

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 15, 1889.

Notes and Clippings.

The ornamental fountain on Queen Square will soon be playing; but—what about that fence?

This Province has much to gain from summer tourists; and many tourists are attracted by the sport which is found in rivers and ponds well stocked with fish, and woods and fields and shores abounding in fattened game.

Every dam, slide or other obstruction across or in any stream where the Minister of Marine and Fisheries determines it to be necessary for the public interest that a fish pass should exist, shall be provided by the owner.

Telegraphic Tips.

HALIFAX, June 11.—Mackerel fishing reported good about Canso, the traps in that vicinity taking good catches of fine quality.

LIVERPOOL, June 12.—As the steamer City of New York was about to sail for New York, her crew struck and came ashore.

GLASGOW, June 13.—The striking dock laborers along the Clyde show no signs of weakening. There are now 6,000 men around the harbor who have quit work.

LONDON, June 13.—The Paris correspondent of the Times appears inclined to make fun of the labor congress in the French capital.

BERLIN, June 13.—The American commissioners to the Samoan conference have received Secretary Blaine's reply with regard to the treaty concluded by the conference.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Senator Callum, of the committee on railway relations with Canada, in an interview, said he had already made up his mind that ultimately Canada and the United States will have to inaugurate arrangements corresponding to the present inter-state law.

LONDON, June 13.—While Gladstone was passing through the town of Wadebridge, in Cornwall, to-day, a missile, believed to have been a cartridge, was thrown at his carriage.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Ship State of Maine, of Newcastle, Eng., arrived yesterday from Hong Kong, after a voyage of 92 days, which the captain claims to be the fastest time on record.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—Chinese advices report the city of Luchow, in Upper Pantang, was nearly destroyed by fire, and the loss of life, burned or trampled to death, is estimated at ten thousand.

LONDON, June 13.—Mr. Gladstone yesterday addressed 6,000 people in the Market place, at Falmouth. He said he believed the dissenters were conscientious and required time to master the Irish problem, and when the hour of triumph arrived, there would be a Liberal reunion.

Varia.

English papers this week do not contain much news. There seems to be a state of quiescence on the continent. The king of Italy has been received at Berlin, and after much banqueting and state ceremonial has departed.

I have been accused of somewhat approaching irreverence toward the "Law," because of some humorous verses which appeared in this column upon "Lawyers," a very different subject (permit me to say) to "Law."

The Press owes nothing to the judges and lawyers who persistently misrepresented and perverted the English law by refusing to leave the question of "Libel" or "No Libel" to the jury.

And yet there is a great deal of truth in what was said by that greatest of England's statesmen, Edmund Burke: "I remove my suit; I fly from equity to law, and from law to equity; equal uncertainty attends me everywhere; and a mistake in which I had no share decides at once upon my liberty and my property, sending one from the court to the prison, and adjudging my family to beggary and famine."

The "judicious Hooker" was a great divine, he was distinctively not a lawyer, and therefore he is speaking of "law" in the abstract, when he says: "Of law there can be no loss acknowledged than that her seat is in the bosom of God; her voice the harmony of the world."

This quotation (from Hooker) will, I fear, sound strangely to those who have lost their property, by, as Mr. Burke expressed it, "a mistake in which the victim had no share." But in many cases, has it not been found, that the law-makers of our country have been the very best friends of the rascal and the rogue?

And yet English instinct and prejudice are strong within me. I have very little pleasure in attending courts of law, but I have never witnessed a criminal trial without feeling a glow of complacency when I have heard the learned Judge, taking uncommon pains to prevent the prisoner letting out the truth.

that it would be "un-English" to examine the prisoner. I suppose that with common fairness it would not be possible to confuse him, unless he lied; and if he did lie, I imagine he could hardly be brought to confession too soon.

There is a great deal of truth in what Swift said: Laws are like cobwebs which may catch small flies, but let wasps and hornets break through.

I close my remarks with an extract from a quaint and now almost forgotten writer—Felltham—which seems to me accurately to describe the position of those who get themselves involved in a law suit: "To go to law is for two persons to kindle a fire at their own cost, to warm others, and to singe themselves to cinders; and because they cannot agree as to what is truth and equity, they will both agree to unplume themselves that others may decorate themselves with their feathers."
