Seal Pelts Case Hears Witness

The controversial 'seal pelt' case involving the ownership of a number of sealskins was re-opened yesterday in Supreme Court before Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy when the first of the witnesses for the defence was heard.

John P. Nicholson, QC, acting on behalf of the defendants, Dr. Marc Arsenault, Magdalen Islands and Louis Denker Inc. of New York, called as the first and only witness of the day, Alphonse Doyle who had been in the employment of Dr. Arsenault during the 1962 sealing season and had been in charge of operations on the ice fields.

Mr. Doyle described the events on the day of March 29 when trouble arose between the helicopter sealers (under Arsenault) and the sealers from the vessels North Star 6, Arctic Sealer, and the Polar Star (all plaintiffs in the case).

The witness testified that two men from the ships had cut some of his 'slings' of seals and then had threatened him with guns. He had to fight them off he explained.

Under cross-examination by Gordon Black, Halifax, Mr. Doyle testified that several of the pelts which he was shipping to the processing plant on the Magdalen Islands were found to have markings on them which might have indicated they belonged to the ships.

The case will continue this morning with the same witness on the stand.

VIEW SIDES

During the course of yesterday's session slides of the sealing operations of the year in question were viewed in order for the court to gain a better understanding as to what it was dealing with, and to select photos to be used in evidence later.

As he adjourned the session Mr. Justice Tweedy expressed his feeling that the counsel should try to get straight to the facts as this was a costly enough trial as it was without making it more so by lengthening it. Keeping one man (Doyle) on the stand for a whole day, and then having to call him back again the next day was "just a bit too much."

LETTER FROM

had been accused "in a manner which he (Mr. Martin) will regret."

REMAINS SILENT

Mr. Churchill remained silent when State Secretary Pickersgill asked him where he had obtained the letter.

Mr. Martin first challenged Mr. Churchill to identify the document from which he had quoted. Mr. Churchill said the letter was addressed to Mr. Pearson, signed W. W. Butterworth, bore the crest of the United States and the words "embassy of the United States of America."

Mr. Pearson was absent from the chamber when the letter was read and the subsequent battle developed. He soon hurried in to raise of question of privilege.

He said that when his attention was drawn during the election campaign to reports of such a document he "let it be known" that he had received no such letter and Mr. Butterworth "let it be known" that he had sent no such letter.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Churchill must have known this and that therefore the letter was a forgery.

Socred Split Is Widened

QUEBEC (CP) — Charles-Henri Roberge, chairman of the Social Credit executive in Quebec East constituency, said Monday he and 13 other members of the 20-man executive have decided to resign from the party and asked MP Robert Beaule to quit.

Mr. Roberge said the action was taken because it was impossible to know what was "at the bottom of the affair of the six." Six Social Credit members of Parliament from Quebec province last month signed a statement saying they would support the federal Liberal party. They later withdrew the statement.

Robert Beaule, member for Quebec East, was one of those signing the statement. At that time he said he had been misled into signing.

Three members of the executive met with Mr. Beaule during the weekend at his home. Mr. Roberge, one of the three, said Mr. Beaule stated he wants to make no immediate decision on resigning and plans to remain a member until July in order to study the situation.

Southport Man Said Talked Out Of 'Jump'

City police last night reported that a resident of the Southport district, name not revealed, had attempted to jump off the the old Hillsboro Bridge.

The man, who was apparently under the influence of alcohol, is said to have made his attempt at shortly after 7 p.m.

Both the city police and firemen and officers from the RCMP were rushed to the scene, and after a considerable amount of coaxing they managed to talk the man out of his intended jump.

While police were trying to prevent his jumping, two boats from the Charlottetown Yacht Club were despatched to the area and conducted a patrol beneath the old structure.

The police were eventually able to obtain custody of the man and he was transferred to the Charlottetown Hospital for treatment.

The local police said that pending their obtaining complete details, charges may be laid against the man in city police court.

Hundreds of persons swarmed over the parallel new bridge to watch the proceedings. The man kept edging further along the steel girder as his rescurers kept talking to him.

He divested himself of his coat, shirt and tie, which he piled up neatly and kept moving with him as he edged further along the span.

Police finally managed to talk him into leaving his precarious perch and helped him back to the bridge approach.

Island Wildlife Is Topic At Rotary Club Meet

F.A.S. Jones who has been actively interested in wildlife of the Island for many years, was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of Rotary in the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday.

Introduced by chairman, Wallace Rodd, Mr. Jones dealt with highly interesting information on the bird sanctuary at Miltown Cross, near Montague and the wild life park at North Rustico entrance to the National Park.

"The bird sanctuary was established by the late Harvey Moore in 1949 and only one pair of ducks came to the location the first year. In the follwing year about 50 became attracted to the sanctuary and by the end of 1959, after 10 years of care and attention, more than 6,000 birds recognized the location as indeed a sanctuary", Mr. Jones said.

"Mr. Moore inspired such confidence and trust that these completely wild birds would come to him, light on his shoulders, arms or head, feed out of his hands and allow themselves to be picked up and be banded without the use of traps", Mr. Jones said." He was making valuable studies of their habits at the time of his death.

"Thousands of wildfowl still frequent the sanctuary which his widow and son are still running, assisted by the Canadian Wildlife Service and the P.E.I. department of industries and resources.

SCHOLARSHIP HONORS

"The idea of a wildlife scholarship to honor Harvey Moore came from a realization that the ideals he stood for, and the good word he was carrying on, should, in some measure be perpetuated", the speaker said." It was also realized that in recent years our wildlife resources have dwindled and respect for game enforcement laws has greatly diminished.

"Little action has been taken to improve the situation or discover the cause of our shortage and some educational effort is badly needed", Mr. Jones stated.

With the approval and support of the department of education, the establishment of a scholarship by the P.E.I. Fish and Game Association has been carried out and it is the hope of the association that preparatory studies will be inaugurated in the schools so that increased knowledge of wildlife will be shared by all junior students with the scholarship acting as a future incentive, he said.

The trust fund and scholarship are on a secure foundation with $1,000 now in the fund. When the annual interest will provide $100 objective of $2,000 is reached, the annual interest will provide $100 for the scholarship. Donations are income tax free and will be accepted without charge at any branch of any chartered bank in the province, Mr. Jones said. The fund treasurer is E.K. MacNutt, Charlottetown.

TO FURTHER KNOWLEDGE

Mr. Jones concluded his talk with an outline of the attractions of the wildlife park "designed to further the knowledge of wildlife". During the school year study classes and other supervised groups are invited to visit the park by arrangement with the manager. The speaker was thanked by co-chairman E.K. MacNutt.
