A CONFAB.

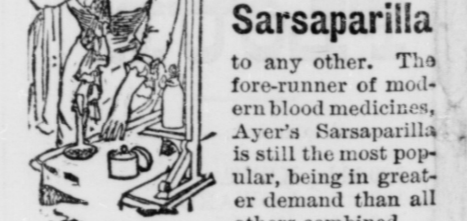

"GOOD MORNING, Farmer John. How is the travelling to-day?"
"Very bad; nearly ruining my horse's feet. They are always very sore after going home from town."
"What do you think is the matter with them?"
"I think they call it greased heel, or scratches, and some say it can't be cured."
"Oh, that's nothing. You get the MAGIC HEALER SALVE, and you can soon cure them. Did you not see the testimonials from Davies, Finlayson, Duff and Hooper in the papers a few weeks ago?"
"Why, no; I don't get any papers now, so I didn't see them."
"My dear fellow, you go to any of the drug stores and ask for the Magic Healer Salve, and I'll guarantee that if you wash your horse's feet at night, and rub the Salve well into the sores, they will be thoroughly cured in a week."
"Well, on your recommendation I'll give it a trial; and if it does what you say, money will be no object. Good day, and thank you for the information."

Ask For Ayer's

Sarsaparilla, and be sure you get it, when you want the best blood-purifier. With its forty years of unexampled success in the cure of Blood Diseases, you can make no mistake in preferring Ayer's Sarsaparilla to any other. The fore-runner of modern blood medicines, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is still the most popular, being in greater demand than all others combined.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla is selling faster than ever before. I never hesitate to recommend it."—George W. Whitman, Druggist, Albany, Ind.
"I am safe in saying that my sales of Ayer's Sarsaparilla far exceed those of any other, and it gives thorough satisfaction."—L. H. Bush, Des Moines, Iowa.
"Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's Pills are the best selling medicines in my store. I can recommend them conscientiously."—C. Bickhaus, Pharmacist, Roseland, Ill.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"I have sold your medicines for the last seventeen years, and always keep them in stock, as they are staples. There is nothing so good for the youthful blood as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—E. L. Parker, Fox Lake, Wis.
"Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives the best satisfaction of any medicine I have in stock. I recommend it, or, as the Doctors say, 'I prescribe it over the counter.' It never fails to meet the cases for which I recommend it, even where the doctors' prescriptions have been of no avail."—C. F. Calhoun, Monmouth, Kansas.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Charlottetown Dramatic Talent.

SIR,—The writer was one of the many who last week received a severe surprise in the entertainment given by the Tennis Clubs. He went because he wished to show his sympathy with the object, expecting to be obliged to sit through the ordinary town-concert programme of old songs, muttons, a starchy dialogue delivered in the orthodox amateur sing-song, and with half-locked jaws and painfully rigid muscles, supposed to throw the audience into spasms of laughter. He was disappointed. The entertainment from the rise to the fall of the curtain would not have disgraced the boards of a metropolitan theatre. The Broom Drill, the Statuary and the Face are the three features which remain in the memory as "the points." The former, though the idea is somewhat worn now, and is associated in our minds with school girls and Bands of Hope, was nevertheless thoroughly worthy of praise. The young ladies looked pretty and moved precisely. One, for the thirtieth part of a second, lost her head, that is to say, she turned it to the left instead of the right, but she "righted" it immediately. Otherwise, to an outsider, the drill appeared perfect. The statuary looked so real that many, unacquainted with the nature of such tableaux actually thought it was marble. For this cruel deception the writer understands that Mr. Lawrence Watson is responsible. He should be taken to task and reminded that to shake people's confidence in the evidence of their senses is to lay the foundation for universal skepticism. But "The Mousetrap" is the portion which requires the fullest and most critical attention. It is a quiet, sparkling little drama, modern and conversational, with, however, a serious defect in its composition, of which we shall speak presently. Society plays are always harder than broad burlesques. Those who are familiar with the stage know that there is no character so generally undervalued or so really difficult to perfect as that of the "stage gentleman." Where there is scope for tumbling around in uncouth situations, or where the play is of the coarser sort in which individual idiosyncrasies form the basis of the humor, an amateur can hide his nervousness or clownishness by throwing himself excitedly into his part, and his over-acting is often vigorously applauded. Such pieces, however, would stand in the same relation to a little drama like "The Mousetrap" as pungent molasses taffy to a dainty caramel. Mrs. Blanchard, as Mrs. Somers, a fascinating young widow, was the leading character. Her appearance is admirably suited to the stage. She possesses that fullness of face and figure which, behind the footlights, makes thinner persons look insignificant in comparison. Her voice is clear, full and flexible, and her accent good, though in some words the "a" sounds incline a little to Canadian flatness. This is, however, scarcely noticeable. Above all, she possesses the power of delicate emphasis and minute discrimination in modulation. Her intonation and all her gestures are natural and easy, and it is a pleasure to look at her and hear her speak. She identifies herself with her character, showing a sympathetic appreciation of the humor of the piece. The manner in which she pulled at her engagement ring and said, "Never mind, I'll get it off with soap-suds," is a good illustration of this. Mr. F. H. Arnaud as Willis Campbell was the only representative of his sex in the cast, but the sex did not suffer. His make-up had just enough of artificiality to take away from the familiarity of his appearance. All his actions were free from constraint, and he appeared perfectly at home and self-possessed. He articulated distinctly, with correct discrimination. When he brought out the words "moral," "moral," "immoral," the audience interrupted with laughter. His love-making, and, in fact, all his actions, were polished and in good taste. Both Mr. Arnaud and Mrs. Blanchard have unmistakably the true spirit of acting. Otherwise they would never have been so successful upon such brief experience. But while this is the case, a great deal of the praise which the success demands is to be shared by one who was not before the public. The stage setting, a modern drawing-room in perfect taste, and the arduous superintendence and coaching both of declamation and gesture, are the work of Mr. Pope, who had the management of the affair; and the triumph is due perhaps more to his taste and judgment than even to the native talent of Mrs. Blanchard and Mr. Arnaud. Miss Dodge, as Mrs. Roberts, made an indescribably comic pinnacle for the piano stool. Miss Ball, Mrs. J. A. Longworth, Miss Millicent Palmer and Miss Newbery must be described in a group. What little the piece required them to say they said well. Some looked handsome, some pretty, but all lady-like, well dressed and graceful. The great defect in the play is the fact that it is broken in the middle. One of the first principles known to the playwright is the preservation of climax. Everything depends on it. And this involves, (1) an increase of interest in the plot, (2) an increase of spectacular interest throughout. For this reason it is that you almost always see the play working out so as to bring nearly all the characters on the stage towards the close. The "Mousetrap" reached its climax, both in regard to spectacle and incident, when all the visitors left with Willis Campbell beating on the floor. Then the feelings of the audience were at their highest pitch. They fell as soon as the two were left alone. The preservation of the spectacular climax was irretrievably ruined, and all work up a new climax of love interest, culminating in Mrs. Blanchard's "I think I should use violence." This idea should have been worked in before, because it is a pretty one, but it should have reached its climax simultaneously with that of the spectacle, and the

THE CHAMPION STATE.—Statistics show that New Hampshire is the champion divorce State, the rate being one divorce to every nine marriages.

A DUPLICATE.—A special to the Chicago Daily News from Guthrie, I. T., says the Oklahoma country is a duplicate of the Great American Desert.

EARLY WHEAT.—Wm. Gordon, Esq., Brudenell, sowed wheat on the 20th inst., and a good deal has been sown around Cardigan this week.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.—The house of W. P. Wood, in Macon, Co., N. C., was broken into one night last week, his wife and five children murdered, the house robbed and then burned to the ground.

PARNELL AND THE TIMES.—A Dublin despatch says that the case of Parnell against the Times for libel has been expunged from the list of cases awaiting trial before the exchequer division of Her Majesty's high court of justice for Ireland.

For nearly half a century Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been the most popular cough remedy in the world. The constantly increasing demand for this remedy proves it to be the very best specific for colds, coughs and all diseases of the throat and lungs.

COMPLIMENTARY.—The St. John Sun says it is understood that the Archbishop of Canterbury has written to the Rev. John de Soyres, thanking him for the publication of his work on Christian Reunion, and quoting the approbation and praise which had reached him from other quarters.

For the delicate and aged and all in whom the vital current is impoverished and sluggish, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the very best tonic. It restores the wasted tissues, and imparts to the system surprising elasticity and vigor. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

A SHOWER OF SNAILS.—A special from Tiffin, O., reports that during a heavy thunder-storm one night recently, a shower of snails fell, covering the ground. In Cleveland the same night, the sidewalks in certain sections of the city were also covered with snails.

DROWNED.—John McLellan, of Springville, near New Glasgow, N. S., went alone to the river on Saturday last to start a jam of logs. His hat and pike pole were afterwards found near the place and his body was picked up two miles below where the accident occurred. He leaves a wife and family.

METHODIST.—We learn from an exchange that the following invitations (Methodist, P. E. I.) have been given and accepted, and the conference will probably sanction them: Charlottetown, second, Rev. W. W. Brewster; Belemore, Rev. Wm. Harrison; Margate, Rev. E. C. Turner, and Summerside, Rev. C. W. Hamilton. The ministers stationed at the following places have completed their full term and changes will have to be made at conference—Bedford, Little York, Murray Harbor and Winslow.

Why is it Gay's seeds are so reliable? This question has been asked time and time again by good sensible farmers, that should be in the secret as well as themselves. The reason is Gay & Son will not sell a seed they would not plant themselves, and moreover, their extended experience in the cultivation of garden and farm products has fitted them to select seeds best suited to our Island climate. See their advertisement in another column of seeds, fruit and ornamental trees, blooming pansies and daisies, plants, &c.

LANDSLIDES AND CLOUDBURSTS.—The Comovio, of Lima, Peru, dated March 21, says landslides have recently occurred from the perpendicular walls through which the tunnels on Oregoa route are cut in order to enable the Verrugas bridge to be thrown across the chasm from tunnel to tunnel. A cloudburst caused a mass of rocks and earth to crash down and sweep away the bridge, which cost $200,000, being 375 feet long, and 260 feet high.—the highest in the world except one in the United States.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. (April 1 '88)

DEATH THROUGH FRIGHT.—Says the Listowel, Ont., Banner: The saddest event in connection with Tuesday morning's fire was the death, on Wednesday morning, of Annie Delp, aged 10 years, 6 months and 17 days, through fright. She was of a very nervous temperament, and when the alarm was rung, Wm. Delp, her father, who lives on Victoria Street, told his family not to waken Annie, as she might be frightened. "You don't need to waken me, I am awake already," was heard from her room, and she was soon dressed and down stairs. She did not appear alarmed then, but when the flames broke out brightly, she became excited, and fell into a kind of nervous fit, from which she never recovered consciousness. Her death is a direct result of incendiarism.
