National System Stressed In Farm Federation Brief

"In a country as vast as Canada with a rural population scattered over thousands of miles, it is highly important that the whole country be reached and dealt with from a national standpoint." This view was expressed by the P.E.I. Federation of Agriculture to the Royal Commission on Radio and Television Broadcasting during its sitting here yesterday. The brief was presented by Mr. J. Lincoln Dewar, secretary.

The Federation, also felt that while it may be possible for private enterprise to provide wealthy and populous urban centres with very satisfactory radio and T.V. service, "we believe that the rural population would be provided with a bare minimum or service were not the resources of the nation marshalled in a system which is a position to provide uniform service from West to East. The important and significant part played by radio in the development of national attitudes and cultural and educational progress was recognized and the Federation felt that television may have an impact on the social, cultural and educational life of the people only exceeded by that of the development of printing during the middle ages.

BEST PROTECTION
 While not suggesting that perfection has been attained under the present system the Federation still felt that bringing both public and private stations into one system with direction and control by a Board of Governors responsible to Parliament would best protect and advance the radio and television interests of the Canadian public.

However, tribute was paid to Island stations CFCY and CJRW for their important and commendable contribution to the life of this Province in service of a high order and the Federation felt there is an important field for private radio stations operating within the framework of a national system.

"We suggest that radio system which permit these companies to operate as a sound business proposition is a desirable one and further suggest that national policies should be designed to provide a favorable medium of growth for private stations which can serve the local interests of any particular area."

EDUCATIONAL FACTOR
 The brief stated that both radio and television, entering the home life so intimately as they do, are of extreme educational significance and while the reluctance of the government to intervene in educational matters of a formal academic nature is noted the Federation feels that in radio and T.V. an excellent opportunity exists for general education on a national basis.

It said this can be of great importance particularly in rural areas where distance and other limitations deny the educational and cultural features common in urban society, rural isolation and the rigors of Canadian winters confine the farm family to the farm house for much of the time and for this reason interest and services of special interest to farm people are highly desirable.

The brief put considerable emphasis on the development of the National Farm Radio Forum, which it stated has done so much to bring together farm people for study not only on national basis but on local basis as well. It believes that only the present national character of radio in Canada makes such a program possible.

The Federation stated that in respect of radio and television coverage it should be kept in mind that the important consideration is the welfare of the Canadian people and this welfare should be at all times take precedence over that of either the Broadcasting Corporation or of the private stations. It said it supports the present radio system in Canada because it provides adequate coverage for all parts of the country and all sections of the population; an opportunity for the development of Canadian talent and interpretation of the Canadian way of life; and resistance to the domination of Canadian culture by a pattern established in the United States.

It opposed the establishment of a separate regulatory body because of the possibility of such a development meaning the separation of Canadian broadcasting both in theory and practice into two systems which would result in undue competition and a possible lessening of the usefulness of the present component parts.

C.N.R. Museum Train To Visit Maritimes In July

MONCTON, The Canadian National Railways Museum Train, the first mobile museum in the world, will make its debut in the Maritime Provinces next month. It will begin a two-month tour of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Eastern Quebec at Halifax on July 10.

Three years of intensive research were required to authenticate, assemble and prepare equipment, furnishings and mementos. The train has three old-time locomotives: a passenger coach of 1860, diner of 1875, sleeper of 1890 and three baggage cars of the 19th century, all museum pieces in themselves.

Established under the direction of A.L. Sauviat, assistant director of public relations for the system, the train will be seen in all parts of the country and will be staffed while on exhibition by retired railroaders.

Frank R. Sayer of Moncton, retired regional public relations representative, will be in charge of the official ceremonies associated with the Maritime tour of the train. J.A. McIsaac, of Inverness, N.S., retired general manager of sleeping, dining and parlor cars services, will be the train manager.

OLDEST IN USE
 Mogul No. 674, of 1899, the oldest locomotive operating on the C.N.R., is used to haul the train. With its 2-6-0 wheel arrangement, this veteran is a far cry from the powerful diesels and late model steam giants seen on the road today. Also in the train is the official ceremonial engine ordered by Grand Trunk — it was a "whizz" back in 1872 — and a saddle tank switcher of 1894 with its water tank straddling the boiler instead of being carried in the tender.

"Varnished boxes" and "snoozers" as railroaders affectionately called the first coaches and sleepers, have been faithfully restored to their original appearance and included in the consist of the train. The origin of the dining car may be obscure, but a unit of 1875 in the travelling museum shows that early models were ornate and plush, and old menus in the exhibit prove that big appetites could be satisfied at moderate prices.

A series of museum halls have been set up in three baggage cars of 1866, 1877 and 1879 vintage. These houses, in permanent display, exhibits ranging all the way from the original metal tickets, lanterns, rails, bible racks and pictures, to the power plant of the first diesel electric car in North America. Special sections are devoted to pioneer railways, steamships, telegraphs, express and motive power.

FAMILY TREE
 A family tree traces the growth of 265 pioneer railways, from Canada's first steam road opened in 1836, to present 24,200-mile Canadian National System, the largest on this continent.

The Museum Train will be on display from 10.00 a.m. Daylight Saving Time until 9.00 p.m. during week days and from 1.00 p.m. until 9.00 on Sundays.

In Nova Scotia the historic train will go on display at Halifax July 10-12, inclusive; Truro, July 14-15; New Glasgow July 17; Antigonish July 19; Sydney, July 21-22; and Amherst July 26. New Brunswick showings will be, Moncton July 28-29; Saint John, August 7-9; Fredericton, August 11-12; Newcastle, August 14; Bathurst, August 16 and Campbellton, August 18-19. Prince Edward Island appearances will be at Charlottetown on August 1 and Summerside on August 3. It will be seen in Quebec at Mont Joli on August 21 and at Riviere du Loup, August 23.

Brief Emphasizes Claims Of private Broadcasters

That the private broadcasting industry of Canada has a right to be proud of its achievements and is entitled to equal stature in Canada with any other system was the view expressed in a brief presented yesterday to the Royal Commission on broadcasting by the Island Radio Broadcasting Co.

The brief traced the history of Station CFCY since its licensing in 1924 and noted its long history of public service. It also told of the "full co-operation" given by CFCY to the national system and stated its desire to continue.

"We believe the broadcasting industry in Canada should operate with a minimum of regulation, within the framework of the laws of the land, under similar circumstances as the newspapers and other forms of publication. Consistent with meeting its obligations to the public, it should be free to progress as its experience, abilities and resources permit." The brief said the experience of the company over the past 32 years "leads us to believe that it is entirely possible to operate a commercial broadcasting service with the objective of making an honest profit, and at the same time, give a public service."

Expressing the belief that the recommendations of the Fowler Commission on Broadcasting will set the pattern of broadcasting in Canada for many years to come, the local company asks the Commission to recommend that the private broadcasting industry be given equal stature with any other system that may exist in Canada, and that all radio and television operations be placed under the authority of an independent regulatory board, such board to be in the operation of radio and television stations or networks.

It also asked the Commission to consider recommending that applications for non-government television stations be permitted in all areas in Canada.

THOUGHTS FOR OUR TIME

By His Eminence Cardinal McGuigan
 (Copyright)

PERSONALITY TOO OFTEN CONFUSED WITH EGOISM
 Few virtues are more frequently misused nowadays than "personality."

and "personality". There is a tendency to reduce their meaning to material conditions, and in materializing them, to degrade them.

We are led to believe that personality is a matter of clothes, of posture, of hair dress, or of speech. "Color intelligently handled," the advertisement tells us, "can do much for a woman's personality."

Prevalent too, is the notion that personality consists of independence, that it develops by one's becoming increasingly independent of all that is not oneself. It consists in being different; in not conforming to customs, conventions or even to laws. One must think for oneself and not submit one's judgment to anyone. "Be yourself" is the historic human tradition has is the new commandment. Not as the historic human tradition has it, "be your best self," but just "Be yourself."

This is to confuse personality with egotism. This is to make selfishness into an ideal, and to make tyrants like Stalin and Hitler into models of personality. For true personality has nothing to do with material conditions, nor with egotistic self-assertion. It does not consist in independence simply. It consists in independence of things essentially inferior to man. This freedom from things beneath man, is, in fact, based upon the soul's close dependence upon what is above, upon the true, the good and beautiful, and in the last resort, whether or not this be consciously recognized upon God, the source of all truth and goodness and beauty.

SUPREME TRUTH
 If the mind can transcend space and time and all that can be perceived by the senses, this is because it is made to know God, the supreme truth. If, likewise, our liberty dominates all the sensible attractions of the material order, as it does, the reason is that our soul's desire hungers for the Universal Good, and can only be satisfied, whether it knows it or not, with loving God above all things. From this comes the important principle that the full development of personality consists in becoming increasingly independent of what is below man—of things, and at the same time, more and more dependent on the true and the good that is God.

The pseudo-personality, on the other hand, consists in a self-styled independence of all things, including God to Whom obedience is refused. It despises the so-called passive virtues of humility and patience, being itself rooted in insubordination and pride. The pseudo-personality is realized in its perfect state in him whose motto is "I will not serve." By a bitter and inevitable paradox, it becomes involved in the worst form of servitude, that of slavery to self.

The true idea of personality includes the ideas of self-discipline and self-mastery. Discipline, of course, is an unpoplar word to us, (Continued on page 12)
