between now and election day. (Politicians are like that). If they are right in their apparent assumption that the people want less money to be spent on foreign aid, regardless of the President's wishes in the matter, it may indicate a slight veering towards economic isolationism.

Potato Affairs

There is general agreement on the need for a strong organization to represent the potato industry of this Province. There are, however, varied opinions on what form the organization should take and what its functions should be.

Two points, particularly, need to be emphasized in considering plans for making a producers' association effective. One is that it will need money for operational purposes, research, marketing processes and all the other details that are involved in such an important industry.

Homemaking Emphasized

"One of the objects set down for our organization is to raise the standard of homemaking. Notice it is homemaking and not housekeeping." This thought-provoking statement is from an address given at the annual convention here this week of the P. E. Island Women's Institutes.

American Foreign Aid

President Eisenhower has received another setback in the matter of foreign aid, the House of Representatives having voted to cut nearly a billion dollars from his 4 billion dollar program.

The action is not quite as hard on the United States foreign aid program, in terms of dollars and cents, as might appear on the surface.

Fears Allayed By Selwyn Lloyd

By M. MCINTYRE HOOD, Special London (Eng.) Correspondent for The Guardian.

LONDON — Fears of the British public that another "Suez incident" might be created by the intervention of the United Kingdom in the critical Lebanon situation have been quietened by a forthright statement made by Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd in the House of Commons.

Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, however, has made it clear that the British policy is to be tied in entirely with decisions of the United Nations Organization.

Mr. Duncan Sandys, minister of defence, however, did give a hint that the building up of forces in Cyprus might not be merely for the internal security of that island.

Occupation By British

Care Needed In Pool Swimming

By Herman N. Bundesen, M. D. Be a bit more careful when swimming in a pool this summer. While most pools are perfectly safe places to swim—providing everyone uses a little common sense—there may be unsuspected danger lurking in some of them.

Although serious injuries at most pools are kept to an amazing minimum, countless cases of bruises and abrasions occur each day.

POSSIBLE DEVELOPMENTS However, we have recently discovered that, in some cases, these simple abrasions may lead to development of tuberculous-like lesions.

This is a new disease entity and it might possibly be a new means of transmitting skin tuberculosis.

Cases have been reported in various sections of the United States, Canada and Europe. While this indicates widespread geographic distribution, we do not know just how frequently these infections occur.

If you fall or bump the side of the pool and skin your elbow, knees, nose, or any other spot, watch the abrasion carefully. If an infection develops, see your doctor as quickly as possible.

An infection in the bridge of the nose generally consists of an eruption of soft papules ranging from the size of a pinhead to the size of a split pea.

Usually, the original abrasion will have healed before the papules appear.

Causes of elbow and knee infection generally are characterized by a spongy papular lesion which grows slowly and eventually crusts.

Causes of the trouble apparently comes from various organisms existing in the water and along the sides of the pools.

Smooth-surfaced walls, such as tiled surfaces, are less apt to cause abrasions than are rough concrete walls.

But no matter what precautions the pool owners takes, it is up to you whether you will be injured. So be careful please.

QUESTION AND ANSWER V. L.: What is osteoporosis and how can it be treated?

Answer: Osteoporosis is the loss of vital minerals, particularly calcium of bones. It may occur with old age, with disuse of a limb and in women passing through the menopause.

Usually, the giving of a combination of male and female hormones, along with an adequate diet of calcium and phosphorus preparations, will correct this disease.

peeted of dictatorial ambitions, de Gaulle has shown a surprising degree of tact since he became premier.

It was significant that he ventured into critical areas of Algeria bordering Tunisia and Morocco. But it was perhaps even more significant that he didn't make the trip before achieving a measure of amity with those countries.

The premier's success in settling the question of French troops in Tunisia was one of his major achievements in his first month of power.

De Gaulle's austere aplomb can obscure the fact that he is moving with speed. The methodical general is not one to underestimate his own importance, yet he has a knack of going about big tasks with a minimum of fuss.

His talks in Paris with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan were an example of quiet diplomacy at work.

All this has helped allay the fears of those who saw in France political affairs a tendency toward dictatorship and Bonapartism.

De Gaulle himself has scoffed at such fears with the whimsical remark that dictatorship is impossible in a country producing several hundred types of cheese.

In a letter dated October 10, 1958, Colonel Rollo informed Admiral Boscawen at Louisbourg, that with the assistance of Lieutenant Spry, he has put the fortification (Fort Amherst) in such order that with one hundred and fifty men, it could not be taken without cannon and mortars, but that it must receive early attention in the spring.

WE THE PEOPLE Let us consider that you are history. Thus conscious, tread the dors of time. With careful and becoming nity. Mindful of whither we go, er we came.

Not every one a Lincoln, d'Arc, or a Churchill. Cresting the summit of a event; But we, the people, can be in final analysis. The balancing or unbalancing a continent.

The thoughts I think in the innermost heart of you. Pass into the stream of rest that largely determines. The thoughts our leaders do, and the things they do.

We, who have challenged firmament with satellites. Girdled the earth, and the ers under the earth. Who are not abashed before atomic elements. Let us have no need to be ed before Truth.

We the people, in every under heaven, Discerning good from evil, cleaving to good— Let us be princely in st. lords of our own thinking. And hold a world to its humanhood.
