ADAM BEDE.

CHAPTER VI

Everything was looking at its brightest at this moment, for the sun shone right on the pewter dishes, and from their reflecting surfaces pleasant jets of light were thrown on mellow oak and bright brass; and on a still pleasanter object than these, for some of the rays fell on Dinah's finely-molded cheek, and lit up her pale red hair to aburn, as she bent over the heavy household linen which she was mending for her aunt. No scene could have been more peaceful, if Mrs. Poyser, who was ironing a few things that still remained from the Monday's wash, had not been making a frequent clinking with her iron, and moving to and fro whenever she wanted it to cool; and from the keen glance of her blue-gray eye from the kitchen to the dairy, where Hetty was making up the butter, and from the dairy to the back kitchen, where Nancy was taking the pies out of the oven. Do not suppose, however, that Mrs. Poyser was elderly or shrewish in her appearance; she was a good-looking woman, not more than eight-and-thirty, of fair complexion and sandy hair, well shapen, light-footed; the most conspicuous article in her attire was an ample checkered linen apron, which almost covered her skirt; and nothing could be plainer and less noticeable than her cap and gown, for there was no weakness of which she was less tolerant than feminine vanity, and the preference of ornament to utility. The family likeness between her and her niece, Dinah Morris, with the contrast between her keenness and Dinah's seraphic gentleness of expression, might have served a painter as an excellent suggestion for a Martha and Mary.
Their eyes were just of the same color, but a striking test of the difference in their operation was seen in the demeanor of Trip, the black and tan terrier, whenever that much-suspected dog unwarily exposed himself to the freezing Arctic ray of Mrs.
Poyser's glance. Her tongue was not less keen than her eye, and, whenever a damsel came within ear shot, seemed to take up an unfinished lecture, as a barrel organ takes up a tune, precisely at the point where it had left off.

The fact that it was churning-day was another reason why it was inconvenient to have the 'whittaws,' and why, consequently, Mrs. Poyser should scold Molly the housemaid with unusual severity. To all appearance, Molly had got through her after-dinner work in an exemplary manner, had 'cleared herself' with great despatch, and now came to ask, submissively, if she should sit down to her spinning till milking-time. But this blameless conduct, according to Mrs. Poyser, shrouded a secret indulgence of unbecoming wishes, which she now dragged forth and held up to Molly's view with cutting eloquence.

'Spinning, indeed! It isn't spinning as you'd be at, I'll be bound, and let you have your own way. I never knew your equals for gallowiness. To think of a gall o' your age wanting to go and sit with half a dozen men! I'd ha' been ashamed to let the word pass over my lips if I'd been you.
And you, as have been here ever since last Michaelmas, and I hired you at Treddles'on statts, without a bit o' character—as I say, you might be grateful to be hired in that way to a respectable place; and you know no more o' what belongs to work when you come here than the mawk in 't field. As poor a two-twisted thing as ever I saw, you know you was. Who taught you to scrub a floor, I should like to know? Why, you'd leave the dirt in heaps i' the corners —anybody 'ud think you'd never been brought up among Christians. As for spinning, why, you've wasted as much as your wage i' the flax you've spoiled learning to spin. And you've a right to feel that, and not to go about as gaping and as thoughtless as if you was beholding to nobody. Comb the wool for the whittaws, indeed! That's what you'd like to be doing, is it? That's the way with you—that's the road you'd all like to go, head-longs to ruin. You're never easy till you've got some sweetheart as is as big a fool as yourself. You think you'll be finely off when you're married, I daresay, and have got a three-legged stool to sit on, and never a blanket to cover you, and a bit o' oat-cake for your dinner, as three children are a snatching at.'

'I'm sure I donna want t' go wi' the whittaws,' said Molly, whimpering, and quite overcome by this Dantean picture of her future, 'only we allays used to comb the wool for'n at Master Otley's; an' so I just axed ye. I donna want to set eyes on the whittaws again; I wish I may never stir if I do.'

'Mr. Otley's, indeed! It's fine talking o' what you did at Mr. Otley's. Your missis there might like her floors dirted wi' whittaws, for what I know. There's no knowing what people wanna like—such ways as I've heard o'! I never had a gell come into my house as seemed to know what cleaning was; I think people live like pigs, for my part. And as to that Betty as was dairy-maid at Trent's before she come to me, she'd ha' left the cheese without turning from week's end to week's end, and the dairy thralls, I might ha' wrote my name on 'em, when I came down stairs after 'y illness, as the doctor said it was inflammation—it was a mercy I got well of it. And to think o' your knowing no better, Molly, and been here a-going i' nine months, and not for want o' talking to, neither—and what are you stanning there for, like a jack as is run down, instead o' getting your wheel out! You're a rare un for sitting down to your work a little while after it's time to put it by.'

'Munny, my iron's twite told, please put it down to warm.' The small chirruping voice that uttered this request, came from a little sunny-haired girl between three and four, who, seated on a high chair at the end of the ironing table, was ardently clutching the handle of a miniature iron with her tiny fat fist, and ironing rags with an assiduity that required her to put her little red tongue out as far as anatomy would allow.

Jay Gould's little boy recently went to visit some country relatives. Early in the morning he arose, and missing his uncle, asked one of his cousins, 'Where's Uncle Jabez gone?' 'He's gone to water stock,' replied Jabez' little boy. 'What, so early,' exclaimed little Jay Gould. 'Why, my pa never waters stock until he goes down town in the city,' 'bout ten or eleven.'

From Donlogne two suicides are reported.
One case was that of a young man whose great horror was the prospect of a military service. He tried every means available to avoid it, but to no purpose, and in due course received the order to proceed to a regiment of marine infantry. The young man then repaired to the village church, and, after engaging in prayer for some time, went to the tower and rang his own death knell, viz., a stroke for every year of his age. On the sounding of the last toll he stepped on an upper beam in the belfry and forthwith cast himself headlong down.
The unfortunate man was picked up dead on the steps leading into the church. The village of Sully-la-Bourse has been the scene of a suicide carried out by means of dynamite. The felo de se, who was a miner, was accustomed to use dynamite cartridges for blasting purposes. He managed to get possession of one of these, and with it destroyed himself in a field.—
