Report NATO Planning 10 Missile Battalions In Europe

By JOHN TALBOT
ZURICH (Reuters) — NATO is planning to establish 10 missile battalions in Europe, a British staff officer from supreme allied headquarters said Wednesday night.
Each battalion, he said, will be equipped with some 15 missiles and manned by about 500 men.
Maj. Hugo Tobias gave these figures in a lecture at Zurich University on NATO strategy. He said NATO's five-year plan envisages installation of these "and other weapons of many types."
"These figures do not include the four bases planned for Britain," he said. "Because of the nature of these new weapons, there is no military need for placing the bases in any particular point in the NATO area."
"Indeed, it is not necessary or desirable that they should be based in every one of the NATO countries."
Tobias said the supreme allied commander, Gen. Lauris Norstad, will present the detailed program at NATO's permanent council meeting in Paris next month.
"Gen. Norstad stresses these are not firm figures," he said.
TIMING ADEQUATE
He added preparations should be completed in 18 months and "the timing for the completion of this task will, in Gen. Norstad's opinion, put us well within the safe period."
"That is," he added, "we can have our intermediate-range ballistic missiles in position in time to maintain the effectiveness of our deterrent power."
The IRBM bases are intended to counteract Russia's development of intercontinental ballistic missiles capable of reaching the major North American cities and military bases.
Tobias said Russia and its Eastern European allies have more than 6,000,000 men under arms. The Soviet submarine fleet totals more than 500 "and there will probably be over 700 by 1960."

and pointed out the advantages of active participation in the church services.
The choir sang an anthem "God Answers Prayer" and a number of familiar hymns, some being requests, were sung by the entire congregation.
Mr. Fraser closed the service with the Benediction.

BROTHERLY LOVE
The following lines were taken from Whittier's Centennial Hymn, which was sung at the opening of the Centennial in Philadelphia, Penn., in 1876. All the verses of the hymn were published in the May 15th 1876 issue of the Examiner; which had as its Editor, W. L. Cotton, Esq.

Thou who hast here in concord furl'd,
The war flags of a gathered world,
Beneath our Western skies fulfil
The Orient's mission of good will,
And frightened with love's golden fleece,
Send back the Argonauts of peace.

O! make thou us, through centuries long,
In peace secure, in justice strong;
Around our gift of freedom draw
The safeguards of Thy righteous law,
And, cast in some diviner mould,
Let the new cycle shroud the old.

U. S. Capital Is Good For Canada Say 3 In 4 Polled

BY CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

On a factual, nose-counting basis are Canadians at the spotlighted "grass-roots" level, troubled about U.S. investments in the country's business—or do they think it's a good thing?

If it were possible to divide all adults into one camp, or another, there would be about three times as many on the side of approval for American finances, as among the objectors. Nationally, 77 per cent are in favor of it, while 23 per cent are not. This proportion is among those who have a definite opinion, one way or another.

This is one of those arguments in which there is practically no difference in attitude among segments of the population. Liberals, Tories, and the other party adherents would vote fairly closely on the matter. Business and professional groups of opinion is much the same.

In a series of questions determining what the public reaction is to American investment in Canada, all the publicity it has been getting, the Gallup Poll put this question to a national cross-section of the voters.

"As you may know, a considerable amount of American money has been invested in Canada. Some people are in favor of this, and others are not. What is your opinion?"

Whereas in some controversies there are wide swings of opinion among the different areas of the country, and in political, or
