AGRICULTURAL NEWS

P. E. I. Department of Agriculture

THE FARMER DECIDES

The period from April 23rd to May 5th has been set aside by the Federation of Agriculture as one in which an intensive effort is to be made to increase the membership of the Organization.

The decision to conduct this membership drive was made after careful consideration by over fifty Directors of the Organization and was made in the light of necessity, it can stand repeating that the Federation is working on behalf of all Canadian farmers but not all farmers have helped in generating the influence which the Federation has or have realized that that influence could be increased many, many times if more individual farmers were supporters both financially and morally.

In a number of provinces the Federation is financed by contributions from other wealthy farm organizations or through levies on commodities or by taxes imposed on the municipal level. Similar means of financing do not exist in this province where the Federation must depend for a very large percentage of its finances on a membership fee of $3.00 paid directly and voluntarily by the farmer.

For the past six years between two and three thousand farmers have carried the financial load, in addition, a much smaller number of Directors have given of their time and have, in many cases, paid their travel expense as well.

The future of the Federation in this province is in the hands of the farmer, if it is to be effective it must be adequately financed, if it is to enjoy the prestige which should be rightly the province's most important industry then there must be more active interest and more active supporters.

Quite likely very few farmers would, if they had the choice, make a decision which would lead to the weakening or impairment of the Organization, but unless there is positive support and sufficient money the Board of Directors have no alternative other than to consider cutting their suit to fit the cloth which would mean the carrying on of Federation work on a part time basis and possibly by officers who would have other work of greater interest to them.

In plain English, during the next ten days the decision as to whether the Federation continues to operate in this Province a full time office with greater activity and greater achievements will be made by the farm people of this province. If they feel that their interest will be advanced and be protected without any active organizational effort on their part then there is no need to take any action. If, on the other hand, they feel that farming and the economy of this province is worthy of some positive action for improvement then they will very seriously consider putting their influence and support behind the Federation.

MONDAY, APRIL 30TH

On Monday, April 30th every rural school house in this province should be the scene of a meeting in which farmers take active steps to enroll themselves as members as members of the Federation and to join with other Island farmers and Canadian farmers in working towards a better deal for farm.

The solution of farm problems is first of all the farmers' own responsibility, it is not the responsibility of labour, industry or business and it is not the prime concern of our politicians. April 30th is a very important day and every farmer is invited and urged to put in his appearance in the district school on Monday evening.

ROAD-SIDE BEAUTY

The beautification conscious and in particular, those who would like to improve the appearance of our road-sides are reminded that under a provincial policy assistance in the form of Matching Grants not to exceed $100 is provided where communities undertake the planting of trees on road-sides.

Visitors to the province form their impressions, in many cases, from what they see on and from the road-side which suggests that an active effort to clear up the scrub growth and untidiness and replacing it with ornamental trees is a most commendable move.

HOG PROSPECTS

Usually one is on very dangerous ground when making any attempt to forecast hog production. There are so many unpredictable factors involved, such as size of litters and losses at farrowing, that the expected volume of production over any definite period may range far above or below the actual results. However, there are some noticeable indications which help to give us a look into the immediate future possibilities.

Among these clues the most significant is the fact that the expected increase in the prairie provinces has not materialized. Alberta, which produces about one-quarter of the Canadian output, shows a decrease of over six percent during the first three months of this year. Manitoba shows a slight increase in the same period but during March that province was down close to seven percent. Recent reports from the West advise that due to the unprecedented severe winter the mortality among winter and spring litters has been much above normal. One district reports losses up to ninety percent. For the same reason, sow breeding over the same period is down.

Another factor which is acting as a brake on hog production in the West is the recently improved grain marketing situation. Although the grain carry-over in these provinces is very heavy, the available surplus is not uniformly located. One district in Manitoba reports that hog producers are trucking grain far as 190 miles. Even in some hog producing areas of Alberta there is a feed grain shortage.

Although the total Canadian hog production was up about ten percent for the first quarter of 1956, all of this increase came from Ontario and Quebec. The first named province, due to cheap local feed, may hold the present volume but in Quebec reports indicate (Continued on page 15)
