for November 24, to be held at the Club Circle Universitaire, and for English-speaking personnel at the Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel, when an attendance of about 500 is anticipated.

The clinic will later move on to Hamilton, Ottawa, London and Windsor, Ontario, and will no doubt, be available for Eastern and Western Canada if applications are made. There is no cost to fur retailers and their staff members to attend. To Canada Mink Breeders Association, the estimated total cost is expected to be around $15,000.

EDUCATIONAL

As an educational project aimed directly at the retailer to help him and his staff to better understand mink, and so promote garment sales, the C.M.B. clinic plan is said to be working out successfully. C.M.B. intends to summarize, in booklet form, the questions answered at the meetings.

Fromm's fox takes up a half-page ad in "Women's Wear Daily" last Saturday. Here is a portion of the ad, which also shows a beautiful lady with a lot of fox wrapped around her shoulders:

"Fashion has a golden future". Golden Amber - Golden Glory - Fox . . . Golden Amber . . . . Golden Glory . . . A whole glorious golden spectrum of magnificent mutations ranging from deep burnished to palest gold, crowning achievement of years of breeding on the world-renowned Fromm Farm. These superb new golden foxes . . . . . The magnificent new Silvers, Pearls and Platinums are giving a new focus to fashion, new dimensions and directions to designers. Our new design concepts are now ready, each marked with the famous Fromm Blue Ribbon and Pedigree Medallion."

Our comment on the above is that Fromm Brothers are taking a leaf out of the doings of the mink breeders, who, years ago, started with natural mink and have developed at least twelve different, but beautiful mutations.

Wih fox coming back strongly in favor, there is every chance that their venture will prove a big money-maker, and we trust that will be the case, as they deserve every credit for their stick-to-itiveness and their belief in the beauty and worth of silver fox and its mutations.
