King Eagle Screams

By Thornton W. Burgess

Be it wrong or be it right, Few ignore the voice of night.

What Mother Nature says is true. Might has its own way, regardless of whether it is right or wrong.

King Eagle had left the Great Mountain where he like King and started to look for a breakfast.

"I think," said King Eagle to himself, "I would like a fish for my breakfast. I wonder if frigid Plunger the Osprey has the same feeling."

King Eagle spread his great wings and left the Great Mountain. As he flew he kept his eyes fixed on Plunger the Osprey, who was circling high above the flooded Green Meadows.

Plunger suddenly shot down toward the water. There was a great splash and the big fish disappeared completely.

"Drop that fish!" he screamed. "Drop that fish!" he screamed. "Drop that fish!" he screamed.

"Drop that fish!" he screamed.

Newsprint May See Price War

VANCOUVER (CP)—James D. Zellerbach of San Francisco, president of Crown Zellerbach Corporation, says he believes the newspaper and pulp business will be in a state of overproduction within two years.

Mr. Zellerbach told a press conference here a price war could develop unless the industry is "wise about it."

The remedy, he says, is to "hold expansion for a year or two," and if necessary, curtail output to "85 or 90 per cent of what it is now."

Part of the trouble arises because "a lot of people are announcing expansion who have never been in the business before and who have never lived through a depression."

"Kraft pulp and board are likely to be in overproduction next year and newsprint in two years," he said.

Expansion planned in the United States board and paper industry for the years 1956 through 1958 will amount to "about $2,000,000,000," which will increase capacity by 5,000,000 tons a year.

Present capacity is 32,000,000 tons. Thus, in three years, he said, production would be increased by 12 to 13 per cent year while normal demand called for an increase of only three per cent.

"For a good many years the financial community wasn't very interested in paper industry securities," Mr. Zellerbach said. "Now improved earnings are attracting a lot of people."
