

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

APRIL 15, 1889.

Notes and Clippings.

The Amherst Gazette says:—It is evident that, unless there be a strong moral sentiment which will exert itself in giving effect to such laws, either the Scott Act or a prohibitory act is of little service. They are not like a patent, self-acting machine, but require to be put in motion by the operation of machinery of some complication.

When the Globe veered round on the question of the disallowance of the Jesuits' Estates Act all men wondered. Mr. Mercier has suggested the motive by saying that every hour the Globe utters against the Liberal party in Quebec politics. There are wheels within wheels. Perhaps Mr. Mercier himself put the Globe up to this little game.

The members of the Legislative Council have not yet completed their business; and it is said that they will adjourn for a week. It seems that they want some information which, the Government contend, is already fully given in the public accounts and statements which have been brought down. One thing is certain,—they may adjourn for a week or a year, but the facts will not be changed, nor will any good thing (for the country) be effected. Their Honors have adjourned until seven o'clock this evening.

The Fire Alarm.

A PLAN for the locating of the electric fire alarm boxes has been prepared by Mr. A. E. Morrison, Electrical Engineer, which has, we understand, been approved by the Committee of Council in charge of the work of erection. The boxes will be placed as follows:—

- Water and Queen Streets.
Dorchester and Pownal Streets.
Queen and Dorchester Streets.
Dorchester and Gt. George Streets.
Dorchester and Prince Streets.
Sydney and Weymouth Streets.
Richmond and Rochford Streets.
Queen and Richmond Streets.
Gt. George and Richmond Streets.
Prince and Richmond Streets.
Pownal and Grafton Streets.
Queen and Grafton Streets.
Prince and Grafton Streets.
Weymouth and Grafton Streets.
Kent and Rochford Streets.
Gt. George and Kent Streets.
Hillsborough and Kent Streets.
Fitzroy and Prince Streets.
Gt. George and Fitzroy Streets.
Hillsborough and Fitzroy Streets.
Cumberland and Fitzroy Streets.
Euston and Rochford Streets.

Prince and Euston Streets.
Orlebar and Euston Streets.
St. Peter's Road and Euston St.
Long Street and Spring Park Rd.
Bayfield Street and Malpeque Rd.
Upper Prince Street, (near Methodist Church).

Keys will be deposited at the police station, at houses in the neighborhood of the boxes, and with the policemen and firemen.

Wardens Clarkin, Crabbe, Campbell, Davy and Hooper, the committee appointed to locate the bells in firemen's houses, have reported in favor of the putting in of one bell each, as follows:—

- Captain Wonnacott, John Wonnacott, John Milford, Upper Great George Street.
John McKinnon, Euston Street, between Queen and Pownal. (Has telephone.)
Michael Carraghan, Chas. McQuillan, Jas. McQuillan, Coyle's House, corner Richmond and Rochford Streets.

Letter from Hon. D. Ferguson.

ST.—Having made my statement in the House of Assembly regarding the conduct of Judge Alley in writing political articles and lobbying members of the Legislature, I did not intend to be drawn into any newspaper discussion, believing, as I still do, that the matter should be subjected to a judicial investigation. The Rev. J. M. McLeod's letters demand, however, a few observations from me.

About a year ago, in a street conversation, Mr. McLeod, without any interrogation on my part, or any injunction of secrecy from him, volunteered certain information regarding the authorship of a very unfair article which appeared in the Guardian during the partial elections in Tignish and Belfast, and of which great electioneering use had been made to the prejudice of the Conservative candidates, Messrs. Gallant and McLean, and led me to believe that Judge Alley was the writer. Mr. McLeod assured me that that article was not written by either of the sub-editors, Rev. Mr. Carruthers or himself, or by the editor-in-chief, the Rev. Mr. Frame. He added in substance that the article, when it came to the office, was objectionable, but that the acting sub-editor had so changed it as to make it, in his opinion, suitable to the columns of the Guardian, but he, Mr. McLeod, was sorry to find that the astute lawyer who wrote it had misled the Editor. I was not at all surprised at Mr. McLeod's statement because I was well aware that Judge Alley was in the habit of writing political articles, and I was also aware that Mr. McLeod had previously made a similar explanation respecting the Guardian article, to another gentleman, stating that Judge Alley was the writer.

Mr. McLeod's first letter was not such as might be expected from him. In it he withheld the material fact, that the charge against Judge Alley, as far as the Guardian article of the 3rd of March, 1888, was concerned, rested for aught he knew, to the contrary on the sole authority of his own word. The unpleasant impression is thus conveyed, that, if he had not been interrogated by THE EXAMINER, he would have left those who believed his word, resting under the stigma of falsehood as a penalty for the confidence they reposed in his veracity.

The reverend gentleman now says that the article in question was sent to him by the late editor. How then did Mr. McLeod receive the impression at the time, which he freely communicated, all of which, he now admits, that Judge Alley was the writer? Mr. McLeod now says that "as far as he knows" the article referred to was written or dictated by the late editor. How then, did the sub-editor undertake to change its contents? Those who knew the Rev. Mr. Frame will not readily admit, on a mere supposition, that he would submit to have anything he wrote for his own paper, changed by any person; and as one who had the pleasure of enjoying that lamented gentleman's personal friendship and knew something of his sterling character, I must be excused if I have to reject any theory regarding the authorship of the article referred to which rests on the assumption that Mr. Frame wrote or dictated anything for his paper which had to be regarded as objectionable by so good a judge as the Rev. Mr. Carruthers.

Regarding the nature of the article referred to, as it appeared, I must express my astonishment at Mr. McLeod's statement that its authorship "would not stain the ermine of our venerable Chief Justice." Passing over the fact—which I will leave the reverend gentleman to explain—that, at the time, he considered the article so compromising that he disclaimed its authorship, on behalf of Mr. Carruthers, Mr. Frame and himself, I will point out one or two of its features and leave the reader to conclude whether any judge could write it without staining his ermine. In its reference to the Tignish candidates, the strongest possible objection was taken to Mr. Gallant, on the ground that he had been engaged in the illicit sale of spirituous liquors, and the moral sentiment of the District was appealed to to vote against him, but the article made no reference whatever to the fact that the Grit candidate, Mr. McLellan, had been engaged in the same illicit business." Alluding to the Belfast candidates, the writer said that he had the assurance of Mr. H. C. McDonald, that he would sustain the Scott Act in the Legislature, but the fact was not given that this same Mr. McDonald had, only a few months previously, signed the anti-Scott Act petition! It is true the article abounded in professions of non-partisanship; but it is easy to see that these were introduced with the same intention as Mark Antony's disclaimers of any desire to fan popular prejudice against Brutus.

I will leave the public to decide whether the charge of political partisanship made by me in the House of Assembly, against Judge Alley can be regarded as an "unjust attack," even in respect to the authorship of the Guardian article of the 3rd of March, 1888, and I submit that Mr. McLeod's obliging disposition has got the better of his judgment, when he undertakes to pronounce a decided opinion on other parts of the "case, in regard to which, he cannot be in possession of any reliable information.

I am, yours, &c., D. FERGUSON. Ch'town, April 15, 1889.

A Great Moral Wave.

Referring to the success of the Scott repeal movement in Ontario, the Ottawa Citizen says: The champions of temperance and total abstinence need not despair; many of them have done great and good work; some of them, by an extreme policy, have done harm to the cause. Still the stars in their course are on the side of moderation, and, as compared with ten years ago, a great moral wave has passed over every province in the Dominion; good example has done much to reduce the volume of ardent spirit consumption, common sense has taught men who desire to succeed, that success is not to be achieved by putting an enemy into one's mouth, to steal his brains away. Where repeal has succeeded, where licenses may hereafter be issued, let all honest candid temperance men seek by moral influences to encourage the people to abstain from the use of ardent spirits; if not total abstinence, then the next best thing. The temperance advocates have done good work in the past; they should not now lose faith in a noble cause.

"ABDALLAH MESSENGER."

ABDALLAH MESSENGER, 4869, is coming, and looking well. He will be in Charlottetown on Tuesday, April 30, at the stables of Mr. Andrew Doyle, New York, in 1883, on Saturday, May 4; then to Emerald by train, and remain there till 5 o'clock; then home to the owner's stable, and remain there till Wednesday, May 5; then to Summerside, where he will stand at Geo. Mutser's stable, Water Street, until Saturday, May 11, at 10 o'clock; then home to the owner's stable, and remain till May 14; then to Charlottetown, to the stables of Mr. Andrew Doyle. This route will be continued fortnightly during the season, health and weather permitting. This beautiful horse is the sire of the fastest stock that ever left the Lower Provinces—Bijou, 2:24, and several others—and is the sire of the finest brood mares in the Lower Provinces. They must be, for those who have stock horses want these Abdallahs for brood mares. There is no use in pulling ABDALLAH MESSENGER. He is a real star, and my mare sent a distance will be carefully looked after. The owner is going to limit him to eighty mares this season. He proved successful last season. All his mares proved to be in foal, with few exceptions. His stock brings gold every time.

PEDIGREE: Abdallah Messenger was foaled on Long Island, New York, in 1863, on the farm of Mr. Peter Vanderveer. Abdallah Messenger was got by Jupiter Abdallah, sire of Result, 2:25, Prince, 2:27, and two mares, 2:25; he by Jupiter, sire of Harry Gilbert, 2:24, and three in the 2:30 class or better; son of Long Island Black Hawk; sire of Prince, 2:24, by old Andrew Jackson, founder of the Jay family of trotters. Abdallah Messenger's dam was by Louglin's Grey Messenger, sire of Honest Dutchman, 2:20, and his grand-dam was a very fast mare from imported Messenger. The Abdallah Messenger is a combination of the Clay Messenger and Morgan blood. He is standard-bred, and registered in the American Trotting Registry, volume 8, page 17, and his number is 4869. He is the sire of Bijou, 2:24, and several others. Abdallah Messenger is bred from good lines, and has a right to be proud of the fact that he got a good mare, trotting out of so cold-blooded mares. Every horse cannot do that.
