

SHE AND NIKITA LIVE QUIETLY

Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev, above giving the first account of the activities of her husband since his illness, said in Moscow Tuesday that she and the deposed Soviet leader were living quietly in the country and that he has "made an astonishing recovery" from a long bout of kidney trouble. Khrushchev, now 72, has been living in seclusion since his ouster from power in October, 1964. (AP Wirephoto)

MEDICAL RECORDS

Toronto Doctor Suggests Danger

By KEN KELLY
OTTAWA (CP) — A central system of medical records raises a potential danger of political blackmail, a Toronto doctor suggests in an article in the current edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal. "Each political party in Canada has suffered the indignity of having someone high in its councils betray its trust," writes Dr. L. J. Genesove, assistant executive director of the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation. "In future some individual in a sensitive position may attempt to secure politically useful information through a central system of medical care records."

be removed from the hands of insurance and of governmental agencies." He suggests an independent records agency with the built-in safeguards of being set up for clinical, not administrative, purposes and managed by those with professional responsibility. "The extra cost of such an agency in medical care insurance could be justified by protecting the patient's privacy and promoting a higher standard of medical care."

Bishop Gives Backing To Church Union

"Ridiculous! The alleged medical record of a recent candidate for the presidency of the United States was used in the campaign against him. However, well it may be argued that the economic interests of the patient are served, or will be, by present or prospective medical care plans. The threat of invasion of patient privacy constitutes a clear and present danger to the patient-physician relationship so vital for good medical care."

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — An Anglican bishop who confessed he was brought up in "prejudice" urged United Church members Tuesday to join a worldwide tide of church union. "I am completely committed to ecumenism," Rt. Rev. George Luxton, Anglican Bishop of Huron, said at the Hamilton conference of the United Church of Canada.

"I was brought up in a matrix of prejudice. I believed God was Anglican, spoke English, was white and was entirely in favor of the British Empire."

"Then, I thought the Roman Catholics were my enemies. The Pope was Anti-Christ and I had a vague and indecisive feeling about yourselves. I lived in prejudice and thought it was the natural habitat of the Christian Anglicans."

STILL HOLDS SOME
Bishop Luxton said he didn't think he was free of all prejudices yet. He expressed the hope that delegates would not be satisfied with a local, partial and sectarian view of the ecumenical movement, but would let themselves be caught in the worldwide tide of ecumenism.

Speaking of the possible union of the two churches, he said: "The principles of union do not contain Anglicanism per se, and this rejoices my heart. Perhaps it rejoices yours too."

"Does it stick in your crop that the principles of union favor Anglicans? They do not. And if you study them, you will see that what we carry into union is not Anglicanism. It is the character of the undivided church."

During the 1962 campaign, then prime minister Diefenbaker produced a medical certificate of good health at a press conference to counter what he called a whispering campaign that he suffered from Parkinson's disease.

Dr. Genesove says that on medical grounds the records of patients in recent years have been available to a widening circle of persons — consultants, physicians, social workers, psychologists, nurses' aid, physiotherapists, occupational therapists, medical record librarians, ward clerks and others.

Dr. Genesove says there is an "increasingly clear danger deriving from the fact that in many situations this type of information is already in the hands of individuals who use it for economic reasons and may be tempted to extend this use to fulfill political ends."
