Royals Take Series

THE expected happened and Parkdale Royals are in the finals of the Island Intermediate 'A' Hockey League.

Sandy Frizzell's men were pitted against 'Bucko' Trainor's boys in the semi-final set and we haven't heard of any great amount of Penguin money on the move. It was generally agreed that the Parkdalers could sideline the ambitious Penguins. This happened Thursday night and the 'Buck' Whitlock coached Royals are now itching for a crack at the survivor of the Combines-Eagles series which has yet to name a winner.

IT was a former Penguin who blasted the Birds out of the playdowns Thursday. Billy Mulligan, making one of his few appearances with the Frizzellmen, scored two of the winners' six goals and helped on three of the others. The diminutive redhead was all over the ice. Everytime he came over the boards it meant trouble to the Old Spainers.

Over 1000 fans saw a spirited hockey battle and both teams gave it all they had. The Royals were the better team on the night's play and deserved their triumph. However, the Juniors refused to be beaten without a struggle and the result was a ding dong fracas right to the final siren.

Everybody Happy

EVEN the Penguins' supporters seemed pleased with Thursday's tussle. Although they wanted their team to prolong this series, they were rather elated at the way the Birds went down to the defeat. The Royals surely knew they were in a hocky series and they earned every decision they garnered.

We had the idea that the series might end in a one-sided contest but we were dead wrong and mighty glad we were. There was only one game in the series where the affair was one-sided. That was Royals' 7-2 verdict in the second game. The rest of the series produced tight battles that were in doubt all the way.

Royals Had Problem

WE imagine that Royals are happy that this series is over.

Although all games were played at The Sports Arena, the Royals never got much fan support. Undoubtedly it was a case of cheering for the underdog and giving very little only boos to the efforts of the Royals.

It was a tough series any way you look at it. These Penguins could cause you grief if you gave them much opportunity. You just had to forget they were juniors and keep banging away at them. After all, they were competing in playoffs with intermediates, so they must be ready to be treated like intermediates.

Apparently some of the fans thought the Royals had no business roughing up the Baby Birds. This was the only way you were going to beat them, and after all Sandy's boys wanted a crack at the Island intermediate crown.

We don't think the Penguins went into this series expecting the Royals to treat them as paperweights. The series meant much more to the Royals than it did to the Penguins. This was the classification that Royals must win in if they are to advance along the Maritime intermediate trail. They've won this series and now await a winner in the 'B' section still in progress.

No Hard Feelings

THERE surely was no bitterness once the series came to an end Thursday night. The fellows who played it the hardest were out there shaking hands with their 'enemies' of the last five games. The affair was over and the boys discarded any bad feeling that crept in during the encounters. There was no beefing from the Penguins, no silly boasting from the Royals. In fact, the Parkdalers made it known that these Baby Birds had really made them fight every inch of the way.

Now as each team goes its separate way in junior and intermediate playdowns, Royals will be Penguins' rooters and the Birds will be hollering for the Frizzellmen. Both are seeking top Maritime honors and each is anxious that the other achieve its goal.

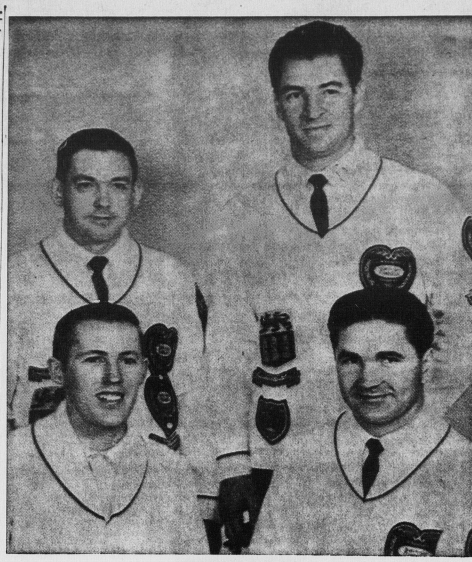
Congratulations to both Royals and Penguins on a good series.

Splendid Publicity

LORNE Fischer, owner and manager of Fischer's Royal Hotel, Guelph, Ontario, has written this newspaper to laud the schoolboy curlers from Prince of Wales College who recently performed in Gueph.

Says Mr. Fischer: "From the time your boys arrived until they left this hotel, they were certainly goodwill ambassadors in their courtesy and manners both on and off the ice. Being the manager of the hotel gave me the opportunity to meet all the boys daily and get to know them on a first name basis. We cordially invite them and their coach to revisit us again (when the weather is less cold)."

That's the kind of publicity to give the Island.



RINK TO BEAT

The Saskatchewan rink skipped by Ernie Richardson (top right) is favorite to win the Canadian men's curling championships at Brandon, Man., next week. Ernie is seeking a record fourth championship. The Richardson rink has been partially broken up as lead Wes Richardson is out of action with a lame back and his place is being taken by Mel Perry (lower left). Other members of the rink are Arnie Richardson (top left) and second Garnet Richardson (lower right). (CP Wirephoto)

Deighan Paces Combines To 3-2 Victory Over Eagles

SUMMERSIDE — Greg Deighan, shifty winger of the Prince County Combines led his team to victory over the RCAF Eagles at Civic Stadium last night before a crowd of almost 800 fans. The final score was 3-2.

Deighan fired two goals, including the winner which broke up a hotly contested third period which was scoreless for over 16 minutes.

An unusual feature of the game was the fact that no penalties were called by referee Don Whelan. Leroy Burnett and Joe Coyle were the linesmen.

Ron MacArthur was hit above the eye with a stick early in the first period but returned to finish the game. Al Andrews suffered a torn cartilage in his leg and retired from the game halfway through the third period.

The Combines widely outshot the RCAF snipers but found goals hard to come by with Irv Walsh turning in a gilt- edged game in the Eagle cage.

Alger Cutcliffe opened the scoring late in the first period. He took a pass from MacArthur, side- stepped a defenceman, and beat Walsh from about twenty feet out. Two minutes later the Eagles evened it up, Gord Hutchings back- handing a short rebound of Smith's shot from the point.

The Combines again took the lead after 3½ minutes of play in the middle session, Deighan snaring a loose puck, and firing it home from left wing. At 12.16 Doug Tucker drilled a shot between Mann's pads to knot the score again at 2-all.

The teams battled furiously for 16 minutes of the third period with Walsh a very busy net guardian, and finally the Combine attacks bore fruit, Deighan, taking a forward pass from Vance Harris, and beating the Eagle goaler with a close - in shot.

The Combines kept the play pretty well in the Eagles' zone for the remaining minutes of play so that the RCAF coach did not get a chance to pull his goaler for an extra forward.

First period: 1. Combines—A. Cutcliffe (R. MacArthur) 16.32; 2. Eagles —G. Hutchings (B. Smith) 18.30. Penalties—none.

Second period: 3. Combines—G. Deighan 3.38; 4. Eagles—D. Tucker (K. MacDonald) 12.16. Penalties— none.

Third period: 5. Combines—G. Deighan (V. Harris, G. Harris) 16.06. Penalties—none.

Parker MacDonald Surprised At Himself

By BOB OOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Detroit left wing Parker MacDonald — ticketed for the minors last September — is the most surprised man in the National Hockey League that he has scored 30 goals.

The 29-year-old Sydney, N.S., native, reached that coveted figure Thursday night in a 5-3 loss to the Boston Bruins.

MacDonald has played at least part of seven NHL seasons prior to this one, scoring 42 goals and not more than 14 in a single campaign.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I ever think I'd get anywhere near 30 goals," MacDonald confided.

He said he is scoring so "because I'm playing with Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio. I can roam right around the goal playing on this line. Howe shoots often, hard and right on target."

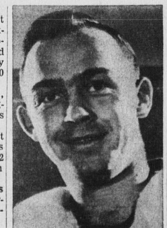
The results speak for themselves. MacDonald already has collected two handsome bonuses from the Detroit club for passing 18 and 28 goals, according to coach Sid Abel. And the Red Wing pilot is confident MacDonald will soon be collecting a third, written into MacDonald's contract, for reaching 35.

WORKED QUIETLY

The five-foot-10, 175 - pounder has very quietly achieved the scoring heights while fans have been focused on the intense NHL race for individual honors. Teammate Howe (31 goals) has 67 points.

MacDonald is well back in the scramble. His 22 assists give him 52 points.

Unimpressive at pre - season camp, MacDonald had been signed over to Pittsburgh of the American League when he got a last-second reprieve from Abel. Sid felt he could score better than he had in the past and hoped his experience might bolster the left wing contingent.



PARKER MacDONALD

MacDonald had served previously with Toronto and New York before moving to the Red Wings via the draft in 1960. He got his 14 goals over a full season that year but spent half of 1961-62 with Hershey.

His career was in jeopardy when the Wings sent him down last year. MacDonald balked at being assigned to Sudbury, went home to Sydney under suspension and finally agreed to report to Hershey.

Suddenly, MacDonald has become one of the most prolific goal scorers in the NHL this season — and he still doesn't quite believe it.

Montague School Garners Win

MONTAGUE — The Montague school team defeated the Vocational school team 8-5 in Montague on Wednesday night.

Goals for Montague: E. Prosper 2, C. Nicholson 2, G. McCarronn 1, B. Crockett 1, D. Harris 1, J. Richards 1, and for Vocational school: L. Campbell 2, L. Gaudet 1, E. McCue 2.

INJURED

Dave Gaudet, aggressive Penguins' forward, is sidelined with two fractures in his ankle. Coach 'Bucko' Trainor wasn't sure how long Gaudet would be sidelined.

Attendance This Season In NHL Seen One Of Best

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While talk of major - league hockey expansion is becoming more frequent, the National Hockey League is heading towards its greatest season in crowd attendance.

Going into this weekend's five-game schedule, a total of 2,312,095 fans have attended the 179 games played in 1962-43. The total is only 126,000 short of last season's record mark of 2,438,000. The average this term is 12,917 fans per game compared to the entire 1961-62 schedule's 210-game average of 11,610.

Based on attendance figures released after each game, Toronto and Montreal are the top drawing cities. But Chicago, with Black Hawks riding toward their first NHL pennant in the club's history, is right behind.

Toronto had a total of 411,955 fans attend the 29 home games of the Maple Leafs, an average of 14,205 Montreal's attendance for 29 games is 410,772, averaging 14,165 per game.

The Hawks, one of the strongest drawing clubs in the league in the 1940s when it was common for 20,000 fans to jam Chicago Stadium for a game—even though Hawks were near the bottom of the league—has made huge strides at the gate since the 1950s when crowds often dwindled to as few as 4,000 a game.

TOTAL CLIMBS

In 33 games this season Chicago has a total attendance of 433,924. All last term the total was 414,000. The average this season is 13,560, compared to 11,829 in 1961-62.

Another strong club at the gate, although not in the standings, is New York. Hovering close to last place now and in fifth spot most of the season, Rangers have attracted 386,158 people to their 29 home games, an average of 13,317. In their 35 games last season Rangers' attendance was 403,000, an average of 11,514.

A surprising fact about the New York attendance is that for nearly half the season Rangers have been without one of their big publicity media, the newspaper. A strike against major New York dailies now is in its third month

Detroit has an increase of more than 2,000 fans per game this season but Red Wings, even though for half the term they were battling for first place, are fifth in total attendance. After 31 games the Wings have attracted 352,283 fans, compared to 320,000 for last season's 35 games. The average is 11,364 this term against 9,143 a season ago.

BOSTON FANS LOYAL

The most loyal fans are probably those in Boston. For half this season the Bruins showed little signs of improving on their last-place position which they have held for three campaigns However, there have been more people show up in Boston Garden this season than last.

An average of 10,931 persons —317,003 in 29 games — have attended Bruins' contests. Last season the total for 35 games was 323,000, an average of 9,229.

At the current rate the NHL should climb to within 300,000 of the 3,000,000 mark, a figure the league hasn't reached during the time it has been composed of six teams.

While record attendances are near in all cities some of the NHL brass is aware that once the capacities of the arenas have been reached in crowd totals the league will become saturated from an attendance standpoint.

General Manager Lynn Patrick of Boston said this week that expansion to the west coast of North America would be a great thing for the NHL. But, he pointed out, expansion would only be a money-making proposition if a fat United States national television contract accompanied it

Patrick said that with crowds reaching the saturation point bigger profits in the NHL are going to have to depend on television. And television on an American national level will come only with expansion.

Approximately 65,000 fans will take in the five games scheduled for this weekend. Tonight, fourth-place Red Wings visit third - place Canadiens while Rangers take on second-place Leafs at Toronto.

Sunday night Montreal is at Chicago, Toronto at Boston and Detroit at New York.

Don MacPherson Captures World Figure-Skating Title

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP-AP)—Young Don McPherson of Stratford, Ont., turned in a fabulous free - skating performance to win the men's world figure-skating championship today, succeeding another Canadian, Donald Jackson.

To retain the title for Canada, 17-year-old McPherson had to overcome a fourth-spot placing in the compulsory figures with a near-perfect technical and artistic showing in the free-skating division.

McPherson, winner of the Canadian and North American championships earlier this year, received a total of 2,219.8 points, narrowly edging out European champion Alain Calmat of France, who had 2,214.1

Always a spectacular free-skater but less perfect at the compulsory figures, McPherson had been runner-up to Don Jackson in the Canadian championship for three years.

Jackson turned pro after winning the world championship for Canada last year in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and McPherson became the top Canadian contender for the title.

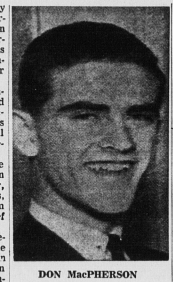
The judges awarded him free-skating scores of- Artistic impression 5.9 5.7 5.8 5.8 5.7 5.9 5.8 5.8 5.7; technical merit 5.9 5.7 5.8 5.7 5.9 5.8 5.9 5.6.

A score of six points is considered perfect.

When the school figures ended Thursday McPherson was 38 points behind Manfred Schnelldorfer of West Germany, who led the field of 19 after the six compulsory figures. The West German, finished third over-all with 2,203.9 points.

REPEATS JACKSON'S MOVE

But McPherson did in 1963 exactly what Jackson had done in 1962—coming from far back on the merit of free-skating. Jackson was 45 points behind Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia after the compulsory figures last year but won nevertheless



DON MacPHERSON

Divin finished in fourth place this year with 2,179 points. An American, 14-year-old Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, S.J., was fifth with 2,168.8

The free-skating competition was held in freezing temperatures that hampered the 19 competitors and forced even the best—McPherson, Calmat and Schnelldorfer—to take spills on the brittle ice

Many of the skaters complained that it was so cold that the ice was too hard for their skates to grip. The coaches blamed this for the unusually large number of falls during the free skating.

McPherson was almost counted out after his relatively weak performance in the compulsory figures.

But after seeing McPherson and while the judges were completing their complicated point scoring, observers began to feel that the youthful Canadian might just have been good enough to make the long stride from fourth to first.

The men's title was the major event decided Friday and today. Elsewhere Britain's Linda Shearman and Michael Phillips stretched their lead over defending champions Eva and Pavel Roman of Czechoslovakia in the ice dance competition.

The British couple had 190.1 points as the four compulsory dance patterns were completed. The Czech brother-and-sister team was second with 187.6 points

The ice dance championship will be decided tonight with the free skating event.

The men's singles free style routines began immediately after the wind-up of the ice dance compulsory figures.

The six compulsory figures in the men's singles event were completed earlier Friday, with West Germany's Manfred Schnelldorfer leading the field of 19.

Schnelldorfer finished the compulsory figures with a total point score of 1,215.9, ahead of Czech skater Karol Divin who had 1,204 points.

Donald McPherson of Stratford, Ont., the Canadian and North American champion, was fourth with 1,177 8 points.

In the women's singles Skoukje Dijkstra of The Netherlands, the defending world champion, took the lead after the first two of six compulsory figures. The remainder of the figures is scheduled today.

WENDY GRINER THIRD

Miss Dijkstra was awarded 340 points while in second place was Regina Heitzer of Austria with 326.4 points. followed by Wendy Griner of Toronto, holder of the Canadian and North American title. in third place with 316.4 points.

Petra Burka of Toronto was fourth with 308.4 points while another Canadian, Shirra Kenworthy of Vancouver, and Franzi Schmidt of Switzerland were tied for 17th place with 275.2 points

Paulette Doan and Kenneth Ormsby of Toronto, winners of the North American championship this year, were third in the ice dance competition with 185.7 points.

Donna and John Mitchell, a brother - and - sister team from Vancouver, were fifth with 177.2 points while Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge of Toronto, Canadian junior dance champions, were 10th with 163.7 points.
