

Mrs. Willard Prowse, Brackley, P. E. I., achieves prize-winning results with Fleischmann's Yeast.

Wins Top Baking Honors at P. E. I. Fair

Her mantelpiece is adorned with silver trophies for home beautification and flower gardens. But it's her baking that has made Mrs. Willard Prowse famous all over the Island! At the 1950 Provincial Fair at Charlottetown she carried off top honors. An authority on yeast-raised baking—she uses 18 yeast cakes a week!—Mrs. Prowse gets her superb prize-winning results with Fleischmann's Yeast.

"It makes no difference whether you're baking for the family or the market or the fair," says Mrs. Prowse. "Your results will depend a lot on your ingredients. For fine results in bread and rolls you have to be sure of your yeast—that it's good and lively.

"That's why I do my yeast-raised baking with Fleischmann's Yeast. For with Fleischmann's you're sure."

The Minister of National Defence, the Hon. Brook Claxton, has sent a copy of a new Divine Service Book for chaplains and which is designed to meet the religious needs of the men and women in the armed services, to the Ministers of the Church. The Minister of National Defence in his letter which accompanied the very fine book states: "We are most anxious that the Churches of Canada know that the great work in which they are engaged in civilian life is being continued among the men of our armed forces. It is my belief that the values for which the churches stand are the values for which we fight today."

In the foreword, the Rt. Rev. J. W. Woodside, President of the Canadian Council of Churches and former moderator of the United Church of Canada says of the new book: "It has been most carefully prepared, having in mind always the values attached to both ancient and modern expressions of religion and offering a happy combination of both free and liturgical forms of public worship. The book breathes the spirit of ecumenicity. It helps to make visible the common ground where we may worship together."

The book which is published by the Ryerson Press of the United Church Publishing House in Toronto contains a short section on "How to Use the Bible", also devotional sentences and an order of Divine Service. There are beautiful and majestic prayers of adoration, absolution, pardon, grace, intercession, thanksgiving etc. There are several orders for Holy Communion, for the burial of the dead, for the commissioning of a ship etc., also a large number of the great hymns of the faith.

Let's Talk It Over

A Prince County Viewpoint by "d"

"PERFECT ATTENDANCE"

We want to give a very emphatic "second the motion" to a letter written to The Guardian recently which deplored the giving of prizes for "perfect attendance" in the public schools. We've always thought it was wrong but didn't have the courage to come right out and say so until we read this unexpected agreement to our unspoken thoughts. We had a painful experience as a result of the custom some years ago. A little girl had gone all through the school year until early June without missing a day and in consequence was looking forward to the completion of the year and the winning of the prize. Then she developed a bad cold and was obviously in no condition to attend school. But the little girl couldn't see it that way. She was determined to go to school and keeping her home was something of a tragedy in her young life. After that experience we contrived in other years to get her to miss a day early in the year, and then she went to school regularly and happily without ever worrying about the "Perfect Attendance" bugbear.

If teachers insist on giving prizes for perfect attendance, then all children who attend school when they are physically fit should each be given a prize. Surely developing a case of mumps or measles is not deserving a demerit. Worse still, we've seen children come to school for the first half-hour, or even until after roll-call, then go off on some pleasure expedition with their parents, their "perfect attendance" record being kept intact by their brief stay at the seat of learning. Another child at home because of an attack of flu would of course be disqualified.

Home is where a sick child should be. Instead of rewarding a child for coming to school when not well, it would be much better, if it were possible, to penalize the parents.

We've never been on the "rocky road to Dublin" but if it is any worse than the rutty road at the western approaches of Water Street, Summerside, then it has earned its renown. If the road in question keeps well soon be the only safe method of travel. Ottawa Street is another example. At its upper end adjoining Grandville Street it is probably as bad a stretch of pavement as you will find anywhere on the Island, and that is dealing in Superlatives with a capital S. Now heedlessly as Mother Bear. They bumped into each other. They lost their hats. Farmer Brown's Boy stubbed his toe and fell. The other boy fell over him. Both yelled.

The cubs scrambled up the first tree they came to. Somehow they felt safer in a tree. Mother Bear disappeared among the trees one way, and the two boys disappeared among the trees another way.
