CHARLOTTETOWN Business College Writing Academy

Let the searchlight of practice illuminate the dark places of Theory.

A THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both in single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank and the moneys issued from the Emporium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course system of training is eminently practical, is proved by testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

SUBJECTS: Book-keeping by single and double entry (theoretical and practical), Actual Business Practice, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Railroad, Steamboat, Banking, (actual practice in the College Bank), Typewriting, Shorthand and Navigation.

FACULTY: L. B. Miller, Principal, Teacher of Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Business Practice, Business Correspondence, Typewriting and Navigation. J. W. Coulson, (Vice Principal), Teacher of Railroad, Steamboat, Banking, Accounting and Actual Business Practice. J. Harry Williams, Teacher of Business Penmanship. Wm. Moran (licensed), Teacher of Shorthand. George S. Inman Esq., (Law Firm McDonald & Inman) Lecturer on Commercial Law.

For circulars and full information, write or apply to L. B. MILLER, Principal. All interested are cordially invited to call at the college and inspect our system of doing, and work in general.

HE HAD A CLUB.

And the Editor Was Naturally Filled With Apprehension.

"There's a man down stairs with a club lookin' fer the editor," remarked the devil unconcernedly to the boss of the sanctum, as he walked around and set the towel up in the corner.

"Good Lord," groaned the editor.

"Are you sure?"

"Dead," insisted the boy. "He was lookin' fer the editor, that's what he said."

"What kind of a man was he?"

"Tough; country jake sort of a look-in chap, as big as a skinned boss, with hands on to him like hams," answered the boy, with a wicked and heartless leer.

"What kind of a club did he have? Anything like a dray pin?" suggested the editor, watching the door nervously.

"Wait till I go and see," said the boy, in a sympathizing spirit.

In a few moments he returned, the editor in the meantime having dreamt and visions and nightmares of all uncanny kinds.

"Well?" queried the editor, mopping the cold and clammy sweat from his dome of thought with a last winter's blotter, "well?"

"Rats!" growled the boy. "It was a club of 20 new subscribers."

Then the editor kicked the boy gleefully, and told him to bring the man up forthwith.—W. J. Lampton in Louisville Courier-Journal.

HE HAD HIM THERE.

How a Passenger Got Even With a Street Car Conductor.

He was intent upon his newspaper when the conductor came along and stopped in front of him.

The conductor stooped down to get a better look at his face and said, "Fare, please."

The man with the paper paid no attention, and finally the conductor tapped him gently on the arm.

"Did I get your fare?" asked the conductor as the man with the paper looked up.

Now, if there is anything in this world that has a tendency to make a man who has paid his fare get angry it is to have the agent of the corporation to whom such fare was paid come along and ask him if he has paid it. It may be all right, but it always seems as if there was an inference that some one is trying to beat the road. Thus it happened that the man with the paper replied rather sharply:

"You ought to know."

"Oh, it's all right, sir!" explained the conductor hastily. "No intention to offend, you know. I merely wanted to make sure."

Then he returned to the platform, while the man with the paper returned to his reading.

A few minutes later the man with the paper went out on the platform himself, and just before reaching his corner he gently tapped the conductor on the arm, even as the conductor had tapped him.

"Did you ring up my fare?" he asked. There were immediate indications that the conductor was getting mad. He tried to say something, but only spluttered.

"Oh, it's all right!" the man with the paper hastened to explain. "No intention to offend, you know. I only wanted to make sure."

Then he swung off the car, and when he reached home his wife detected traces of a faint smile on his face.—Philadelphia Times.

Bullets Point to Point.

A correspondent relates the following remarkable personal reminiscence of an incident which occurred during the Franco-German war: "A perfect stranger (an Englishman)," said he, "called upon me and handed to me a chassepot rifle, which he related he had picked up on the field of battle after Gravelotte, which had a bullet or two stuck in about the middle of the barrel and which he requested me to get removed. This was done, and upon examination two bullets were found to have met point to point. A German bullet must have entered the muzzle of the French rifle barrel just as the French rifle had been fired, and the two bullets had met together without bursting the barrel. I inclose my card."—London Telegraph.

Of the two stamps first issued Washington's portrait was on the 10 cent and Franklin's on the other. Since that time the various issues of the United States stamps would furnish a unique portrait gallery, showing the faces of 48 noted Americans.

The bullet which killed Lord Nelson at Trafalgar is still preserved. It is mounted in a crystal locket and reposes in a crimson bag with gold tassels.

He Knew the Witness.

"Take the stand, Mr. Potts," said the young lawyer from town, with an air of triumph.

Judge Bloom of the Blue Gizzard district scowled at the witness as he took his place, and the attorney said:

"Mr. Potts, you were present at the shooting scrape, were you not?"

"Yaas."

"You saw the defendant take a pistol from his pocket?"

"Yaas."

"You saw him fire at this man?"

"Yaas."

"You saw him return the weapon to his pocket?"

"I shore did."

"Come down, Mr. Potts," said the lawyer. "For me to say anything after such direct testimony of this man's guilt would be an insult to your honor's intelligence. I hope your honor will make his bond very heavy, for his offense is exceedingly grave."

"I finds the prisoner not guilty," said Judge Bloom, with considerable vehemence.

"May it please your honor," exclaimed the young attorney in amazement, "how can you render such a verdict in direct conflict of the positive testimony of an eyewitness?"

"Jes' bekase I have knowed Bill Potts fer 15 year an never knowed him to tell the truth yit."—Atlanta Journal.
