LA Dodgers Fail To Retain Duet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers general manager E. J. Bavasi flew here Tuesday to try to sign holdout pitchers Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale and said the club's final offer of $210,000 for the two was rejected.

Bavasi said he originally offered Koufax $100,000, and he upped it to $112,500 in a meeting Tuesday with lawyer Bill Hayes, representing the pair. He said the original Drysdale offer of $85,000 was increased to $97,500.

After the rejection, Bavasi said, he telephoned Dodger owners Walter O'Malley at Vero Beach, Fla., and the two agreed that the $210,000 figure was as high as the club would go.

He said Hayes told him the offer was rejected "simply as a matter of economics — not enough money."

"I must assume," Bavasi said, "that Mr. Hayes is speaking for the players."

What did Hayes indicate the holdouts would settle for?

"The confusing thing is that Mr. Hayes said that Koufax would not settle for anything less than Willie Mays (San Francisco Giants star outfielder) but neither I nor Mr. Hayes knew what Mays' salary was."

Press reports have indicated Mays is in the $125,000 to $130,000 bracket.

Koufax, left-handed strikeout king, is regarded by many as the game's all-time greatest pitcher. Right-hander Drysdale is an iron man with a blazing fast ball who has been a key man in the Dodger lineup for years.

Just a month ago, they announced that they would negotiate as an entry—and reportedly asked a $1,000,000 in a three-year pact.

In recent days, they have said they would negotiate but have not indicated just what it would take to get their signatures.

There will be four rounds Sunday with draws at 1:00; 3:15; 5:30 and 7:45 p.m. There are 28 rinks entered, 17 from the Charlottetown Curling Club, 11 from the Belvedere Club. Competitors are expected to be very keen and will last for more than a week.

Last year's winners, Doug Cameron, Alan Smith, George Dillon and Bob Dillon are entered and will be trying to repeat again this year. The draw was made by Addie MacDonald and Hugh Simpson and the schedule will appear here later this week. Mr. Brian Cudmore of Henderson and Cudmore will be on hand to deliver the first stone.

HAWK JUNCTION, Ont. (CP) — The three-story Hawk Junction Hotel, scene of many a Saturday night get-together for the railway and lumbering men of this district 150 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie, burned to the ground Tuesday. Owner George Stenne, his wife and 13 boarders escaped in their night attire minutes after the wooden structure burst into flames. The owner estimated the loss at $80,000.
