MR. HENRY MUTCH, of Southport, informs us that, on Tuesday night last, seventeen of his sheep were killed by dogs. This is a heavy loss to Mr. Mutch. No doubt other farmers have met with similar losses in Lot 48. As the law seems to be a failure, and as dogs are allowed to run at large without their masters, we suggest that doses of buck-shot be administered to every straggling canine found at large unmuzzled and unlogged.

THE new Engine, No. 21, just received from the Canadian Locomotive and Engine Company of Ontario, went on her trial trip to-day. We learn that the test was highly satisfactory, and that she is the equal, in every respect, of No. 7, of which we gave an account yesterday. These engines being built from the same specification, and both being first class machines, show that the Kingston Locomotive Company build engines according to the true principles of mechanics—they can hit it every time.

THE death of Mrs. W. W. Robertson, wife of a prominent and well-known citizen of Montreal which occurred suddenly at the Seaside Hotel is very melancholy. In company with her son and a party of ladies and gentlemen from Montreal, they arrived here in the Coban on Tuesday last, with the intention of spending the hot season at the seaside. She enjoyed good health and appeared to be the life of the party during the voyage. On Thursday night she retired as usual, but shortly became ill. A servant attended upon her, and she shortly recovered and dismissed her attendant. Towards morning the servant entered her room and was horrified to find that Mrs. Robertson had passed away, apparently without a struggle—death, it is supposed, occurring from heart-disease. Her remains were forwarded to Montreal to-day.

Supreme Court.

SATURDAY, July 12.

Patrick Cullen and another vs. Jessie Mutch and others.—This was an action of ejectment to recover possession of the Holland Cove Farm, South Shore, and occupied the court from Thursday until last evening, when the jury, without retiring, under direction of the Chief Justice, found a verdict for the plaintiffs for all the land claimed. Davies, Q. C., and Hodgson, Q. C., for the plaintiffs; Peters and McLean for the defendants.

William Pickard vs. James Yeo.—An application was heard on behalf of the plaintiff to refer this suit to arbitration, alleging that the matters in dispute consisted of an account that could not be conveniently tried by a jury. The defendant opposed the application on the ground that his liability for a large portion of the account was a question of law upon which he was entitled to a decision of a court of law. Judgment reserved. Fitzgerald, Q. C., and Peters, for plaintiff; Hodgson, Q. C., and Davies, Q. C., for defendant.

Liquidators of the Bank of P. E. I. vs. John Ings.—This case is now being heard. Fitzgerald, Q. C., and Peters, for plaintiff; McLeod, Q. C., and Davies, Q. C., for defendant.

A Bird Charmer.

Paris has found a new sensation in a bird charmer, who has been astonishing the boulevardiers with his powers. A bet was made between him and M. Loizey, a gentleman who was rather sceptical in such matters. The conditions were that M. Loizey should furnish a dozen birds, which were to be at the disposal of the charmer for fifteen minutes. At the end of that time M. Picard was to open the cage which contained them, and each bird was to alight upon a certain arbutus, brought upon the ground by him and placed at a distance of 100 metres from the point where they were liberated. For each bird which did not obey the charm within a quarter of an hour M. Picard was to pay M. Loizey fifty francs, and for each bird which did, M. Loizey was to pay M. Picard the same sum. When the time for the test arrived so large and so curious a crowd had gathered on the Champ de Mars that it was impossible to maintain the needful space of 100 metres around the spot where the cage was placed. Forty metres was all the distance that could be secured. The results, therefore, were not accepted as determining the bet, and another trial was made. The birds, however—released under the conditions—few one by one to the arbutus and perched on its branches, to the great astonishment, it is said, of the spectators. M. Picard's charm consists, it is believed, in impregnating these branches with a colorless and mysterious liquid, the secret of which is as yet his own.

The post office is a fairly good barometer of the commercial prosperity of a place. In Japan a kind of bankruptcy prevails, and the people are unable to pay postage on their letters; hence they have ceased writing to one another. The post office returns for February show that the number of letters which passed through the post office during that month was 208,878 less than the number for January, and the number of postal cards 699,187 less. This is a very astounding difference, and February the month for valentines, too. Is romance dead in that Land of the Rising Sun?
