

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MARCH 17, 1883.

Notes of the Week.

—St. Patrick's Day! Well there are some signs of spring. But winter has still a very firm hold upon the land.

—The "Wiggins storm" was not the "greatest storm ever seen on earth"—though it might have been but for the checking and compensating forces at work in nature.

—Mr. Egan, Secretary for the Irish National Land League, has arrived in America. In England it is stated that he ran away for fear of being implicated in the work of "the Invincibles."

—A proper step has been taken toward the collection of vital statistics. Dr. Johnston will unquestionably perform his duty conscientiously and well.

—Indications are not wanting that our farmers are seriously thinking of adapting their mode of agriculture to the needs of the times and the circumstances of the country.

—Dynamite—the infernal agent of devils incarnate—has been at work under the very Seat of Liberty. We hear of its use in Russia with horror, but not with very great surprise.

—The way the sons of the Emerald Isle in this City celebrated the Feast of their Patron, Saint Patrick, was in the highest degree creditable.

St. Patrick's Day.

The members of the Benevolent Irish Society celebrated the feast of Ireland's Patron Saint, to-day by a procession to St. Dunstan's Cathedral, where a grand mass was celebrated at 10 o'clock by Rev. Father De Finance, assisted by Rev. A. J. McDonald, as Deacon, and Rev. J. Corbett, as Sub-Deacon.

After the Mass the procession, which numbered nearly a hundred reformed, and headed by the Band of the 82nd Battalion marched through the principal streets of the City.

To-night an entertainment will be given in Market Hall, under the auspices of the Society. A first-class programme has been prepared, and the entertainment will, no doubt, be largely attended.

Mischievous Wiggins.

Wiggins is said to have made an oracular observation about the condition of the head that dips into the future, which, however, cannot possibly apply to Wiggins' own head, as he has never yet dipped into the future, but only pretended.

Plon-Plon's Future.

A Hungarian journalist has had an interview with Prince Napoleon in the Avenue d'Antin. The account, it is stated, "indicate that the Prince is prepared for sudden marching order."

"I am a democrat and insist upon the nation being consulted; but I have not a grain of reaction or despotism in me. The French people are of the Latin race, and their past, their historical traditions, military and Catholic faith render them fit to exist under an authoritative sovereign."

The Years of March Storms.

In order that the value of Mr. Wiggins' predictions may be appreciated by the tinorous part of the public it is only necessary that the records of past years be glanced at. Mr. Wiggins, like a sensible prophet, chose that one of the months of the year during which nature, in the struggle between winter and summer, tries to assert itself.

March, 1872, shook its name like a true monarch of the desert, and roared at sundry times to the tune of sixty miles an hour throughout the gulf of Mexico and the South Atlantic States.

In 1873 March also proved to be a very stormy month, eleven severe disturbances passed across the country.

In 1874 there were no less than twelve storms or cyclones that traversed the country from the Rocky Mountains, doing great damage.

March, 1875, showed a severe storm raging along the New Jersey and Gulf coasts during the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th. Eleven storms, most of which were severe, visited the country that month.

The storms of March, 1876, were eight in number. In many places the wind blew over fifty miles per hour. The Atlantic and Gulf coasts were the greatest sufferers.

In March, 1877, there were twelve disturbances, accompanied by destructive gales.

March, 1878, will be long remembered by the terrific storms both in the Atlantic coast and in the Northwest. The snow storm in the latter district was the most severe on record.

The meteorological record of March, 1879, would impress any one who studies it that it is a very simple matter to "predict" a great storm during the month, with immense chances of success.

In March, 1880, sixteen disturbances crossed the country, mainly from the northwest, but some of which caused gales of wind amounting to fifty-six miles an hour along the Atlantic coast.

In March, 1881, there were nine storms reported, during the movement of which such wind velocities were attained as: Delaware Breakwater, 70 miles; Cape May, 44 miles; Sandy Hook, 56 miles; Thatcher's Island, 66 miles; New York, 48, and Hatteras, 58 miles.

From the above it will be seen that it would be by far more difficult to guess at a clear day than a bad one during this month.

Schwatka and the Ducks.

Lieut. Frederick Schwatka, commander of the late Franklin Search expedition, has detailed in the New York Forest and Stream some of his Arctic hunting adventures.

The compass is a sluggish, unreliable instrument in the northern part of the bay, and it became necessary to establish a good long north and south line while conducting my survey, and for reasons unnecessary to explain, I fixed upon the expedient of doing so by the culmination of Jupiter.

Too Heavy Clothing.

Woman's clothing, nowadays, is too heavy, in the opinion of the British medical profession, or at least of part of it. Since ladies have taken to ulsters, overcoats, felt skirts, felt hats, they have imposed upon themselves, it is contended a weight that is injurious.

Table with columns for Women's and Men's Garments, listing items like Seal-skin Dolmans, Fur-lined do., and Dr. Sayre Ulster with their respective weights.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

FRANCIS H. ATKINS, A. A. Surgeon, U.S.A. says:—"For dyspepsia, whether in the lean or corpulent, in nervous debility and in night sweats of consumption, it has commonly given speedy benefit, and some of my army friends are quite enthusiastic about it."

MARRIED.

At Highfield, on the 13th instant, by the Rev. H. P. Coxparthwaite, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Pierce, Mr. Samuel C. Pierce to Jane, daughter of Mr. John Wyatt.

DIED.
