Notes On The New York World Fair

One of the interesting sights in the amusement area, which is visited by thousands is the side show called "The Gang Busters". Here instruments and tricks of the trade used by both gangsters and police.

The $15,000 car used by John Dillinger is there with all its sinister fittings. Bullet proof glass 1 1/2 inches thick, installed at a cost of $3,000. The gas tank has a capacity of 30 gallons and there is a reserve tank carrying an equal amount. The car has also ten concealed compartments for carrying machine guns, bombs, two way radio, and above all things a regulation police siren to clear the way of traffic.

The bullet proof vests worn by some of the rather infamous gangsters such as Baby Face Nelson and Pretty Boy Floyd. An air cooled machine gun capable of shooting 800 shots a minute is also on display.

Trick cards, loaded dice, and all the evidence of sharp practice is here in abundance.

Islanders who registered at the Canadian Pavilion this week are: Tilly Howard Clark and husband; formerly Cape Traverse, now North Adams, Mass. Aetha Carruthers, formerly Borden, now Enfield, N. J. Mary Jane J. Turner, formerly Hors River, now Fall River, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Otis Peabody Smith and children, John Longworth Swift, Barbara Peabody Swift. Mrs. Swift was formerly Miss Longworth from Charlottetown where she has many relatives and friends.

Ralph R. Bennett, Mattawan, a nephew of the Minister of Agriculture Mr. Dennis. George H. Carter, son of George Carter, formerly Charlottetown. John French, now New York, formerly Crapaud. Mrs. P. C. Edwards, now Middleton, Conn., formerly Victoria. Dr. Kenneth MacDonald, now in Stone Hospital, White Plains, N.Y. Doctor MacDonald graduated this year from Queens University and is a son of Mr. P. J. MacDonald, Charlottetown.

THOMSON-PENWARDEN WEDDINGS

BELLEISLE, N. B., Aug. 1.—On Thursday afternoon in the United Church here Madeleine Anit., daughter of Rev. B. H. and Mrs. Penwarden, formerly of Kennetcook and Mr. Stewart, P. E. I., and Thomas Thomson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thomson, Belleisle, were united in marriage by the father of the bride in a very charming ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and ferns and the guest pews were marked with sprays of white flowers and ribbons. Preliminary chorus from Lohengrin, Mendelssohn's wedding march was the recessional. The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, George Chase of Grand Bay, was gowned in her floor length gown of white silk net over taffeta. The gown was patterned in Empire style, having fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore long lace mitts, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of roses, sweet pea, bride's bouquet and forget-me-nots. Similar flowers were used to fashion the bride's corsage which she was wearing. The bridegroom's gift, a gold locket on long chain, was her only ornament. Miss Marion Wiley, was bridesmaid, Pete Vaughn of Fredericton, groomsmen and James and David Thomson, brothers of the groom, ushers. Mrs. Penwarden, mother of the bride, was wearing navy blue crepe with wide navy hat, and matching accessories. Her corsage was of roses. Mrs. Thomson, mother of the groom, wore pine green with accessories to correspond, and a corsage of roses. Reception was held at the United Church Manse, where about 70 guests were received and were served a buffet supper.

The bride's table was very attractive, with bride's bouquet and fern in low vases encircling the beautifully decorated three-tier wedding cake. Serving were Mrs. Mary Starkey, Miss Annie Penwarden and the Misses Ellen and Sara Thomson. Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip through parts of New Brunswick, Maine and Quebec.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Chase, Grand Bay; Mr. Emma VanBarroom, Lynn, Mass.; Mrs. Fred Noble and Master Barrie Noble, Boston; Rev. C. F. Stebbings, Miss Doris McEwen, Miss Dorothy O'Neill, the Misses Oda and Hazel Phinney, Sussex; James Thomson, Charlottetown; and Miss Alice Kitchen and Pete Vaughn, Fredericton.

THE COACHMAN'S COCKADE

The coachman's cockade of which your grandfather was so proud was an emblem that only servants of royalty were entitled to use—servants of royalty included naval and military officers, diplomats, and other high officials. As worn by these the color was black and its introduction to England in that guise is attributed to the House of Hanover.

In the days of Charles the First a scarlet cockade was the fashion, which was superseded by the white badge of the Jacobites, and that in turn by the orange emblem of William of Orange. The later color is still used in the Netherlands.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Dorian, M.D.

REGAINING NERVOUS ENERGY

A professional man of high standing found himself becoming tired easily and very irritable at home and in his office. As he had been thoroughly checked over by his family physician and dentist, he knew there was no physical cause for his fatigue, nervousness and irritability. Down in his heart he knew that while hard work was partly to blame, worry was even more to blame, and yet he knew that he had less cause for worry than many of his friends and acquaintances who were not showing these signs of tired nerves.

His physician advised him as follows: "Bill, you need to build up some reserve nervous energy. You've always been a hard worker no recreations, no physical exercise, no recreation about your work, very ambitious. The time has come for you to stop expending energy and give your brain and body a chance to accumulate nervous energy. You were brought up on a farm, in fact, two of your brothers are still on the old homestead. Why not go back and do some work about the farm?"

"How will that help me?" asked the patient.

"It will help you in two ways. First, the physical work will give you a normal or natural appetite will enable you to enjoy and digest simple, nourishing foods, and you'll be so tired at night from the work and fresh air that you'll sleep for many hours. You will thus build up a strong healthy body with pure nourishing blood coursing through your brain and carrying away the worn wastes to be thrown from the body. But that is only the half of it. All the time you are engaged in the chores about the farm—ploughing, planting, reaping, milking, repairing the barn and farm machinery—you will be thinking of these chores and your mind will thus be free, all these hours, of the worries or excitements that were wearing on you while in the city."

It is by this method—work which requires thought and physical effort—that so many mental patients are now able to return home and to work. The hours they spend in work is just that many hours less at which they can worry about themselves, aside from the great benefit of building up strong muscles and nerves by the work itself.

Wallie Beery As "Sergeant Madden" At Prince Edward

Grimly gripping story of the New York police and of a father who must put a halt to the criminal activities of his own son, "Sergeant Madden", screening today and Saturday at the Prince Edward Theatre, presents Wallace Beery in his most masterful characterization to date.

As Sergeant Madden, thirty-year veteran of the force, soft-hearted, plodding and idealistic, Beery epitomizes the finest traits of "New York's Finest." He is the cop on the beat to the minutest detail. And as the father who must track down the son whom he has failed to impress with the traditions and ideals of the job, Beery is magnificent.

But a trio of youngsters presses him hard for honors. Alan Curtis as the son who tries a short-cut to promotion and finally is forced to turn bank-robber, plays a meaty role to the hilt, with a finely shaded progression of character from the time he first adopts and who marries Curtis, Laraine Johnson comes through with flying colors in this, her first important featured part, acquiring well for a newcomer a career to come. She is sensitive, clear-cut and convincing even to her Irish brogue.

Tom Brown, as the adopted son who joyfully adopts and who marries Curtis, Laraine Johnson comes through with flying colors in this, her first important featured part, acquiring well for a newcomer a career to come. She is sensitive, clear-cut and convincing even to her Irish brogue.

Screwball-and-Chain Gang Hilarious In "Up The River"

If you're in the mood for an evening of uproarious screwball comedy "Up The River", the new picture which opened yesterday at the Capital Theatre is just about the funniest combination of music, broad comic situations and razzle-dazzle football in many a season. The story focuses on a group of happy inmates in a mythical state prison which boasts a radio in every cell, gates that are practically revolving doors, and the best football team in the "Big Pen Conference."

Foster is completely at home in his first light comedy role and the elongated Arthur Treacher, as Foster's partner in crime and football, gives his most polished performance. Tony Martin and Phyllis Brooks are excellent in the romantic leads and the other star turned players include Slim Summerville, Bill Robinson, Alan Dinehart, Eddie Collins, Jane Darwell and Sidney Toler.

"Up The River" is a welcome relief from the familiar, cloying, grim prison melodramas. It is fast, boisterous, socially unimpeachable and enormously entertaining.
