Canadian Competition.

Is the notable success of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the prospective settlement of the Canadian North-west by millions of intelligent producers, and the possibility of a preferential trade policy on behalf of the British Empire under which Canada will possess an advantage in the British markets, there are causes for the fear that Canadian competition will, in the near future, be hot and strong for producers in the States. This point is brought out strongly by Mr. James Taylor, who has for twenty-one years past been the Consul of the United States at Winnipeg, and who has made a special study of the Canadian North-west. Mr. Taylor says:—

The parallelism included between longitude 100 and 170 West of Greenwich, and latitude 50 degrees to 70 degrees is identical in climate and as rich in resources as the equal area in Europe, including between the same meridians of latitude and extending 60 degrees east and 10 degrees west of Greenwich. The European parallelisms include England, Ireland, Scotland, Denmark, and Sweden, Belgium, Holland, and is represented by the cities of London, Liverpool, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Nijni-Novgorod and Archangel. Over all the territory included in the North American parallelism, the opening of spring occurs at the same time almost to a day. It is known by the test of experience that wheat can be grown as far north as latitude 60, and by far the finest wheat which I have ever seen came from Port Vermillion, on Peace River in latitude 59, longitude 116. Wheat, barley, oats, peas, all the grains and vegetables, are successfully raised at the Mission Stations throughout this region, and the farmers of Manitoba have had greater average crops per acre for many years past than the American farmers in Minnesota and Dakota.

"The causes for this remarkable extension north-west of cereal production are: first, the continually decreasing altitude, the influence of the warm wind of the Pacific blowing through the low mountain passes of the north, and the fact that the long summer days of higher latitudes give a vast deal more of sunshine during the growing season than is in the case further south, while the cold winters prevent the development of insect pests which are so injurious in milder climates. The causes are certainly sufficient to explain the fact so well demonstrated by experience, that all grains are produced in the highest quality and the greatest quantity per acre near the northernmost limit at which they will grow.

"Within five years from the present time at the present rate of progress, and within three years if the work is hastened a little, there will be a clear channel for vessels drawing 14 feet of water through Canadian territory, all the way from Lake Superior to the sea. Six feet of water in the Erie Canal and two transfers of freight can no more compete with 14 feet of water through the Canadian canals and no transfer, than a wheelbarrow can compete with an express train. The canal boat carrying two hundred tons, drawn by mules at the rate of four miles per hour, can by no possibility compete with the steamship carrying two thousand tons propelled by steam at the rate of fourteen miles per hour. And while the United States farmer has held his own fairly well against the semi-civilized wheat growers of India, I do not see how he can hope to win in competition with men of the same race, just as intelligent, with a climate no more rigorous, with a soil as least as fertile, and with transportation facilities immeasurably superior. The great plains of the Canadian North-west are unsettled now, but when once the conditions of soil and climate which there exist are supplemented by facilities for transportation not surpassed, if equalled by those of any other region, I believe the Canadian Northwest will settle up with a race of hardy, intelligent and prosperous people, and will become the granary of the world. He who can most cheaply reach the markets of the world can control the markets of the world."

There is encouragement for Canadians in these words of the United States Consul. Another American authority, looking at the same conditions, declared that "the day is near at hand when American farmers must meet such competition as they never met before, and such as few of them have ever dreamed of."

"A Marked Impression."

MR. ERASTUS WIMAN has issued a report on the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire. He says: "That which seemed to be the most marked impression reflected from the assemblage and its proceedings was the intense loyalty to Great Britain." "This sentiment, he adds, "found expression on almost every occasion, and it was a testimony not only to the liberality of British institutions, but to the sagacity and skill with which government had been administered, that throughout countries so numerous and areas so broad, with interests so divergent and a population so enormous, there was no sentiment reflected except that of an affectionate veneration for the governing power. Throughout the proceedings this was the paramount feature of the occasion, and so far as it could be exhibited, the ties of affection which bind colonies and dependencies alike are strong and apparent from every land. That this should be so was a remarkable circumstance, when, as one of the resolutions stated, the British Empire covered no less than one-eighth of the habitable globe, containing a population of 350 million souls."

The next strongest impression made upon Mr. Wiman was "the need or urgency for a trade readjustment!"

Personal.

The Duke of York (Prince George of Wales) is the only member of the Royal Family who can dance a genuine sailor's hornpipe. He steps he learnt while a young cadet, and it is told how that often he and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, would get into a cabin together, whilst the latter whistled Prince George would step it out. An old man-of-war's man told the writer that for smartness in tying the various sailor's knots with the rope, the prince could scarcely be beaten.

A REPORT.—It is reported that the Blake slightly grazed the point of a sandbar on St. Peter's Island when going out this morning. She was got off very shortly afterwards with little trouble.

THE ADMIRAL'S SHIP BLAKE.—We learn from the head steward that the ship was never so well supplied since she was in commission as she was at Charlottetown. Why should this be not so when she was supplied by Blake Brothers?

OLD SUBSCRIBERS.—Three men have been taking the Yarmouth Herald continuously for upwards of fifty-nine years, viz. J. A. Grant, Heman Gardner and Benjamin Eilen-weald. All are yet in the enjoyment of good health.

THE RIGHT MAN.—It is neither Lord Salisbury nor Lord Shaftesbury whose ancestral estates are to be sold to Lord Iveagh. The hard-up peer is Lord Althorpe, nicknamed "Bucks," who has led a fast life and now has to part with one of the finest estates in England.

SKODA'S DISCOVERY. The Great German-American Remedy for Heart, Nerves, Liver, Kidneys, Blood. Guarantee contract with every bottle. Pay only for the good you receive. At all Druggists, $1.00 per bottle, six bottles $5.50. If you want to know about SKODA'S REMEDIES, send postal for "Morning Light."

THE HOP.—The hop on the fact the first ship was, after all, a great success. This was greatly owing to the fact that the weather cleared up somewhat in the afternoon. While the guests, of whom there was a very large number, were being transferred to the ship in cutters and steam launches, the harbour presented a very lively appearance. The admiral received his visitors on the quarter deck, over which was stretched a large awning. The deck was rather wet at first for dancing, but by the time the inspection of the ship had been made, it had become dry enough for the "light fantastic toe."

An application of chalk put the deck in first-class condition and soon it was crowded with dancers. The music by the ship's band was perfect. A most delightful luncheon was spread below for the refreshment of the guests, and the courtesy of the officers of the ship enabled sight-seers to fully satisfy their curiosity as to the guns, torpedoes, &c., which make up the Blake's armament. Two or three extra dances were given after the regular programme was exhausted, and at seven o'clock the boats took the visitors back to the wharves. An additional pleasure was imparted to the affair by little Miss Basset, who danced the Highland Fling on the deck, to the music of the band and the delight of her admiring audience.

An Explanation.

SIR.—The Guardian of this morning says that I was fined $100 for selling liquor in a room where other goods are sold. This is not so. I was fined $100 for selling a bottle of brandy (ordered by telephone) to a gentleman who wished to use it for medicinal purposes in his family. It is hard enough, under the above circumstances, to pay $100, without a wrong report of the affair going abroad, especially as a brother druggist for the same offence was fined ($1.62) one dollar and sixty-two cents, and a liquor man got clear for ($25) twenty-five dollars.

Yours, D. O'M. REDDIN.

The Royal Sovereign.

THE LARGEST WARSHIP AFOAT—SATISFACTORY TRIAL TRIP OF THE LATEST ADDITION TO THE ROYAL NAVY—A FLOATING FORTRESS.

The official trial-trip of H. M. S. Royal Sovereign, the largest war vessel in the world, took place recently with many of the officers of the English navy on board. The ship was tested after being completely coaled, with all her main and auxiliary armaments in place, and therefore practically ready for sea. As compared with the heaviest ironclads of France and Italy the Royal Sovereign far exceeds in displacement and speed any of the vessels belonging to these nations, and in the opinion of the leading foreign engineering authorities is a marvel of marine construction and engineering.

This recent addition to the naval force of Great Britain was constructed at Portsmouth, and is 380 feet in length, 75 feet in breadth, and of a displacement of 14,150 tons. Like all the battleships of the present day, there are twin screws with two sets of main engines, which are designed to indicate 9,000 horse power with natural draught, 13,000 indicated horse power with forced draught. There are in addition powerful hydraulic machinery for working the gun elevators, and duplicate sets of engines for handling the barbettes. The armament consists of four 67-ton 13½ inch guns, mounted in two barbettes, placed fore and aft; ten of the new 6 inch quick firing guns, and twenty-five 6 pounder, 3 pounder and machine guns. The projectiles for the large guns weigh 1250 pounds, and the loading is done by hydraulic power entirely. A prominent feature is the high speed at which every item of the machinery is designed to work, and the consequent swiftness of fire that is obtained. The turning engines, for example, are fifty per cent. more powerful than those in other vessels, and the breech mechanism, ammunition lifts, and rammers all work with enhanced rapidity. It is expected that there will be no difficulty in maintaining fire from each barbette of two rounds every two minutes. The 6 inch rapid-firing guns are of an improved design, and were especially built to use the new ammunition, cordite. The 67 ton guns are each 36 feet long. During the three hours run the vessel made the speed of 18 1 knots, the collected mean horse-power being 13,312 or 312 above the contract.

The regulation called for a full power trial for four hours, but during the last hour the tube ends began to leak, and the tests were brought to a close. The damage did not prevent the gunnery trials, which were eminently satisfactory.

Russia in Pamir.

CHINA AND ENGLAND MOVING AGAINST AGGRESSION.

China and Great Britain are both moving against Russian aggression, while the Afghans also claim part of the disputed territory, and are attempting to hold it both against the Chinese and Russians. The British are decidedly strengthened for opposition to Russian advance by the recent British conquest of the petty states of Hunza and Nagar, situated between the little Pamir and the frontiers of Kashmir. The allied states of Hunza and Nagar comprise all the valleys draining into the Kanjot or Hunza river, which flows into the Gilgit river two miles below Gilgit fort.

This region is extremely difficult of access, to which fact is due the impunity with which the tribesmen have hitherto been able to carry on their raids into the countries of their neighbors. The valleys originate in a gigantic mountain system containing some of the highest peaks in the Himalayas, Mount Rakapshi, which towers above Galt being 25,000 feet high, while a number of other summits exceed 24,000 feet. Immense glaciers descend into the ravines, the Nagar river itself rising in the vastest of known glaciers, which is nearly eight miles in length. Surrounded thus by granite precipices and huge wastes of ice and snow, affording only a hazardous passage during a few summer months into the neighboring country, Hunza-Nagar has but one vulnerable point, the ravine of the Kanjot river, for an invading force. Even this entrance is practically closed during the summer months, for often the river, swollen by the melting snows, becomes an unfordable and raging torrent, overflowing the whole bottom of the valley at many points. Holding this virtually impregnable position, the British are much more strongly prepared than a year ago to obstruct the Russian advance, should the Russians endeavor to encroach upon British territory. At present the Russian invasion is confined to territory beyond the line of British possession, although approaching dangerously near to it.

A despatch from Peking states that the Chinese government is already on the alert. An explanation has been demanded from both Russia and Afghanistan for encroaching upon territory claimed by the Chinese. The Chinese forces are in the Pamir region, commanded by General Chang, without waiting for any explanations, have already encountered the Afghans in a bloody conflict at Saratash. The Chinese were considerably outnumbered, but they fought resolutely, and only retreated in the face of overwhelming force.

The British Indian authorities are not indifferent to the condition of affairs, and are anxious to cross both the Chinese and the Afghans to their coming danger from Russia.
