BREAD FOR THE POOR.—A novel scheme to provide bread for the poor was recently successfully tested in Flint, Mich. There were 150 competitors among the ladies of the city to see who could bake the best loaf, each contestant to make three loaves, the winner to receive a valuable prize and the bread to be given to the poor.

CHOKED TO DEATH.—We hear with regret that while eating his dinner at noon yesterday, a man named Donald Matheson, living in the vicinity of Emerald, was accidentally choked to death with a piece of meat. Mr. Matheson was about 80 years of age, and was a respectable, well-to-do farmer. He leaves a widow and a family of nine, five boys and four daughters to mourn their loss.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—The Watchman announces that the Charlottetown Dramatic Club, under the leadership of Mr. W. C. Whitlock, have entered into an arrangement to perform the drama "Queen's Evidence," under the auspicies of the Benevo'ent Irish Society on Monday night, 18th March. St. Patrick's Day falls on Sunday this year, and the celebration will therefore take place on the 18th.

FOR HOME NURSES.—The trained nurse who finds herself in a sick room where the patient cannot be disturbed by the sweeping, keeps the carpeted floor wholesome and free from dust by wiping it over with a cloth wrung from warm water, in which a few drops of ammonia have been put. Unpholstered furniture, if such is in the room, is also treated in this way, and all dust taken off without being redistributed through the atmosphere.

HE BECAME IMPATIENT.—Little Johnny, having been invited out to dinner with his mother, was commanded not to speak at the table except when he was asked a question, and promised to obey the command. At the table no attention was paid to Johnny for a long time. He grew very restless, and his mother could see that he was having a hard time to "hold in." By and by he could stand it no longer. "Mamma," he called out, "when are they going to begin asking me questions?"

MOVEMENTS OF THE TRAINS.—The railway authorities are working hard to have the road opened up for traffic as quickly as possible, extra men being employed all along the line. The snow is said to be packed hard along the track, and in some places the drifts are seven and ten feet high. The train which left Charlottetown at seven o'clock, got to Royalty Junction at ten, and was well on her way to Wiltshire by two. A second train went out at ten o'clock to meet the train from Souris. She got to Bedford by two. The train which left Summerside at eight o'clock got to Bradalbane about ten, and at two o'clock she was somewhere between Bradalbane and Hunter River. The Tignish train left at six and got to Alberton at half-past twelve. The train from Georgetown was at St. Teresa's at two o'clock. The train from Souris was not at Bear River at that time. The Cape Traverse train was not any more than two miles from that place at two o'clock. She did not get out from the yard until eleven o'clock on account of the snow. Standard time is used in giving the foregoing information.

HORSE BREEDING IN CANADA.

The Empire points out that in six years, from 1887 to 1893, the reports of the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion show that the horses exported amount in value to over thirteen and a half million dollars. This was done in the face of the introduction of electricity and the rapid reduction in the use of the horse for purposes of transport, and herein lies the greatest lesson of the future for the Canadian farmer and breeder. Though there may be a market in the Old Country for development in the way of cart horses for use in the large cities—and there have been considerable exportations of late from Canada to meet the demand—the great future for Canadian breeding lies in the production of the high-class saddle and carriage horse. The Dominion has unequalled advantages for this purpose in climate and food. The first is unsurpassed in many ways by that of any other country in the world, for to the tempered heat of summer, which fosters and nurtures the horse, there follows the cold of winter, which makes him hardy and enduring. The great point is the breeding to correct types and the use of the best blood. While other counties have spent large sums oi money in introducing the thoroughbred and other high strains —it was only the other day that the Austrian Government paid close upon $100,000 for the English race horse Matchbox, to be used for breeding purposes in the Austrian Governmental stud—the provinces of Canada, and especially Ontario, have done little for the encouragement of breeding. The need of good blood is well illustrated by the visit of the purchasing deputation of officers for the English army a few years ago, when out of over 7,000 horses examined only 83 passed the critical eye of Col. Ravenhill, who found that for army purposes the ordinary run of Canadian horses was too short and drooping in the quarters, a defect which he considered might be removed by the use of thoroughbred instead of trotting blood.

The result of observation of the present field for breeding would point to the necessity of founding a stud which should include in its members the highest strains of the best types of horses—thoroughbred, hackney, Arab and trotting. There would seem to be a great opportunity for a movement in this direction, and if an enterprising and influential company were formed to take hold of such an enterprise, it should have an excellent prospect in the future, and there would be an excellent opportunity for provincial assistance, provided that the right lines were followed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

INFORMATION WANTED.

SIR,—Why are the meetings of the School Board not published in full, the same as the City Council? There seems to be a wide difference of opinion about the propriety of the Board undertaking to increase the salaries of the city teachers. Voting as a member of the Government to cut down the salaries and voting as a member of the School Board for an increase, is getting scientific hypocrisy down to a fine point. This is piling on the agony to the city tax payers with a vengeance.

COURT OF APPEAL IN EQUITY.

THE Court of Appeal in Equity met today, and at the time of writing was still in session considering the case of Mary Jane Stone, appellant, vs. Edward Mayhew, administrator, respondent. This is an action to try the appellant's claim for wages, she being a step-daughter of one Zachariah Mayhew, of whose estate the said Edward Mayhew is administrator.

Davies, Q. C., and Peters, Q. C., for appellant; Stewart, Q. C., for respondent.

PERSONAL.

It is pleasing to hear that Mrs. Laird is somewhat better to-day.

Mr. F. H. Arnaud has arrived safely at St. John's, after a stormy passage.

The Revs. Dr. Doyle and A. E. Burke were among the storm-stayed in the city since Monday.

Hon. D. Ferguson, since his arrival from Georgetown on Monday, has been unable to get out to Tulloch Farm.

Together with her host of friends, we are pleased to know that Mrs. Howlan who has been suffering from a severe attack of bronchitis, is able to be up in her room and will be about in a few days.

THE MAILS.—The outgoing foreign mail will be forwarded to Cape Traverse to-night, if the train can get through, and the Capes service will be opened up to-morrow. The incoming foreign mail has been ordered around to Cape Tormentine, and will be due there to-night. The mails now at Georgetown and Pictou will be taken across in the Stanley. The Bonshaw and Eldon couriers left Charlottetown for their respective destinations this forenoon, but were obliged to return on account of the deep snow before they had proceeded very far.

SEE Robinson Crusoe and the live goat at the Carnival to-morrow night.

Important Notice!

To all Contemplating the Erection or Equipment of Cheese or Butter Factories.

With increased facilities and a large addition of new and improved machinery, I am better than ever prepared to furnish the entire outfit I have supplied nearly all the Factories in the Province, and having the past large experience, I can assure you all that it will be to your advantage to place your orders with me as soon as possible. I know just what you require, and have the men to make it, and if you send in your orders early you will have neither worry nor delay.

My fifteen gallon Can is better and cheaper than ever. The Presses I furnish are the best in use, and the Vats I make are said by those competent to judge of them to be the best made in Canada. The Curd Mill is improved, it now being turned with a crank instead of a lever. The Knives and Scales and other furnishings are of the most modern pattern.

LINES

On the Death of Sir John Thompson, Premier of the Dominion of Canada.

Mourn, Canada! once more has death
His shaft remorseless sped,
'Mid wealth and splendor, pomp and power,
Her honored son lies dead.
Dead! on the threshold of his fame,
The guest of Britain's Queen,
Her tried and trusted counsellor,
Whose life too brief has been.

A king, in all but name, lies dead,
Uncrowned, yet crowned indeed.
Whom millions wreath with confidence,
No other crown doth need.
The costly circlet studded o'er
With gems and gold refined,
Fade into nothingness unless
It wreath the gifted mind.

'Tis these alone bid jewels shine,
'Tis these alone endow—
With grandeur, regal diadems
That grace the regal brow.
By these we judge a nation's worth,
That share this priceless gift;
No higher can a people rise
Than those whom they uplift.

The heart, still now, and cold in death,
Throbbed with a patriot's fire,
And fountains of unselfishness
Had quenched all base desire.
In kinship with earth's greatest minds,
That geeat might greater be,
To build throughout this empire vast
A grander unity.

Though mountain height and ocean depth
And distance vast divide,
That these by subtle mental power
Might still be unified.
These were the labors of his life,
This was the theme he taught,
That crown with living force and power
The majesty of thought.

While kindred loved surround his bier,
They mourn, yet not alone,
An empire's sympathy is their's,
From cottage to the throne.
'Tis our last tribute to his worth,
Who from his labors cease,
To say, in sad sincerity,
"Well done; rest thou in peace."

AGRICULTURE AND FREE TRADE.

According to the last census of Great Britain, the urban population of England and Wales appears as 71.7 per cent. out of the total, the rural being 28.3 per cent. The increase in the urban population in the decennium, 1881-1891, was found to be in England and Wales 15.3 per cent., while amongst the inhabitants of the rest of the country, considered as rural, the growth was only 3.4 per cent., showing that the urban population of England increases much more rapidly than the rural. In Scotland a similar movement of population has occurred. In the decade ending with 1891, the population of the principal town districts in Scotland increased 12.63 per cent; of the larger town districts, 20.51 per cent; and of the small town districts, 6.26 per cent; while the population of the mainland rural districts actually declined 0.55 per cent. in the decade, and that of the insular rural districts declined 3.41 per cent. In this connection we may quote from the London Economist of June 6th, 1891:—

"There is yet no official record as to the decrease in English and Welsh agricultural districts during the past decade, but we know that in the previous decade the agricultural population of England and Wales declined in number by 16 per cent. which is a rate of decrease very much higher than any Ireland has shown during the past forty years. Evidence that it is in connection with Ireland's agricultural proclivities that we must seek principally for an explanation of the decrease in her population, is afforded by the fact that whilst her general population has declined during the decade (1881-91) over 9 per cent., the population of her chief towns, such as Belfast, Dublin and Londonderry, whose inhabitants do not depend upon agriculture for a livlihood, shows considerable augmentation."

These facts conclusively establish the point that under the free trade system population becomes congested in the cities, towns and manufacturing centres, and that an exodus takes place from the rural districts; and it follows that these peculiar movements of population cannot be due to a protective fiscal policy, as Mr. Laurier, straining truth to score a political point, would have the people believe.
