sum would be quite sufficient; for the people could do very well with the roads pretty nearly as they were, if they had enough for the bridges.

Mr. DAVIES. The Notes of Hand spoken of were unworthy of consideration: no man would take them for the trouble of collecting them. But, if they did wish to look after defaulters, let them first look after the large proprietors, and endeavour to recover the large amounts due by them to the Government. Let them look after the Fishery Reserves; if taken possession of as they ought to be for the benefit of the people, they would yield a large revenue to the country. Those of the Hillsborough alone would yield £900 a year.

Hon. Mr. COLES replied to Mr. Davies that if he would only allow the Government time, he would find that they would as speedily as possible bring great defaulters to account, and that they would also effectually look after the Fishery Reserves, the marshes of which would certainly afford them a considerable annual income. With regard to those proprietors who were indebted to the Government, under the Road Compensation Act, he begged to state for the information of the hon. member for Belfast, that measures were in preparation for the enforcing payment of the large sums due by them to the Government, but the hon. the Colonial Secretary had not been able to get their bonds out of the hands of the late Attorney General until very lately.

Hon. Mr. WARBURTON stated that, although he had made repeated applications for those Bonds, he had only got some of them since the meeting of the Legislature.

The Hon. the SPEAKER. He saw that, in 1843, when the Revenue was under £14,000, the appropriation for the road service was close upon £4000; and even when it was not over Sixteen thousand Pounds, the amount granted had been £8000. He thought one sixth of the revenue was the least that had ever been voted. The average of the last ten or twelve years, was, he believed one fifth. He could see no reason why a line of conduct so different should now be proposed. Even when he and the hon. member from Bedeque differed very widely in their opinions, concerning other most important questions, they were agreed as to the policy of making liberal grants for roads and bridges; and, he recollected well they concurred in the propriety of making a large grant for the great western road, and had the satisfaction to see it carried. Some hon. members said the roads were at present in a very good state of repair; and others said a small amount of statute labour had, of late, been performed upon them. That little statute labour was actually expended upon the roads, he believed; and, moreover, he believed that that labor would never be more effectually performed, so long as the people continued to be of opinion that the principal recipients of their money were better paid for their services than they (the people) for the performance of their contracts. They believed that if they were to perform all their statute labor, they would never see one dollaring of the public money. He was glad to hear that applications for special grants were not to be entertained; for they had often been a source of discord; and the House, against their better judgement had frequently suffered themselves to be worried into compliance with such demands. He would support a motion for £3500.

Some discussion then ensued concerning the mode of defraying the expense of labour performed upon the winter roads, which terminated in an understanding that it should not be taken out of general grant, but be provided for by a separate appropriation.

A Resolution, submitted by Mr. Wightman, to the effect that the general grant for the three Counties should be £3500 was then agreed to.

After two or three different scales for the division of the appropriation had been submitted and lost, the following Resolution was agreed to:

RESOLVED, That the sum of Three thousand five hundred pounds be granted for the service of the Roads, Bridges, and Wharfs, for the present year, in addition to the amounts which may be realized in labor on the several Promissary Notes due to the Government by destitute settlers for seed grain, &c. and that the said sum be divided among the three Counties as follows:

Queen's, County	£1,340
King's "	1,080
Prince "	1,080
	£3,500

It was also Resolved, That £150 be granted to defray the contingent expenses on Roads, Bridges, and Wharfs for the present year, to be equally divided among the three Counties, should the same be required.

And likewise, That £300 be granted and placed at the disposal of the Lieut. Governor in Council, or as much thereof as may be required, to be expended in the laying out and altering of Highways.

ERRATUM.—In a short speech of Mr. Douse's, having reference to the Despatch of Earl Grey, relative to the Fees of Office received by the late Colonial Secretary, the hon. member is made to say, "He (Mr. H.) had plently hanging over his head." The words ought to have been "He had had it long enough hanging over his head."

HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1852.

The Colonial and United States mails arrived in Town last evening—The English mail had not arrived at Halifax—We copy from the New Brunswicker some items of news from Europe received via New York of a date somewhat later than in our last.—

The chief topic of interest in England continues to be the prospect of war with France, and the necessity of prompt measures for the national defence. Rifle-clubs are forming all over the kingdom. Even the "beans and bulls" of the Stock Exchange are organising companies and shooting at targets. The Board of Ordnance have issued proposals to the gun-makers of London and Birmingham for the supply of 23,000 rifle muskets.

The Daily News of the 24th contains the following:—

Some rumors as to French affairs have been set afloat to-day, and have caused anxiety; but the stock market, although little business has been done, has shown great firmness. It cannot, nevertheless, be denied, that the possibility of a French invasion has taken strong hold of the public mind, and is eagerly canvassed, and that already an impression has been made by which the traditions of six-and-thirty years of peace are seriously shaken. It is long, indeed, since the tone of public feeling has been so expressed as it is now. On other occasions, the danger of war and invasions was discussed as remote and contingent; but now, though its occurrence is not invited, it is looked upon as imminent, and the position of the country as urgent.

IRELAND.

Considerable exertions are being made to bring about the construction of a railway from Belfast to Galway.

The Roman Catholic Defence Association gives signs of approaching dissolution.

FRANCE.

The correspondent of the London Morning Chronicle writes from Paris, January 25th, as follows:—

I am creditably informed that at the present moment the President's whole idea is with respect to the invasion of England; that he had consulted Generals, studied the plans of the Boulogne expedition, received reports on the feasibility of the passage of the Channel, &c.—There is not a man connected with the Elysee that does not affect to speak of the invasion as an affair that is not only practicable, but which will be attempted. Let it not be supposed that a pretext is necessary. There are, unhappily, too many points, on all of which it would be easy to rouse the feelings of the French nation, and any one of which would be an excuse for war. The friends of Louis Napoleon imagine—and I fear imagine truly—that the French people want to have their revenge for the defeat at Waterloo, and for the banishment of the Emperor at St. Helena. Such a war, they say, would be popular, and in such circumstances why should they not undertake it? I know nothing of the feelings of other countries, but here the belief is, that Russia would join in any attack which the French might depose to make on England. Certain it was, that since the 2d of December the representative of Russia has been most assiduous in his attendance at the Elysee, and the most honored of the diplomatic corps; that Russian orders are more plentiful in Paris at the present moment, than they have ever been since 1848; and that both amongst the French and the Russians it is currently stated that an arrangement between France and Russia could easily be managed, for that Russia would not interfere with the extension of the French frontier to the Rhine, if France would permit Russia to seize on Constantinople.

☞ Several columns of Debate and News—a Report of the meeting of the Association for promoting christianity among the Jews—and some Communications are crowded out, but will be given in an Extra before the end of the week.

Greatest improvement in Daguerreotype Art.

Mr. HOBS

WOULD respectfully inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of this place, wishing to procure a Miniature of themselves or friends, that they can obtain the most perfect that can be produced by this wonderful art, in a new and improved style, practised by no other Artists in North America, to produce the beautiful pearly circle enclosing the two Pictures, resembling in shades that of the rainbow and the blue sky seen outside; also, to take Pictures of Likenesses with the right side to the right—views are beautifully taken in this manner.

Delay not then, as opportunity shall present, to secure these memorials of life, which, under the trying circumstances of a final separation of friends, no price can purchase. As his stay here will be short, all will do well to avail themselves of an early opportunity to secure their Miniatures.

Satisfaction given, or no Charge!
