

Mr. Saville Makes 24th Budget Address In House

Speaking on the Budget Debate for the 24th time, George E. Saville (L-Six Kings) noted that only a few of the faces in the Legislature of today were present when he came into the House in 1935.

Many changes over the years were noted by the veteran member from Annapolis who gave notice that "if he is spared" he will contest the next election in the fifth district of Kings.

He declared that following the 1935 election there wasn't a decent piece of road in the Georgetown district while today there are less than 25 miles to be sub-graded and widened.

MORE PAVEMENT
In spite of these improvements, Mr. Saville said his district needed more pavement. He based his argument on the fact that all other parts of the Island have the railroad while the 5th district has only 2 1/2 miles of railroad.

He said, "It's the long distance hauling of our trucks that produces the gasoline revenue for roads and besides this when the Trans Canada Highway was built through Queens County we were supposed to be compensated. It didn't work out that way," he said.

Mr. Saville however looked forward to a paved road from Annapolis to Rollo Bay which he expects to get this summer.

QUICK ANSWER
Always ready with an answer, Mr. Saville brought gales of laughter from the House when he said, "Sometimes I'm sorry I can't hear better and sometimes I'm glad I can't."

He was making reference to some Opposition heckling which was directed toward him at the time but which he could not quite catch.

The Annapolis member said he was disappointed with the small budget provided for fisheries. He believed that the fisheries industry which brings in millions to the province should have a greater expenditure.

Hon. Mr. MacKinnon: "We are building three large draggers." Speaking of agriculture, Mr. Saville said he may not be doing all we should but we certainly are doing more than they did in years past. He said the 1934 budget for agriculture was $50,000 compared to the present one of $60,000.

OUR MONEY
Referring to Federal-Provincial relations, Mr. Saville said there was no reason why the local government should have any qualms about accepting money from Ottawa. "It's our money and the federal government wouldn't have it if the provinces did not contribute to the federal treasury. We in PEI contribute just as much per capita as any other province in Canada," he declared.

"We don't want to go to Ottawa in any sort of beggar fashion. I want to be fair, we are grateful for what the present government has done for us but we want more," he said.

He recalled that during the D'Almeida regime, the Island government received a grant of $30,000 from Ottawa with the advice, "That's the last—that is all you are going to get."

TEMPERANCE
Turning to temperance education, Mr. Saville felt that little could be accomplished with the satisfaction and security.

"While there has been some recession in farm properties in Quebec, this must be expected in a province offering so many attractive competing industries, and this also applies to other provinces. But, Quebec has settled over 18,000 farmers on land under their plan.

"I also favor the arrangement in neighboring provinces, through Land Settlement Boards that embraces assistance to young farmers, suitable immigrants, and established farmers who wish to expand acreage to a level that justifies modern equipment and conditions.

through which the land is purchased and vested in the name of the Board until the borrower fulfills the terms of the sale agreement.

GREATER INCENTIVE
"Under such an agreement there is a greater incentive to promote and apply on loan farms, a thoroughly efficient supervision and farm management program than is the case under a straight mortgage system. This practice and experience could be a valuable pattern in farm management that could very well apply on farms generally throughout the province.

"I am not convinced that any intimate consultations have been conducted with this objective in mind with two independent Farm Credit Plans promoted and devised without a common understanding, there will not only follow some conflict and overlapping, but also a definite narrowing of influence that otherwise might have been avoided.

"An integrated plan, or if that is not completely possible, a supplementary plan on the provincial level, would render a broader application of benefits to our farm people.

"I do not think the present restricted legislation now being discussed, and the small amount proposed for this purpose in our next budget, which will not accommodate many more than 25 established farm units, is good enough.

TOO RESTRICTIVE
"It is definitely too restrictive, denies assistance to many farmers with growing families and can have but little general impact on our serious vacant farm situation. I would strongly urge further study, consultation and change in this very important legislation.

"There is another important factor in our farm settlement policy in this province that should be thoroughly explored."

Mr. Shaw continued, "I have always contended, that in a small province like ours, that a farm settlement policy should be on the basis of federal-provincial participation."

In conclusion, Mr. Shaw said, "In view of the recent announcements from Ottawa, that more liberal terms are now under consideration in relation to farm credit assistance, the time is very appropriate for a conference between the province and Ottawa with a view of establishing a common farm assistance plan for Prince Edward Island.

$5,000 voted for education along this line.

"I wasn't fool enough to think that when we did away with prohibition, it was to keep people from drinking more liquor," said Mr. Saville.

Mr. Saville said that if young people are endangered by the use of alcohol they should be taught the scientific facts in school. On the other hand if it is a moral problem it should be up to the clergy and the church.

He deplored the advertisements for liquor which appear in national magazines. "It gives the idea that these people you see in the pictures are a happy lot" he said.

Breath Of Spring Note In Feature Style Display

The annual Spring Fashion Show, "Prelude to Spring" was presented yesterday afternoon and again last night in the ballroom of the Charlottetown Hotel, by the Junior Ladies Aid of the Prince Edward Island Hospital to a capacity audience at each performance.

Colorful arrangements of daffodils and other mixed flowers were used about the room and the guests were seated at long tables where luncheon was served during the performance.

The show was under the distinguished patronage of His Honour, Lieutenant Governor, F. Walter Hyndman and Mrs. Hyndman, Hon. Premier A. W. Matheson and Mrs. Matheson, His Worship Mayor Edwin C. Johnstone and Mrs. Johnstone.

The president, Mrs. George Fisher greeted the large audience and gave a brief description of the presentation, also thanking the many donors who helped to make this interesting event possible.

The commentators were Mrs. L. E. Prowse and Mrs. Tom DeBlois. Appropriate music was played by Mr. Royston F. Muggford, A.R.C.O. The conveners of the show were Mrs. Allison Rogers and Mrs. Temple Hooper.

DRESSES
The dresses modelled showed no drastic change in fashion except for the shoulders which are definitely broader, the width being achieved by the use of wide collars or the manner of which the sleeves are set in. The waist also has ceased its wanderings and more or less have settled midway between bust and hip.

The wide belts were in evidence with the popular cummerbund and extravagant skirt for the younger woman, many in floral prints, shantung being a season's favorite. It was also noted that hemlines continue to be short, and the predominating colors were pink and beige with some of the Royal blue's still in the running, and always the stunning black and white ensemble.

The classic tiered dress in navy, carrying out the wide shoulders complete with daffodil hat was a real Breath of Spring. Another eye-catcher was a three-piece costume of English wool with button trim.

Luxurious furs of mink, from shoulder-hugging design to the cape effect, were modelled with the lovely dresses, whether of full gathered skirts or the graceful sheath dress.

A scarlet Roseberry bubble dress caught the eye—a dance dress of dotted nylon which any young miss would be proud to wear for that special date. Another, a cocktail dress of coffee and cream crepe, gathered in front at the new waistline with rhinestone pin, and worn with stole of natural ranch mink, we thought was tops.

COATS AND SUITS
In the suits shown, the most popular was the walking suit or knee length, with straight skirt, suitable for the traveller, and worn with a casual high crowned hat. Also a wool check which was very smart with a pencil trim skirt.

The box suits and the bloused back were also featured for casual wear. Then there was dand—all weather number, worn with high crowned hat of straw in the new opal fire shade, that is to mention a few, as every number shown was clever in line.

Hats which play an important part in any costume, were both gay and feminine, the wide brimmed picture hat with trimmed the single rose for trimming, the sailor, the cloche type, and the "wig" hat.

The sportswear displayed was smartly designed for comfort—one attractive number featured a tuxedo style jacket and plaid slacks.

The children models were charming in their snappy togs, Joyce and Jimmy, a winsome twosome made their debut in a very easy manner, Joyce clad in neat sailor suit—navy of course, and matching bonnet and purse. Jimmy with a jaunty air led the way in tailored camel hair coat, real replica of dad. Joyce and Jimmy also were shown in another school outfit, coral wrinkled cotton for Joyce and Jimmy in brown boxer shorts, white shirt and veskit, complete with bow tie.

The next in line were Kathy and Gary, Kathy dressed in MacDonald tartan with matching French sailor, her handsome escort, Master Gary, in manly Grey tweed.

For a school out number Kathy's frock was full-skirted with wide shawl and fitted bodice topped with a navy bengaline duster in the new mushroom shade. Gary in brown trousers and striped jacket.

The bridal scene, always a popular number, was greeted with applause, in lovely pastel shades of aqua nylon sheer and orchid nylon sheer.

The jewelry and matching accessories worn by the models which were the finishing touches to the smart costumes were supplied by Charlottetown's leading stores.

The artistic decorations and settings were done by Mr. Gerald Maddigan.

The following is the executive of the Junior Ladies Aid of the Prince Edward Island Hospital 1958 - 1959: Honorary President, Mrs. G. H. Buntain; President, Mrs. George Fisher; Vice-President, Mrs. Harry L. Sear, Jr.; Recording Secretary, Mrs. James

"The borrower is paying back during this interval in annual payments and interest and the obligation thus reduced, along with farm expansion, should protect the government against any loss.
