4 Accidents Reported By Summerside RCMP

SUMMERSIDE — The local RCMP detachment investigated four accidents over the weekend, the most serious occurring Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on the western highway some 300 yards past the military road leading to the RCAF station.

Involved in the accident was a 1955 model car driven by Alyre Gallant of Miscouche which was demolished.

Mr. Gallant was taken to Prince County Hospital suffering from a neck cut plus other less serious injuries. He was reported resting comfortably by Dr. James L. Saunders last night.

A second accident only a short distance from the site of the Gallant incident occurred Sunday morning at approximately 12.30 between a 1964 half ton truck driven by James Clarence Campbell of Miscouche and a 1957 vehicle driven by Burnell Everett MacLeod of Sherbrooke, P.E.I.

There were no injuries but damage to the two vehicles was estimated to be $800.

Saturday afternoon at approximately 1.15 a 1964 vehicle driven by Marven Cumming Lowe of RCAF Summerside was in collision with a 1961 model driven by another member of the RCAF, Peter Nelson Devana, on the Sherbrooke Road. Damage to the two vehicles was estimated to be $175.

The fourth accident investigated by the Summerside detachment occurred at the Wilmot Bridge Sunday at 1.10 a.m.

Vehicles involved were a 1964 model driven by Joseph Russell Corr of Kinkora and a 1957 half ton truck driven by Edward Joseph Gaudet of St. Louis, P.E.I.

Damage to the automobile was estimated to be $450 and to the truck $300.

Recent Accidents Mean Greater Blood Need

Blood usage in this province's hospitals has increased considerably during the first seven months of 1964, according to officials at the Red Cross Lab. here where all the detailed work of cross-matching is carried on.

It has taken just about 100 more bottles of blood to meet the requirements than it did in the same period last year, and some of this increase is attributed to the large number of accidents there have occurred in the past few months. For instance 14 bottles of blood had to be cross-matched immediately after Wednesday's early morning accident at DeSable in which eight people were involved, and an additional number of bottles were required the following day.

A letter just received by provincial Red Cross headquarters in Charlottetown from the Maritime depot of the Red Cross blood transfusion service at Halifax states that it is always difficult to keep an adequate supply of blood on hand during the summer months because sickness takes on holidays and the amount of blood required is practically the same in July and August as in other months. However, the letter continues, the response at clinics during these two months, because of vacations, is hardly ever in excess of the quota, and often smaller numbers than anticipated turn up to make donations.

EMERGENCY CLINIC

It was an accumulation of these "just a little below the quota" responses that made it necessary to hold an emergency clinic in Halifax on July 17. The response at this clinic was reported as very gratifying and brought the depot up to a reasonably safe level of supply. (The Maritime depot at Halifax distributes blood to hospitals in P.E.I., as well as in Nova Scotia.)

This letter goes on to say that another special clinic is being arranged in Halifax for Thursday, Aug. 13, as well as a concerted effort being made to ensure a good response at the regularly scheduled Halifax clinics in order to avoid another shortage.

"All of these conditions," said F. A. S. Jones, provincial chairman of the Red Cross blood donor committee, "point to the necessity of every clinic being held in P.E.I. during the week of August 16 to reach or exceed the objective."

It was learned that 1,080 donors is the minimum objective for the August clinics to be held at Hunter River, North Rustico, Kinkora, Eldon, Morell, Souris, Cardigan and Montague.

Committees in each of these centres are now at work preparing for their annual blood donor effort at which they will try to achieve this year's goal which is "A 100 per cent result in every centre during P.E.I.'s Centennial Year."

lam was wakened by a shot. He said he rushed to the street and saw the boy lying in a pool of blood on the sidewalk.

SHOT IN HEAD

About 10 minutes later, a few blocks distant, the Squires boy was shot in the head while he walked along a footpath near the home of H. P. MacKeen, Nova Scotia's lieutenant - governor.

A blue bicycle, believed used by the slayer, was found in the woods near the third victim's body.

City police, with the RCMP, CNR police, a squad from the army provost corps and officers from neighboring Dartmouth police, started an all-night search for the slayer.

Armed with automatic rifles, shotguns and pistols, they combed the district. Children were warned off the streets.

An RCMP tracking dog from Truro was rushed to the scene. The dog was reported to have made some progress but was hampered by heavy mist after midnight.

The search continued throughout the night and the forces regrouped early Sunday for another hunt.

ONE QUESTIONED

The wanted youth is described as 15, about five-feet-five, with reddish hair. One boy resembling the description was questioned and released.

Police said they hope an autopsy would produce a bullet that could lead to positive identification of the type of weapon used.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Margaret Smith, mother of the wounded boy, appealed to the mother of the slayer to turn her son over to police.

Michael Smith, from his hospital bed, told how he was shot.

The boy survived emergency surgery after a bullet entered one side of his face and came out the other. He still doesn't know two other boys were killed by his assailant.

With surgical bandages around his face, Michael said he was about two blocks from his home when the shooting occurred.

He said the gunman rode past him, turned around, rode back and shot him.

"I saw a bicycle coming up so I moved and it went on up. And then I saw it coming back down.

"I blacked out for a minute and then I woke up and got up on my feet.

"I fell down. This guy (a boy) came and he helped me."

Michael said he didn't see a weapon.

MOTHER GETS OLDER

LONDON (AP) — A surgeon said Friday the maximum age at which women can become mothers has steadily increased in recent years. A careful study of hospital records, Dr. Donald Frommer wrote in the British Medical Journal, reveals mothers are often fertile past 50. This averages four years later than in their grandmother's day, he said.

Princesses selected were the Inman Plumbing entry, Donna Andrews and Miss White Rose, Judy Compton. Another competition Saturday was the selection of the most dignified grandfather and the winner was Bert Brown of St. Eleanors.
