specially invited by the good Sisters of the Congregation de Notre Dame, and the entertainment was chiefly designed for them. His Worship the Mayor, and some members of the learned Professions, apart from the Legislature, availed themselves of a generous invitation to be present; and seemed to be animated by profound gratification at the delightful entertainment afforded. The Mayor, in a few graceful words, complimented the Ladies of the Convent on the excellent training of the pupils, and requested the Lady Superioress to give them a holiday, which request was readily granted. The Hon. Mr. Coles, and the Hon. Mr. Hensley, and Mr. Whelan, also spoke very briefly in commendation of the admirable entertainment which had been given to them, and expressed their thanks to the Ladies of the Convent for inviting them on the occasion.

FIRES.

Two more fires occurred since our last issue. The first broke out on Monday evening, in a stable situated in the rear of the block of buildings occupied by Theophilus DesBrisay, Esqr., and others, on the corner of Queen and Grafton Streets; and was caused, it is supposed, by carelessness in the use of a candle in a hayloft. There was a prompt attendance of the Fire Companies and Engines, and there being a good supply of water in the Tank close at hand, the fire was subdued before any serious damage was done.

The second fire of the week—(but the fourth for the season)—occurred in the building owned by the Hon. J. C. Pope on Grafton Street, and occupied by Mrs. D. J. Roberts. It broke out in the forenoon, and was caused, we understand, by some defect in one of the parlour chimneys, where a good fire had been made at the time. This fire was also fortunately suppressed before it could make any serious headway. There was a little damage done to the part of the building in which the fire originated, and also some damage to the furniture; but nothing, we believe, to be seriously felt by the owner or occupier.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF VALPARAISO.

The most important and startling item of foreign news received during the past week is that which relates to the bombardment and destruction of Valparaiso by the Spanish fleet. We know that Spain and Chili have been at war for some time, and this bombardment is one of the melancholy effects of it. The Admirals in command of the British and United States fleets, in the harbor of Valparaiso, protested against the bombardment before it commenced, as it would involve the destruction of a large amount of neutral property. The protest was in vain; the havoc was indiscriminate, neutral property to the value of many millions of dollars was destroyed; and Valparaiso is a mass of ruins. We shall not be surprised to hear that Spain has involved herself in considerable difficulties on account of this now apparently wanton destruction of property.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We have received, during the last two or three weeks, several lengthy communications; but the demand upon our space for the insertion of parliamentary reports, renders it wholly impossible for us to publish them at present.

☞ The pressure upon our space by Legislative proceedings and new advertisements, compels us to defer some editorial articles connected with our parliamentary affairs. We hope next week to have leisure and space enough to review at some length the events of the Session just about closing.

☞ We give, in another part of our paper, an interesting sketch of the history of the Fourth Regiment (or King's Own.) The two Companies now stationed in this Garrison are part of that Regiment; and it is well to know the antecedents of a brave Regiment on a portion of whose force we rely for protection.

The First Spring Ship from England.—The Barque Undine, Kickham, Master, owned by the Hon. J. C. Pope, arrived here on Friday morning, after a successful passage of twenty-seven days. She has brought a full cargo of merchandise for Charlottetown, which will no doubt give life and activity to the trade of the City, after the long and dull winter through which it has passed.

BURNING OF PORT AU PRINCE.

A TERRIBLE SCENE—ONE THOUSAND HOUSES DESTROYED — EIGHT THOUSAND PEOPLE HOUSELESS.

New York papers furnish full details of the terrible conflagration which devastated and almost entirely destroyed Port au Prince, the capital of Hayti, on the morning of Monday, the 19th of March. A special correspondent says:—

We had just arrived in the city from our little country place, about 7 o'clock in the morning when the alarm of fire was raised, and before we could run to the scene, it was sweeping with terrific fury right through the heart of the city. It broke out in the most thickly settled district, and a strong breeze from the land swept it toward the sea.

The houses were as dry as tinder, parched for many months by the hot tropical sun, it being the dry season at this time, and the least spark on the shingle roofs was sufficient to set them in a blaze. Such a scene of confusion and terror I never before witnessed. The inmates had barely time to catch a few articles and run for their lives, many were still in bed, and escaped with nothing but their night clothes. The women were running through the streets screaming, many of them half clothed, and the men were entirely incapable of doing anything to arrest the flames. One or two broken down engines were found, but not one could raise a stream higher than the eaves of the houses, and there was no water to feed them, except the contents of the gutters in the streets.

There was no system or order; a great many generals, decked out with gold lace epaulets, were riding furiously around, running over people, and yelling out orders that were not heeded in the least. Many of the men were engaged in pilfering the houses and getting drunk on the liquors which they found. Not a few stumbled into the fire, and were either burned to death, or crushed by falling timbers. One poor woman had lost everything, and, in the frenzy of the moment, rushed into the flames, and was dragged out a blackened corpse. The streets were crowded with people, carrying their furniture and valuables where they thought they would be secure, and rushing here and there with panic-stricken faces.

Many of the merchants took their money and most valuable things to the ships in the harbor, or to fire-proof buildings, and many of them took their money on their shoulders, in coffee bags, and held it there for lack of a safer place.

In the meantime the fire ran with marvellous swiftness, and before ten o'clock it had gone from almost the centre of the town and laid low everything in its track to the sea. More than two hundred houses were in ashes already, and we hoped it would rest here. Every one believed that it had fairly spent itself, but we were doomed to bitter disappointment.

The land breeze died away, and before long in came the sea breeze, and fanned the smouldering embers into flames once more. A few houses that had been saved by great exertion had to succumb to the terrible returning wave of fire which now came back over its former track. It now commenced burning everything toward the limits of the city, and swept on with fearful rapidity. I was struck with the seeming eagerness with which it would leap over some houses and burn those beyond first. The people were now absolutely wild with terror, for it seemed as though every house in town would be in ashes before night.

Swarms of men were drunk with stolen liquors and lying helplessly in the streets. The women, shrieking with fright, with their children, with huge bundles on their heads, were coming to the large field just outside of the town. Such a scene can only be imagined.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the fire had burned the last house on the edge of the town, and again died away for want of fresh fuel. It had done fearful work. More than two thirds of the city was in ashes, many hundred houses destroyed, and thousands of people made houseless. Nearly all of the principal business houses are destroyed, and millions of dollars worth of property. How many have been killed or injured I do not know, but I fear that the mortality is heavy.

March 26, 1866.—The terrible fire of which I have given you a short account above has unsettled everything very much. About one thousand houses have been destroyed, six or eight thousand persons rendered homeless, and probably not less than fifteen millions (gold) of property lost. It has, I fear, given a mortal blow to the prosperity of the city, and Port au Prince is likely to become a city of the past.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

If the following statement, which appears in the New England papers, and over which our neighbours are chuckling mightily, is correct, we may as well bid good bye to the Bay of Fundy Fisheries.

"The Point of the Fishery Dispute. W. B. Lawrence, the annotator of "Wheaton's Elements of International Law," produces a very important point in relation to the dispute upon the Fishery question with Canada or Great Britain, or both. He says that in 1853 a convention was constituted to refer the adjustment of certain claims of American citizens upon Great Britain, and of British citizens upon the United States. During those proceedings there was a question decided upon the claim of an American citizen for compensation for a fishing vessel seized in the Bay of Fundy in 1842. A British Admiralty Court had condemned it upon the "headland" interpretation of the existing treaties, by which the Bay of Fundy was claimed to be not open to American fishermen within three miles of the shore. The vessel fished in the bay, ten miles from the shore. The umpire decided that the Bay of Fundy, which is from sixty-five to seventy five miles wide, is not an excluded bay within the meaning of the treaties then in force, and awarded compensation to the owners of the American vessel which had been seized. Mr. Lawrence believes that this decision is binding upon both countries, as a thing adjudicated and not open to further discussion. This decision, which is little known, was not rendered until 1855, and after the Reciprocity treaty with Canada. The latter being abrogated, we come back to the original treaties, which are construed in favor of the United States by the decision referred to."

The explosion on board the steamer European, at Aspinwall, which resulted in the death of some 46 persons, the wounding of some 17 or more, and the destruction of a large amount of property, was caused by the igniting of Nitric Glycerine, which is thus described in the Boston Journal:—

"This compound, more commonly known as blasting oil, is a pale yellow oily liquid of 1·6 gravity, insoluble in water. It does not explode by direct flame, and when exploded by a fuse or concussion leaves no residue. It explodes with great rapidity and force, and the discoverer claims that it can be kept an indefinite time without decomposition. A few drops on an anvil detonates under the blow of a hammer, but the explosion is not communicated beyond the drop which receives the blow, and repeated blows are required to detonate the whole quantity. It can be heated to 212° Fahrenheit without igniting, but explodes at about 350° Fahrenheit.

"Glycerine is the sweet principle of oil, and is extensively used for purposes of the toilet. In 1847 a pupil of M. Pelouze, (M. Sobrero), discovered that glycerine, when treated with nitric acid, was converted into a highly explosive substance which he called nitro-glycerine. It is oily, heavier than water, soluble in alcohol and ether, and acts so powerfully on the nervous system that a single drop placed on the tip of the tongue will cause a violent headache which will last for several hours."

BOMBARDMENT OF VALPARAISO.

New York, May 2.

The Spanish fleet off Valparaiso, on the 31st March, opened fire on the town of Valparaiso, and continued the bombardment until noon, up to which time the principal Government buildings, including the Custom House, and the entire business part of the city, containing $20,000,000 worth of neutral property were reduced to ashes. The inhabitants fled to the surrounding hills. The Spanish Admiral, on the 27th, informed the authorities of Valparaiso, that he had been ordered to bombard the city, and that he would do so in four days. All the Foreign Representatives remonstrated, but the only effect seems to have been loss of time for the removal of the neutral property. The British Admiral, it would seem, at the last moment receded from the position taken by him at first, and Commodore Rodgers did not feel that it was his duty to resist the Spanish fleet single handed.....Gold 126⅞.

SPECIAL RECEPTION OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, C. W., May 3.

A grand reception was given last night to the Governor General, Monck, on the occasion of his arrival here to take up his permanent residence. It was a public holiday, and triumphal arches were erected in the streets, and the Volunteers, Firemen, and citizens generally turned out to meet him upon his arrival. The Mayor read an address of welcome, and pledged the citizens of Ottawa, in common with the rest of the people of Canada, to defend their rights and liberties, and also British connexion. The Governor General replied in a stirring speech, and said that the armed demonstrations which circumstances compelled the people of the Provinces to make were not without profit; they had given vigorous national life in British America, which people were both willing and able to defend. The same feeling in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, gives an earnest of increased vitality from the political Union which he confidently expected would soon take place. The Home Government had signified its unqualified approbation of the measures taken for the defence of the Provinces, and had promised to send all the reinforcements that may be asked.

The Fenians are still Moving about in the same mysterious manner as before, going from place to place without any apparent object. As a rule they are quiet and orderly, and appear to be in thorough subjection to their superiors. A given signal from one of their officers will call them together in a moment, and those who have watched their movements closely say they deal greatly in signs.

The day before yesterday there were forty of them at Robbinston, and we learn that a company of United States troops is to be stationed at that town. At Calais there are arrivals and departures almost daily.

Reports, which appear to be accurate, say they drill regularly at Bog brook, a short distance below Calais. What appeared to be three or four red coats were observed drilling with them the other day, but they were undoubtedly Fenians wearing red shirts to create the false idea that there had been deserters from this side to their ranks.

No doubt, they have provided themselves with arms. The shooting affair on the bridge the other day proves that; and a creditable witness informs us that as he was driving a short distance down the river on Wednesday, he met a drove of them who carried carbines, swords, pistols, and similar formidable weapons. They appeared then to be on their way to their drill ground.—St. Croix (N. B.) Courier.

Notice of Removal!

W. H. WILSON

WOULD inform the Public that he is now moving from the corner of Great George and Kent Streets, to the SHOP long occupied by Donald McIsaac, Esq., on Queen Street, immediately below the Market Square.

Having refitted this old Business stand, and put it in perfect order for a Dry Goods Store!

He shall be happy to welcome his numerous customers at his NEW ESTABLISHMENT! and will be in a position, on the arrival of the Ariadne from Glasgow, and the Lotus from London, to supply the public with every article of MERCHANDIZE common to the Trade!
Charlottetown, May 7th, 1866.

Intended Removal.

WE intend, in a few days, removing to the SHOP in Queen Street, adjoining that of Jas. McCraith, Esq., and opposite Hon. Daniel Brenan's, where, on the arrival of the English Vessels, we will open a large Stock of GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

Intending, for the future, to conduct our business entirely on the CASH SYSTEM, we will mark our Goods at much less than the usual rate of profit, as an inducement to CASH BUYERS to favor us with their patronage.
DELANY & BYRNE.

Those indebted to us whose accounts are over-due, will oblige us by settling them immediately.

May 7, 1866.

REMOVAL.

DR. W. G. Sutherland has removed from his late residence on Queen Street, to the corner of Kent and Great George Streets, and would respectfully inform his friends and customers, that by late arrivals of direct importations from Europe, he has greatly added to his large Stock of Drugs, Chemicals, Perfumery, and Toilet Articles in variety.

DR. SUTHERLAND returns thanks for the patronage so liberally extended to him since his residence in Charlottetown, and hopes the same may be continued towards him; trusting that, by assiduity and attention in every branch of his profession, he will retain the confidence of the public.

The Dispensary is under the Doctor's own supervision.

Advice to the poor Gratis.
