SHAW, WATSON MACNAUGHTS ADMIRE SCISSORS GIFT

Official Ceremonies Open Gulf Garden Foods Ltd.

GEORGETOWN — A large number of citizens was on hand at the Gulf Garden Foods Ltd. plant here Saturday as Premier Walter R. Shaw cut the ribbon to officially open the new plant.

The ceremony was opened by C. A. Davis, president of Gulf Garden Foods Ltd., who also acted as master of ceremonies.

The platform party was met at the main office door of the plant by W. C. Bennett, vice president of Bathurst Marine Ltd.

The opening ceremonies were held on the wharf at the south end of the building, where the platform party was seated. The west side of the wharf was lined with flag poles from which flew the flag of Canada, the Union Jack, the provincial flag, the flag of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland. On the east side of the wharf the steel draggers Gulf Gull and Gulf Guard were docked and fully dressed in flags.

ADDRESS GATHERING

Addresses were given by Mr Davis, Premier Walter R. Shaw, Hon. J. Watson MacNaught, Hon. Leo F. Rossiter, John Mullally, MP, Kaare Graesdal, of Norinvest in Oslo, Norway; Laus Nergaard, Acting Norwegian Consul General in Canada; Dr. M. L. Bonnell, and Jens Moe, chairman of the board of directors of Gulf Garden Foods Ltd.

All speakers stressed the magnitude of the new plant, its modern construction and equipment, and the important place it would fill in the general economy of the whole province.

Premier Shaw said that the people of Georgetown and the province have caught the great significance of the great project and that it was only the seed in a great and expanding industrial development that will take place in the province to augment the other phases of industrial development that have been taking place in this province.

With the population explosion in the world this province has a large place to fill in feeding a hungry world, he said.

OPEN FOR INSPECTION

Following the speeches and ribbon cutting ceremony, the plant was open for inspection. The official party and invited guests were later entertained on the plant's second floor with refreshments and a buffet and the general public was served coffee and sandwiches in the ground floor area of the plant.

A teenagers' dance was held in the plant in the evening, under the sponsorship of the Georgetown Lions Club. On Sunday the trawlers Gulf Gull and Gulf Guard took a large number of visitors and guests on a sail off Georgetown harbor where they were shown how the trawlers drop their nets or trawls, as they would in actual fishing operations.

During the afternoon's ceremony members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Georgetown Police were in hand to assist in handling the large crowd.

A telegram, received from Dr. A. Kennedy, former Mayor of Georgetown, who is presently hospitalized in Charlottetown, was read by Mr. Davis. Dr. Kennedy expressed his regrets in not being able to be present and wished Gulf Garden Foods Ltd. every success.

High Commissioner Of India Visits Island

B. K. ACHARYA

India's high commissioner to Canada, B. K. Acharya, is currently on his first goodwill tour of the Maritimes. He arrived in Charlottetown from Fredericton, N.B., Saturday, but will be leaving for Halifax this afternoon.

Although his visit to P.E.I. is a short one, Mr. Acharya says he is enjoying himself very much having mixed a little pleasure with his business duties.

With his wife and youngest son, Mr. Acharya took Sunday to visit Woodleigh Replicas and the P.E.I. Wildlife Park at North Rustico and got a first-hand look at the Island countryside.

Today he will pay official visits to Premier Shaw and Lieutenant Governor MacDonald as well as Mayor Cox. Following this he leaves by car for Halifax.

VISIT EVERY PROVINCE

This visit to the Maritimes marks a continuation in the commissioner's efforts to visit every province in Canada during his tenure of office. He says he hopes to visit each province at least once a year.

Mr. Acharya, who took over his duties in Ottawa last year, expects to be in Canada approximately three years, the usual term of office for a high commissioner. "So I probably will be back here about this same time next year", he said last evening.

Before coming to Canada Mr. Acharya served as deputy high commissioner in Pakistan, as minister in Cambodia and as ambassador to Czechoslovakia and Rumania. Such diversified travels have given him command over such languages as English, French and German as well as those of his own country.

SPOKESMAN FOR INDIA

Among his duties as high commissioner to Canada Mr. Acharya is responsible for the affairs of all Indians here, is the official spokesman for his country, and assists in whatever way possible in promoting trade and goodwill between the countries.

While in Halifax this week he will meet with Indian university students there to discuss any problems they might have.

In the world of trade, the commissioner pointed out that all the tea Canadians drink comes from India or Ceylon, particularly India. Although Indian textiles have found a good market here in the past, he said, more emphasis has been placed on simpler manufactured items such as transmission towers which India has sold to Alberta. "We have hopes for trade such as this in the Maritimes too", he said.

Long, Hard Road Seen Ahead In Viet Nam Conflict

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Lewis W. Walt foresees a long, bloody road to victory over the Viet Cong and declares that in the end Vietnamese — not Americans— must achieve it.

Walt is the husky, soft-spoken commander of 23,000 U.S. marines in Viet Nam. He was a top field leader in the Second World War and the Korean War.

"The objective in Viet Nam is different from that in any previous war," he said Friday. "The battle here is for people, not for terrain. Our whole object is to get the people out of the hands of the Viet Cong and deprive the Communists of their most vital resource.

"Guerrillas can't exist without the support of the people and the food, intelligence, recruits and protection they can provide."

Not all U.S. senior officers in Viet Nam support this theory of unconventional warfare with the same fervor, though phases of the French Indochina war might be considered to bear him out.

Walt said he believes his marines and the other U.S. troops can only serve as a deterrent against major Viet Cong military moves aimed at chopping up and taking over the country.

He feels the job of establishing the wide areas now under Viet Cong control must be handled by the Vietnamese with U.S. support.

Jimmy Birt, 13-year-old son of Mrs. Richard Birt, 40 Confederation Street, Parkdale, suffered the loss of the index finger to his left hand and injury to his thumb and another finger Thursday evening. The accident occurred when the young lad was operating an electric bench saw in the backyard of his home. He was taken to the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

More CS Members Ask Pay Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Another 65,000 civil servants will be knocking on the government's door if changes are recommended in pay revision machinery as a result of the current postal dispute.

This notice was served on the government Wednesday by Claude Edwards, president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada.

Mr. Edwards made the point in a statement issued following a meeting Tuesday with Judge J. C. Anderson, government-appointed commissioner to look into the pay dispute that touched off a string of walkouts by postal employees.

Judge Anderson is to make recommendations on recent pay raises announced by the government for civil servants in Group D, the category including mail workers. He is to tackle the postal workers first, then study the other civil servants in the group.

RE-SUBMIT PROPOSALS

Mr. Edwards said that if the judge proposes "some new system affecting the pay revision machinery to Group D classes, the federation would go back to the government with submissions on behalf of the last B group salary revisions which were also far below what the federation considered were adequate raises."

Group B is the largest pay grouping with some 65,000 civil servants, many of them in clerical and administrative positions. Aug. 20, 1964, the government announced increases averaging 2½ to 3½ per cent for hem, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1963.

There are 56,000 employees in Group D. Their increases announced July 16, and retroactive to Oct. 1, 1964, averaged 7.3 per cent.

Shacks In Rio De Janeiro Giving Way To Small Homes

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — This Brazilians's city's favelas, colonies of shacks built of wood scraps, old sheet metal and flattened gasoline drums are gradually being cleaned out. Often their residents move reluctantly.

As part of Governor Carlos Lacerda's campaign to clean out the favelas, two suburban cities have been built some 30 miles to the north of downtown Rio.

They are financed by the U.S. backed Alliance - for - Progress aid program for Latin America.

Many ex - favelados look at their new brick and cement homes and distrust and resent the long commuting to their old jobs—often two hours each way, but others are enthusiastic. Says laborer Jose Soares, 35: "There is just no comparison. Now my children will be able to live like human beings."

At that moment Lacerda is cleaning out the city's most infamous favela Esqueleto (the Skeleton).

3,200 FAMILIES INVOLVED

Nearly 30 years old, it began in the abandoned concrete skeleton of an unfinished hospital building and gradually expanded until its population reached nearly 18,000.

The favela's 3,200 families are moving at the rate of 30 a day.

As the favelados move out, demolition men tear the shacks down to prevent others from moving in.

While far from luxurious, the houses in the new suburbs are clean and comfortable. They are sold on credit by the state government, with 15 years to pay.

One - bedroom houses cost about $5 a month (15 per cent of the minimum monthly wage). The two bedroom houses cost 16.5 per cent of the minimum wage.

Scattered in the suburbs as well as in the heart of world-famous Copacabana, the favelas and their 500,000 inhabitants have long been a headache to Rio's city fathers.

By re-settling the favelados and tearing down their estimated 180,000 shacks, Lacerda hopes to end the problem, and at the same time put a dent in the city's staggering statistics on disease and ignorance.

MRS. JOHN MacNutt presents a gift to Dr. Benson Riehl as a token of appreciation from the Women's Institutes in the Kensington region for the outstanding leadership he has given in the promotion of the Day Camp. Mrs. Frank MacNutt, co-chairman with Dr. Riehl, looks on. Mrs. Arthur Campbell, president of P.E.I. Women's Institute spoke at the closing ceremonies and expressed appreciation to the Red Cross, the Kensington Lion's Club and the Department of Education.

Badge Presentation Marks Day Camp End

Dr. Benson Riehl and Mrs. Frank MacNutt, co-chairmen of the Kensington region water safety committee presented Red Cross Water Safety badges to hundreds of beginner, junior, intermediate and senior swimmers on Friday at the Day Camp which operated for 10 days at Clinton on the private property of Sutherland Montgomery.

A total of 446 youngsters from 21 school districts attended this camp.

Each day they had physical education and aquatic training.

Each child was tested for physical fitness and the results will be used as a basis for further physical education in day camps which are sponsored jointly by the department of education and the P.E.I. Red Cross Water Safety service.

W.A. Currie, president P.E.I. Red Cross, and Iphegenie Arsenault addressed the large group of interested adults who were present for the official closing of the 1965 camp.

Pirate Ship Fitted Out

ST. HUBERT, Que. (CP)—The Marechal family of St. Hubert is turning into a crew of pirates these days.

Gilbert Marechal, 32, bought an old Gaspe fishing boat three years ago and is converting his craft into a pirate ship, complete with masts, rigging, quarter-deck, crow's nest, bowsprit and all the trimmings.

"I'm just making the cannon now," he says, "seven for each side of the ship, 14 in all. We'll use firecrackers in them as ammunition."

Dead-End Road For Dropouts

"If someone had only told me—". That's the refrain, repeated over and over again, by dropouts who said, "I'm different. I can make it." Read in August Reader's Digest how discouraging it is to be "last hired, first fired—and going nowhere." Is it really that bad? This important article says, "Much worse"!
