

Quebec Government Aiming At Getting New Industries

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec government has been carrying on discussions aimed at the establishment in the province of new chemical industries and additional pulp, paper and draft mills, Premier Lesage said Sunday night.

"I am convinced that we have succeeded in creating a climate of confidence in favor of Quebec," the premier told a 550-a-plate fund-raising dinner sponsored by the Quebec Liberal Federation.

"My discussions, and those of my colleagues, with bankers, industrialists and businessmen in Europe and the United States have given me evidence that they are all aware of our fast economic growth and have confidence in the stability of the province of Quebec."

Mr. Lesage, who recently returned from a European trip, said both in Canada and in Europe he has been asked regarding the establishment of new chemical industries, talks which were more than promising.

He continued: "I am now, with some of my colleagues, having a discussion with very important groups for additional pulp, paper and kraft capacity to be established in the province of Quebec."

The premier spoke in English as he referred to the talks about Quebec.

URGES ENDEAVOUR

In French he said Quebecers should "put their shoulder to the wheel and agree to solving one problem at a time instead of attempting an immediate and sweeping solution."

He said Quebecers must "use the rights guaranteed us under the constitution—which must, it is hoped, be brought up to date in such a manner as to give Quebec control of its own economic destiny."

The province must make up for lost time and develop complete leadership and efficient organization in line with the aim of building a modern state.

He said we need to change the history books in Canadian schools and get students away from four years of dreary expositions.

"We need to make Canadian history live for the young people in this confederation," the speaker said. He cited such examples as the economies at Fort Edward and other historical sites where old pageants are re-enacted.

Mr. Edinborough said he likes Canada, and said the people are all aware of it. A good Canada, even though the press sometimes plays up the bad news and not the good points.

He said it was a big Canada and will soon become great.

Maine's Caribou Are Starting To Herd For Winter

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — The Maine fish and game department's game research division, said that tracks of seven to eight caribou, including two calves, were seen earlier this week on a park road. The animals apparently were headed for mid-high Mount Kadin.

Twenty-three caribou, including 17 cows, were brought to the mountains from Newfoundland last year. When spring came, they followed the expected pattern of breaking up into family groups and scattering.

Biologists' reports from Newfoundland had the department to believe caribou usually start to gather in herds after the first snowfall of two inches or more after Oct. 18. A spokesman said it will probably take a little more snow before they complete herding. They frequent high, open areas in winter because the wind keeps such places relatively free of snow and they can dig more easily through it.

He said the caribou moss' lichen, their principal winter feed.

Part of the evensong at Washington cathedral was included in the program of the network of the National Broadcasting Company.

All the guests were crowded on the president's assassination and thousands of people thronged the Arlington National Cemetery, where he is buried.

Just after dawn, in a blizzard of rain and bleak weather, the first of hundreds of floral offerings was placed at the grave. It was a bouquet of wild flowers from Hyannisport, Mass., and it was the widow Kennedy's tribute.

Mr. Kennedy was not at Arlington. She spent the day quietly in New York with her two children, Caroline and John.

At St. Matthew's, Rev. John Cavanaugh, former president of Notre Dame University and a friend of the Kennedy family, celebrated the mass in his serene, he summoned all, each according to his faith, to carry on the Kennedy labors.

All the children of the church brought children Sunday.

Father Cavanaugh said Kennedy "walked among the people and among the workers in field and factory.

After the mass, invited guests drove to Arlington Cemetery. Senator-Elect Robert Kennedy stepped through the white gate of the fence enclosing the grave, knelt and crossed himself. He arose, placed at the foot of the grave a single white rose.

Many visitors to Arlington brought children Sunday.

The Irish ambassador, William P. Fry, brought a wreath from the mayor of Westport, in the land of Kennedy's ancestors.

Juana Castro, sister of Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba who has dedicated herself to the overthrow of his regime, placed a wreath.

What's your stand on life insurance as an investment?

Miss Pepper Investment? I thought you bought life insurance in case something went wrong.

Interviewer: You do. But it's not just protection.

Miss Pepper: If it isn't, what is it then?

Interviewer: An investment, too. Your Mutual Life policy can give you insurance protection until retirement age. Then the same policy can be used to provide a monthly income for as long as you live.

Miss Pepper: So it really is an investment. Funny, I had never thought about insurance that way. Where can I find out more about it?

Interviewer: Call your nearest Mutual Life representative.
