ADVERTISING RATES.

For small advertisements which are ordered for only one or two weeks the charge is 50 cents per inch for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuation. Rate cards are furnished on application at the office. Special contract prices at a reduced rate are quoted for advertisements four inches in size or larger, which are to run for three months or longer.

No special notices inserted unless paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line, and under no circumstances will such paid notices appear in the local column.

Special discounts made on all advertisements connected with Church Fairs, Bazaars, Picnics, etc. No notices will be inserted with the same unless the regular rate of 10 cents per line is paid.

That THE EXAMINER is considered by our Merchants and Manufacturers to be the leading newspaper in P. E. Island, and consequently the most valuable advertising medium through which to make their announcements public, is abundantly proved by the fact that in order to accommodate our advertisers we have been compelled to enlarge the paper to its present size.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is for sale by the following agents:—

OLD AGE OF INDIANS.

Defying All Rules of Health They Keep Well and Strong.

The Remarkable Longevity of the Indian Race Explained.—For Every Human Ill They Have a Cure—They Know Where to Find the Roots, Herbs and Barks that will keep them in Good Health—The Secret Now Given to the World.

Laughing Jag. Age 106 Yrs.

Indians are long lived.

There are many Kickapoos now living who have trod parts of this vast continent long before white men ever set his foot on the soil of their vast domain.

Their lives have been spent with nature.

Born to good health, as the saying goes, they keep it.

Think how they live, eat, sleep, travel about, exposed to climatic changes, poisonous night airs, damp sleeping places, food half cooked, and eaten with utter disregard of all common rules of health.

Yet, look at them! Pictures of health.

Chronic Rheumatism? Never. Malaria and Chills? Very rarely. Indigestion? Occasional symptoms perhaps, but Chronic Dyspepsia, utterly unheard of. While any of the numerous afflictions of the liver, kidneys or bladder, so frequently found among the whites, is rarely heard of among the Indians.

Why is it?

For centuries these children of nature have studied her ways. For centuries they have known where to look in the forest and field for a certain cure for the ills which arise from the disobedience of nature's laws. At the first sign, the first symptoms of sickness, they resort to their "Sagwa"—the most potent, remedial combination of roots and herbs known to the Indian or any other race.

A combination so valuable that the learned professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale college commended it, and could offer no suggestions.

Science surpassed by Indian craft! Nature undefiled by mineral poisons.

Indians are subject to ills of the flesh, but they have a remedy for all.

Kickapoo Indian Cough Cure breaks up their colds and stops their coughs. Kickapoo Indian Worm Killer keeps their children free from these troubles; and Kickapoo Indian Oil arrests croup, allays pain, heals bruises, and quickly kills all pains; Kickapoo Indian Salve heals, wounds, cuts, abrasions of the skin, humors, eczema, etc.

Afraid of the Moon. Age 117 Yrs.

These remedies are now sold by every druggist in the land, and their best proof of genuine worth is in the fact that on their merit solely they have achieved this sale within a few short years. Ask for them at the Trading Post on the Frontier, and you'll find them there. Go into the fashionable drug stores of New York City, and these remedies of the Indians are to be bought. Everywhere, high and low, they have made friends by their intrinsic value. Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa,

The Incomparable Liver, Stomach and Blood Medicine. $1 per bottle; 6 for $5.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

RECIPROCITY IN TARIFFS.

(Montreal Times, Independent.)

The alternative which the late Sir John Macdonald offered to the United States, "Reciprocity in free trade or reciprocity of tariffs," has received a new interpretation from the present Premier of the Dominion. In his Belleville speech, Sir John Thompson stated that the Government of Canada had notified that of Washington that if the Americans reduced their tariff on Canadian products, Canada would reciprocate in the same way. Here we have something positive at last on one phase which tariff legislation, contingent on action which elsewhere may be taken. Between Sir John Macdonald's alternative and the policy of the present Government there is this difference: the former looked to an increase of the tariff, the latter has in view a reduction. The difference is accidental, the result of circumstances, but the rule of action is the same in both cases. The American tariff was on the ascending scale when the alternative policy was first announced in Canada; now it is on the decline.

It is easy to see that the Canadian Government, in view of the demand for tariff reduction, might be glad to embrace tariff reciprocity as a measure of the decline. A measure of reciprocity, in the direction of freer trade, would have been obtained; the least objectionable policy, of its kind, in the eyes of manufacturers, would have been adopted, while the demand for the easing of the trammels on commerce would have been in some degree met. This compromise, if it did not give satisfaction on either side, would assuage the fears of those who now dread the uncertain, and tend to allay discontent on the other. To the out-and-out Free Trader, who admits that the ultimate goal of his ambition is far off, it might not be acceptable, though he would be obliged to accept it as one of the instalments, which he is ready and anxious to get, if it came from other hands.

Reciprocity of tariffs would not be likely to take us very far in the direction of Free Trade. The peculiarity of it is that, the distance being greater on their side, tariff reciprocity would take the United States far on the road, while Canada scarcely made any movement at all. To reach an equality of tariff, Canada might even increase her duties. This comes of the American tariff being so much higher than ours. If the Canadian Government is to be forced into concessions, which look even remotely in the direction of Free Trade, it would no doubt prefer that the change should take the form of reciprocity of tariff. In such a form there would be quite as much of shadow as of substance. Some would prefer the shadow, others, the substance, according to their interests, real or supposed.

NEWS NOTES.

Fifty-four fresh cholera cases in Roumania.

Between 1,200 and 1,500 silver miners have resumed work in the Colorado mines which closed with the big slump in the price of silver last June. Some 3,500 miners have gone back to work during the last ten days.

Montreal Gazette: The compromise on the silver bill now before Congress suggested by the silver men is that the United States shall borrow a hundred million dollars in gold which it does not need, and practically use it to buy silver with. The white metal gentlemen will never want for brass.

Ireland's Day at the World's Fair was celebrated on Saturday in good style. A monster parade of military, civic and church organizations was a feature of the day. Speeches were delivered by Hon. Edward Blake, Lord Mayor Shanks of Dublin and others. Mr. Blake read an interesting letter which he received from Mr. Gladstone just before he sailed for Canada.

The Department of Railways has information that the last of the masonry of the lock walls of the Sault Ste. Marie canal has been finished. The masons are now working at the power house and on the abutments and piers for the bridge over the canal, the contract for the superstructure of which was let a few weeks ago to the Hamilton Bridge company. It is expected that the masonry on the piers and abutments will be finished in a few days. The contract for the lock gates, as already stated, has been let to Mr. Hugh Ryan, and unless some very unforseen occurrence should intervene there does not appear now to be the slightest doubt but that the canal will be ready for use on the opening of navigation next spring.

A Chicago special says Chauncey M. Depew is quoted as saying: "The panic kept away more people from the Fair than the number that came. Farmers came, but the artisan, who was affected immediately, did not. If the Silver law had been repealed in the Senate within a week after it was repealed in the House, every spindle would now be running and every coke furnace burning. The Senate in neglecting to act, inflicted a heavy blow on our credit abroad and created conditions which made resumption of prosperity much more difficult. They have committed a crime against the United States, present and future. They have done more to discredit the Senate as a deliberative body and to suggest the necessity of changing its character than all happenings since the adoption of the Federal constitution."

The Cruel Calculi.

Drop a postal card to Mr. George Rose, of Peterborough, and ask him what Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure did for him in relieving him of the intense pain caused by the passage of stone or calculi from the bladder. Hypodermic injections had to be resorted to in order to relive the agonizing pains at times, but the use of Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure enabled the kidneys to wash out the sand and debris from the system, and neutralized the acid formations. .....

THE SIZE OF THE SEA.

The Volume of Water on the Globe is Beyond Our Comprehension

One gallon of water weighs ten pounds, so the number of gallons in the Pacific is over 200 trillions, an amount which would take more than a million years to pass over the Falls of Niagara. Yet, put into a sphere, the whole of the Pacific would only measure 726 miles across.

The Atlantic could be contained bodily in the Pacific nearly three times. The number of cubic feet is 117, followed by seventeen ciphers, a number that would be ticked off by one million clocks in 370,000 years. Its weight is 323,000 billion tons, and the number of gallons in it 73 trillions. A sphere to hold the Atlantic would have to be 533¼ miles in diameter. If it were made to fill a circular pipe reaching from the earth to the sun—a distance of 93,000,000 miles—the diameter of the pipe would be 1827 yards, or rather over a mile, with a pipe of similar length to contain the Pacific would be over a mile and three quarters across. Yet the distance to the sun is so great that, as has been pointed out, if a child were born with an arm long enough to reach the sun it would not live long enough to know that it had touched it, for sensation passes along our nerves at the rate of 100 feet a second, and to travel from the sun to the earth at that rate would take a century and a half, such an abnormal infant is an unlikely centenarian.

The rest of the sea includes the Indian Ocean, the Arctic and Antarctic Seas, and various smaller masses of water. It covers an area of 42,000,000 square miles, and would form a circle of 7300 miles in diameter. The average depth may be put at 2000 fathoms (12,000 feet), and the contents at 95,000,000 cubic miles. It weighs 390,000 billion tons, and contains 87¼ trillion gallons, while it would form a column reaching to the sun of 2000 yards in diameter.

If we combine into one vast whole these various figures we arrive at some stupendous results in answer to the question, "How big is the sea?"

Its area of 140,000,000 square miles could be confined by a circle of 13,350 miles across. The relative size of the areas of the whole surface of the earth, of the whole sea, the Pacific and the Atlantic, are represented by circles the diameters of which are in the proportions to one another of 158, 133, 93 and 62 respectively, or by a crown for the surface of the earth, a half-crown for the surface of the whole sea, a shilling for the surface of the Pacific, a three-penny piece for the surface of the Atlantic.

Supposing the sea to be formed into a round column reaching to the sun, the diameter of the column would be nearly two and a half miles. The Pacific would form 53,000,000 miles of its total length of 93,000,000 and the Atlantic 18,000,000.

If it were a column of ice, and the entire heat of the sun could be concentrated upon it, it would all be melted in one second, and converted into steam in eight seconds, which illustrates the heat of the sun rather than the size of the sea.—Longman's Magazine.

A Problem.

Read this paragraph carefully: Did it ever occur to anyone to go back a few generations, and consider the relationships each of us must have to others? For instance, a man has two parents, four grand parents, eight great-grand parents, sixteen great-great-grand parents. Each of his four grand parents had four grand parents, which equals sixteen great-grand parents; each of his sixteen great-grand parents had had eight great-grand parents and sixteen grand parents four times removed, which equals 128 grand parents three times removed, and 256 four times removed. Hence a man, going back five generations finds himself the grandson of nearly 400 people, and this is allowing an average of one child to a family! If each man were entitled to four or five hundred relatives, of whom he was the only offspring, the populations five generations ago must have been four hundred times its present number. To turn the problem again, let us consider an average family of four children. A man would have sixteen first cousins, sixty-four second cousins, and two hundred and fifty-six third cousins, and one thousand and twenty-four fourth cousins. This, with four hundred grand parents, makes an extensive population of the country is too small for the ratio, every one must be related to somebody and somebody related to everybody. It wouldn't be surprising if the solver of this comes to the conclusion that the human family are in reality bound to each other "by the ties of blood"—in reality, instead of the saving being a mere figure of speech that is used between the factions of a race or language.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Steam Bicycle.

A steam bicycle constructed on novel principles is the invention of Konrad von Meyenburg, a student of the Ropal Polytechnic school of Dresden, Saxony, who arrived in this city last Friday on a vacation trip. He has applied for patents on his bicycle in Germany, England and the United States. In his opinion it will come into general use for long distance riding, as it can be run, he says, an average speed of 12 to 14 miles an hour, and the cost of fuel is a trifle. A bicycle fitted with the steam apparatus will weigh about 80 pounds and will cost about $100 more than the ordinary safety machine.

The steam is generated in a boiler of galvanized iron, having an absolute jacket suspended between the wheels. The wet steam is superheated through a long circular tube within the boiler. The steam then passes to the propelling machinery, which is cover by an air and water tight rubber pouch on each side of the rear wheel. Circular crank shafts, directed by side bars on an original principal, give the speed, which can be checked or increased at will. The machinery is controlled as simply and by the same motion of the hand as the ordinary safety machine.

The fuel used is petroleum or benzine, which is contained in a tank above the forward wheel. Enough can be carried to heat the boiler for three hours. From the tank the oil passes through a tube to a lamp beneath the boiler. The steam supply is practically inexhaustible, as it is returned to the boiler through condensers arranged in rows on each side of the back wheel.—N. Y. World.
