TAKE WARNING!

Neglect Not These Signals of Danger.

A Useful Lesson on Health Taught by The Indians' Example.

Let the Remedy be Simple and Safe—Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

If you are ailing, not exactly sick but not feeling "just right," have a drowsy, dull feeling, bad taste in the mouth, variable appetite, occasional pains in the joints and muscles, and other signs of impending sickness, why not do as the Indian does—drive such symptoms out of the system by the judicious use of their reliable vegetable remedy, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa?

"Thundering Horse," a Kickapoo chief, age 99 years. From his photograph.

Don't neglect such warnings.

That pain in your shoulder may develop into rheumatism, and a month's sickness deprive you of the income of your toil.

That white, furry tongue denotes your liver is out of order, and disease would easily take root in your system.

What could you do then!

Think of your business, your income and your family.

Seek safety as you would fly from cholera or small pox.

You are in danger if you neglect these warnings. They may pass off, but the chances are against you, and even then the poison is only latent in your system.

Do not, however, put your trust in the numerous mineral medicines with which the market is flooded. The action of many of these decoctions comes from mineral poisons they contain, such as mercury, arsenic, strychnine, bismuth, iodide of potassium, and the like and any druggist will tell you if he tells you truly, that this is so.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian medicines contain only the product of the field and forest, nature's own vegetable growth of roots, barks and herbs, and of necessity are free from all mineral poisons whatever, because the Indians have no knowledge of them, depending wholly upon nature's laboratory for their resources, and upon their skill, born of centuries of experience, in preparing them.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the Indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable at druggists and medicine dealers only. One dollar per bottle; six bottles for five dollars.

FREE to pay postage and we will mail you free a thrilling and interesting book of 173 pages, entitled "Life and Scenes Among the Kickapoo Indians." Tells all about the Indians. Address HEALY & BIGELOW, Distributing Agents, 321 Grand Ave New Haven, Conn.

HARDSHIPS IN POLAR REGIONS

Is the North Pole Worth All Spent in Searching for It?

The whole region is one of severe cold, and the sea is frozen for the greater part of the year, land and water becoming almost indistinguishable, but for the incessant movement and drift of the sea-ice. In summer the sea-ice breaks up into floes which may drift away southward and melt, or be driven by the wind against the shores of continents or islands, leaving lanes of open water which a shift of wind may change and close in an hour. Icebergs launched from the glaciers of the land also drift with tide, current and wind through the more or less open water. Possibly at some time the pack may open and a clear waterway run through to the pole, and old whalers tell of many a year when they believed that a few days' steaming would carry them to the end of the world, if they could have seized the opportunity. At other times, routes traversed in safety time after time may be effectively closed for years, and all advance barred. Food in the form of seals or walrus in the open water, reindeer, musk ox, polar bears or birds on the land, may often be procured, but these sources cannot be relied upon. Advance northward may be made by water in a ship, or by dog-sledge, or on foot, over the frozen snow or ice. Each method has grave drawbacks. Advance by sea is stopped when the young ice forms in autumn, and land advance is hampered by the long Arctic night which enforces months of inaction, more trying to health and spirits than the severest exertion.—McClure's Magazine.

A Noble Corps of Ignoble Men.

Probably the most remarkable army division in the world is the foreign legion of France. It is this legion which is invariably sent into the greatest danger. Whenever there are hardships to be borne to which the French authorities do not care to expose the regular troops the foreign legion is invariably designated for the purpose.

Naturally the question arises: Why is this so?

The character of the men who fill its ranks is the explanation.

Almost without exception they are men who, while brave beyond question, have a past which they wish to bury. Many of them are serving under incognitos and place no value upon their lives. Fully 50 per cent. are foreigners—adventurers and refugees.

A writer states that in one company he has found a Roumanian prince, who was under suspicion of having murdered his brother; an Italian lieutenant-colonel of cavalry, bearing an illustrious name, who had been dismissed from King Humbert's army in disgrace in consequence of being found cheating at cards; a Russian nihilist, who escaped from Siberia; an ex-canon of the Cathedral of Notre Dame at Paris, who had been suspended from his ecclesiastical functions in consequence of an offence committed against public morality; an English ex-captain of the rifle brigade, and a German count who had not only served as lieutenant in the First Regiment of Guards at Berlin, but who had also held a position on the military staff of the late Emperor of Germany.—New York Recorder.

International Expositions.

The first great international exposition was that held at London, in the Crystal Palace, in 1851. The total expenses of this exposition, including the cost of the building, were about £293,000, and the receipts about £506,000. The building covered an area of more than twenty acres. The next similar undertaking was the "Exhibition of the Industry of All Nations," held at New York in 1853. This was held in "Crystal Palace," which was afterwards destroyed by fire. A similar exhibition was also held in Dublin the same year. In 1854 an exposition was held in Munich, which at first was very successful, but cholera appeared and caused such a fright that the enterprise was abandoned. The first great Paris International Exposition was held in 1855. The second English International Exhibition was held in London in 1862. Next in order were those held at Constantinople in 1863; Bayonne, 1864; Dublin, 1865; Cologne, Oporto and Stockholm in 1865; Melbourne, 1866; Agra, 1867. Then came the great Paris Exposition of 1867, followed by several smaller ones at various places, until 1873, when a very fine one was held in Vienna. The next important display was the Philadelphia Centennial. Again a number of smaller ones, and then the great Paris Exposition of 1889.

An Arab's Loves.

An Arab—meaning a tent-dweller, for, in an equine sense, the town-dweller is no Arab—loves first and above all his horse. No need to recite the oft-sung affection he will lavish upon him. Next he loves his fire-arm. This, practically speaking, ought to be a six-foot, gold-inlaid, muzzle-loading horror of a matchlock, which would kick any man but an Arab flat on his back at every shot; but actually, in Algeria or Tunis, when he lives near a city, it is rather more apt to be a modern English breech-loader. You must fly from the busy haunts of men to find the matchlock. Next to his gun he loves his oldest son. Last comes his wife—or one of his wives. Daughters don't even count: I mean the Arab scarcely takes the trouble to count them, unless in so far as they can minister to his comfort, dietetic or otherwise. Until some neighbor comes along and proposes to marry, in other words, to make a still worse slave of one of them, she is only a chattel, a soulless thing. And yet she is said to be a pretty, amiable, helpful being—said to be, for no one by any hap ever chances to cast his eyes on one worth seeing. This disregard for women, be it said to their honor, does not always apply to the Bedouins of the Syrian and Arabian deserts.

A Story From the Golden Horn.

Schampeddin, the Mollah, observed a dark figure prowling in his garden by moonlight. Thinking it was a robber he took his bow and arrow, shot at the object, and quickly retired to bed. On the morrow great was his astonishment at finding that he had transfixed his own caftan which his wife had hung out in the garden to dry. He knelt down to pray, stood up again, puts his hands to his head, and then folding them devoutly over his breast, he once more prostrated himself, kissed the ground and cried out:

"Praised be Allah and His Prophet! How fortunate that I was not wearing his caftan at the time the deed was perpetrated, else the arrow would have pierced me through and through, and I would now be a dead man!"—Phare du Bosphore.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

COMFORT AND CHIC UNITE IN HER PRETTY OUTING COSTUMES.

Cool Linen Gowns Much Worn—Return of the Vogue of the Black Satin Duchesse Gowns—Elegant House Waist—A Fawn Canvas Gown.

Now that Dame Fashion has really settled her elf for the summer, and there is time to contemplate her erratic ways, the wise woman who did not squander her entire yearly allowance trying to keep pace with the rapid changes of the past three months can smilingly congratulate herself while she reaps the benefit of her discretion. She can calmly avail herself of the many improvements in styles, as well as profit by the important reductions in prices of dress goods and every kind of ready-made garment intended for summer wear. She also can attain something like individuality in dress, a distinction which was quite impossible in the whirl, when every woman looked like the next one, without having a voice in the matter.

Comfortable Linen Gowns.

The linen gowns of all colors and kinds are in favor just now, and they certainly are very stylish.

OUTING DRESS OF LINEN OR PLAIN WOOL.

The dress given in this cut is a suitable style for linen or any plain wool material. Gray hop sacking, with black satin vest and sash, is especially pretty made in this manner. But whatever the material, to be perfect it must be tailor made. These linens are so cool and fresh-looking that they discount more elegant costumes made of silk.

Another Stylish Costume.

NEAT GOWN OF CANVAS.

A gown of fawn canvas has a deep frill on the skirt, edged with ecru insertion, and two bands around the hips. The draped bodice of canvas has a bolero jacket and epaulettes of black peau de soie finished with insertion, and a narrow black belt.

For Those Who Prefer Black.

Elderly ladies who prefer black to colors, will hail the return of the satin duchesse gown. It is such a bright, handsome fabric, and adjusts itself so well to the figure, and is none too fine for every-day service. Indeed, as the old settlers say, you can wear it to mill or to market. It is just the thing to wear in this electrical age, and if you happen to spill a cup of tea or coffee over the front breadths you can sponge it off and the satin will never show a crease. Formerly when this goods was used I am told it had a stiff effect, but probably that was on account of a lack of trimming. But we gild the rose and paint the lily in our day, and wide lace bretelles will add beauty to a handsome satin gown. One reason why this fabric is again popular is that the coming outside garment will be a jacket, and satin is the only material that will slip easily into the jacket sleeves.

Summer House Waist.

The waist illustrated is intended for hot weather wear and is made of cream batiste trimmed with wide embroidery of the same. The bodice is made over a fitted lining and is gathered at the neck and waist, back and front. The neck, which is cut down in a point, is ornamented with a very full, wide ruffle of the embroidery, which is continued down the opening in front to form a jabot. The sleeves are unlined and extend in a full puff to the elbow, where they are finished by a wide ruffle of embroidery like that around the neck. A pointed belt is worn.

HOUSE WAIST OF CREAM BATISTE.
