NEW DAYS
Chapter 43

In spite of her tiredness Pandora was awake early next morning. Her tiny room was so attractive she lay looking at it for some time, taking in with pleasure each tiny detail.

Gloria had used her decorative ability to make her cheap little flat into a perfect gem of a home. The guest room, too small for a bed, had a couch instead, with a silky rug of varying tones of blue thrown over it in the daytime. The one window was veiled with yellow net, and had long curtains of French blue linen lined with orange—the gaudy lining just showing now and then. The dressing table was a kitchen table with orange enamelled top and glass over it and a ruffle of blue silk that fell to the floor—orange and blue silk roses edged the top. Gloria, not able to afford a nice dresser, took wooden backed brushes and boxes and painted them orange with colored flowers.

"There was room for a tiny table holding a lamp, and one armchair done in blue and orange cretonne. Pan's trunk went under the bed. "And you limit your supply of clothing to the size of your closet, Gloria had said. But the girl's few things had more than enough room, even in this small closet.

Pandora got up and began to dress. She was sure she had overslept; she slipped out to the kitchen to find it was 8 o'clock—an unheard of hour for the country. But the flat was silent, even Frankie was asleep.

The girl began hunting around for supplies, lighted the gas stove and began making hot biscuits for breakfast. She started coffee too, and found eggs for an omelet. It was a mystery where one ate, for the dining room had been made into a bedroom and playroom for the boy.

She turned at an exclamation from the doorway. Gloria, rolled in a flaming scarlet silk robe, her straight black hair hanging around her shoulders, was standing there smiling with amusement.

"I was awakened by the most delicious smell," she was saying, "I was sure I was dreaming, for I haven't smelled such good coffee for weeks. I had to come back here to be sure it was true."

Dora laughed. She moved about competently, at home in any kitchen poor child! Gloria began putting dishes on a tray—it appeared that breakfast was eaten in the living room. Gloria sat curled up on the couch, her feet under her, about six daily papers scattered about and took her eggs and coffee that way. Frankie appeared in a diminutive bathrobe.

"I'm interviewing six cooks today," Gloria said after she had dressed and was ready to go to her office. "I'll send one along to you, I didn't bring you here to work, you know, but for a rest and a change."

"I'm so glad to be here—I'd rather work to show how glad," Pandora answered.

"Darling child!" Gloria's eyes showed amusement, but her mouth was tender and trembled a little, as it did when something touched her—or hurt her.

Dora decided Frankie was too little to go out. So she put him on the couch with some books, and then began a systematic cleaning of the much neglected apartment. No cook appeared—none came for weeks, but Dora was perfectly happy.

"We haven't had a maid for ages," Frankie informed her. "And as the last ones were simply awful. We only had nurse, and she was so busy taking care of me she couldn't do any work. Mummy says I take a lot of looking after."

"He never got it, if he needed it," Gloria laughed when she got home and this remark was repeated to her. "Nurse fell in love with a sailor, and found the chap reluctant to marry—so she kept Frankie, herself, and everyone else in such a state of nerves and excitement that we were ready to collapse when she'd go off and marry him. They eloped some where."

"Maryland," announced Frankie who knew all the details of the affair.

"You young wretch!" Gloria said with an affectionate laugh, picking him up in her arms. "Will you be a good boy and have your bath and go to bed now? Mummy has people to see."

People always came to tea; Pandora discovered, except when Gloria was out.

"I haven't enough money to entertain," Gloria said once. "But tea costs nothing. It's only necessary to get enough interesting people to sit about and talk."

The girl refused to appear that afternoon. She couldn't face a roomful of strange people. She stayed back in the flat, gave Frankie his bath and supper, and put him to bed. She had a glimpse of men and women sitting about and laughing. Bobby kept coming into the kitchen for more tea and hot water. She saw exquisite dresses, heard new voices and laughter and cheerfully went on working in the kitchen.

She was happy to be near this gaiety without being in it. But this state of affairs Gloria refused to allow.

BAN ON THE DANDELION

HARTFORD, Conn., May 17.—Are juices from dandelion blossoms and rhubarb stalks of "fruit juices" within the meaning of the Volstead act? United States Internal Revenue Collector Robert O. Eaton, of the Connecticut District has asked his superiors in Washington this question.

The Volstead act permits heads of families, upon notifying the Collector, to make a maximum of 200 gallons of "fruit juices," provided such are not "intoxicating in fact." The offices are flooded with notices of intent to make "fruit juices" from dandelion blossoms and rhubarb. Collector Eaton is asking if the juices from those two "vegetables" are "fruit juices."

Dumphy Says He Merely Answers "Tanlac" When Questioned On What Made Such A Fine Change In His Health...

While I was in France during the war I contracted rheumatism from exposure, but Tanlac has completely restored me," said James Frochman Dumphy, 83 Simon St., St. John, N. B., who was overseas two years.

"I had treatment in five hospitals but got so bad I could neither bend over nor walk and could hardly feed myself. My pains were awful and even violent ray treatment did me no good.

"A nurse in a hospital told me she used Tanlac with good results and I tried it. Well, I was soon getting about and now all my pains are gone and I feel simply fine. I sure owe a big debt to Tanlac."

Farewell and Presentation

To Banker and Wife at Hunter River, P. E. Island.

On Wednesday evening, May 10th a large number of the citizens of Hunter River and vicinity, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. MacKenzie to bid them farewell on their departure for Montreal, where Mr. MacKenzie has been promoted to the management of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Dr. J. A. C. Rodgerson acted as Chairman and after remarks appropriate to the occasion he called on the Rev. R. H. Stavert to read an address at the close of which Mr. John McMillan presented Mr. MacKenzie with an exceptionally fine walking cane. This was followed by another address read by Mrs. Murdoch Cuthrie and presentation by Mrs. P. J. Noy of a lovely brooch, jewel case and sum of money to Mrs. MacKenzie. Although taken wholly by surprise, both Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie replied very feelingly to the addresses and presentations and gave every evidence of showing their deep appreciation of the kindness and good will expressed. After this very pleasant hour was spent, which was closed by the ladies present serving a delicious lunch. Again a large number of their friends arranged unannounced to spend the evening and bid a "bon voyage" to the travellers. Dr. Rodgerson was again asked to act as chairman and after a few remarks he called upon Mr. P. J. Noy to read an address which included the presentation of a purse of gold by Mr. J. H. Miller. This was followed by an address from the staff of the Royal Bank, read by Mr. G. A. Dickson and presentation of a purse of gold by Mr. C. H. McGuigan. Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie once more rose to the occasion and showed deep feeling throughout their remarks of thanks. This was followed by numerous speeches from those present, after which cards and the light fantastic were indulged in until the "wee small hours." At midnight a most delightful lunch was served.

The following are the addresses mentioned:

Hunter River, May 10, 1922. Mr. and Mrs. J. K. MacKenzie, Dear Friends:—

Very few facts are brought home to us more often than is the fact that this every day world of ours is a world of change. In some spheres of life we are led to realize how this is much more readily than we are in others.

And perhaps in no more particular sphere of life do we see more evidences of change than we do in that one, which you Mr. MacKenzie have selected as your chosen sphere, namely, that of banking. The life of the banker as you no doubt well know, is full of changes. He knows neither the day nor the hour when a call shall come to move. Upwards of two years ago you and your estimable partner in life came to dwell in our midst. Ever since then we have been coming more and more to appreciate the worth of both of you.

In banking circles you Mr. MacKenzie were noted for your integrity and your business-like methods of carrying on your work. It is possible that these methods were not always the most popular, but, nevertheless we believe that the results of such teaching were good. These who, as it were, sat at your feet and were willing to learn felt that they were receiving a good thorough business training.

And to Mrs. MacKenzie we would say that we could wish that we had seen more of you and that we had known you better. (With your quite unassuming and somewhat reticent manner, it was not always easy to become readily acquainted with you. But those who have really come to know you have learned all that to know you is to truly admire you.)

In the various projects undertaken for the best interests of the village and the surrounding communities you both have taken a leading part. This was shown in the work done in the Hunter River Electric Light Company, in the Women's Institute and in other such movements. But perhaps in no one undertaking did we see your deep interest displayed to a greater degree than we did in the way you both toiled to make the play recently put on for the welfare of the village the splendid success that it was. Had it not been for your persistent efforts to "carry on" we are under the impression that it might probably never have materialized.

But now, just when we were coming to find out your true worth to our surprise and regret we learned that you were likely soon to leave that which we were inclined to think that perhaps there was nothing in the report, but later we learned that it was all too true. You are indeed going away in the very near future. When this was made known to us we felt that we could not allow you to go away without in some way trying to tell you that we have enjoyed having you both in our village and also that we have appreciated the efforts you have made for the improvement of our community. When you shall have gone we shall feel keenly your loss.

Before saying farewell to you we would ask you to kindly accept these small gifts as slight tokens of the esteem in which you are held by us. We trust that you will value these not so much because of their worth but rather because of the expression of admiration and of good will conveyed by the giving of them from us to you. As you go to your new home kindly remember that our best wishes shall ever follow you. May happiness and good fortune be your constant companions along life's way and in going to the many new friends you shall meet in that bigger outside world, a place in your hearts, we trust that you will keep a little corner for the old friends you sojourned with during your stay in Hunter River.

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Hunter River, P. E. I., May 10th, 1922.

Dear Mrs. MacKenzie:—

About two years ago you came to Hunter River a perfect stranger. In a short time you were so loved and respected by us all that we were greatly pained when we were told last week that you were leaving in a short time on account of Mr. MacKenzie having won deserved promotion. The Institute of which you were Vice-President last year will perhaps miss you more keenly than anyone else. Your advice was always valuable. You were always present at our meetings and perhaps did more than any other member to bring the Institute to its present high place. It was ever a pleasure to visit your home and while congratulating you and wishing you every pleasure in your new home, we feel most keenly your loss. Be assured that you will always be remembered by us and we trust that you may at times pay us a visit and keep alive the friendships that you have already formed.

Kindly accept this small gift to remind you of the many friends you are leaving here.

Signed, on behalf of the Institute members and other ladies of Hunter River.

Hunter River, P. E. I., May 11th, 1922.

Dear Mr. MacKenzie:—

There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Thus the poet has expressed himself, and we, the members of the Staff here can well compare with him and believe that you Mr. MacKenzie have taken the tide at the flood, and that good fortune will pursue you as she has done in the past. While with us in Hunter River, you have always been most considerate, yet you maintained an efficiency in the work that will help us all as we advance in our chosen profession.

Although we deeply regret that those higher up have seen fit to separate us, still we must heartily congratulate you on your promotion to the greater fields of finance in Montreal and wish you every success in the future.

To Mrs. MacKenzie also we extend our best wishes and "bon voyage."

Please accept this purse as a memento of the appreciation of the staff of the Royal Bank of Canada at Hunter River. In bidding you farewell we wish you happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf Staff of Royal Bank of Canada, Hunter River, P. E. I.

Hunter River, P. E. I., May 11th, 1922.

To Mr. J. K. MacKenzie:—

It is with sincere regret that the people of Hunter River learn of your transfer to another branch. And while we will miss you from among us, we congratulate you on your promotion.

While you have been with us in Hunter River you have taken a keen interest in the different projects of the locality, and rendered all assistance in your power, to make Hunter River a better business centre. We wish you every success in your new branch and hope that your stay in Montreal will be pleasant throughout and will lead to further advancement in your profession.

We would ask you to accept this slight token of our esteem and to give to your future happiness and prosperity.

On behalf of the friends of Hunter River and vicinity.
