

"CERTIFICATES OF MERIT" awarded by the Rotary Club of Lytham, England for their art drawings shown at the International Youth Exhibition were presented at Rotary yesterday.

Youth Activities In Limelight At Rotary Club Luncheon

Youth activities of deep and lasting interest were in the limelight at the weekly Rotary luncheon meeting at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday, presided over by Sr. Capt. John Carter, chairman of the Youth Committee, with Bill Robinson as co-chairman.

Ron Storey related some of his experience ten days ago when he represented the Charlottetown Club as a guest of the Ottawa Club in an Adventure in Citizenship assembly, and Mrs. W.J. MacKay, director of art in the Charlottetown schools, spoke on "The place of Art in the Modern Curriculum".

Added interest was contained in the report of Ken Parker, International Service Committee chairman who introduced six high school students to receive Certificates of Merit at the hand of President Bob Parent on behalf of the Rotary Club of Lytham, Eng., for pictures shown there. The pictures submitted were shown in the International Youth Art Exhibition at Lytham in competition with others from many parts of the world and are now on exhibition tour throughout England.

ART DIRECTOR
Mrs. MacKay, speaking briefly, pointed out the advanced position maintained in Europe in art and the relative attention given the subject in Canada and the United States. "An art exhibition in England draws a crowd of intelligent and enthusiastic students very much like a contortionist guitar player musters a following on this side of the Atlantic," Mrs. MacKay said.

"Crayon and water colour work is an original means by which human can express themselves in lines and colours and opens a great field for satisfaction in the creative field," Mrs. MacKay said as she described her early start in interesting children here in the work which now has reached commendable proportions.

"It is thrilling to learn that our pupils have won recognition in an exhibit of art from over 25 countries of the world, each showing individuality peculiar to the young folk of the countries concerned."

CITIZENSHIP ADVENTURE
"Trusted by the week and respected by the powerful is the position in which Canada is situated. Ron Storey said in quoting the speech of Viscount Montgomery as repeated by Paul Martin in addressing the "Adventure in Citizenship" youth assembly last week in Ottawa. "Canada is fast becoming a country of minorities and it is the responsibility of the older and wiser to educate the youth so that we will appreciate this country and learn to run it successfully when our turn comes."

Continuing to quote Mr. Martin, the speaker described the four rules of citizenship, stressing the freedom of the press, religion, speech and public gatherings "and this is done largely by setting the example yourself". "I suppose a citizen can be measured by moral values which will enable us to appreciate the rights of others, industry, which will be required to hold our own, responsibility and loyalty to our ideals, our friends and our country."

Ron described the full program of addresses, luncheons and entertainment which collectively made the experience a memorable one.

"It was interesting to note the differences and similarities of opinion in dealing with the discussions in groups at Carleton University on such topics as Federal-provincial relations," Mr. Storey said. "The Prairie Provinces and the Atlantic Provinces expressed very similar views."

Hon. J. Angus MacLean and Heath MacQuarrie, M.P. were with the young citizens at the dinner meeting in the ballroom of the Chateau Laurier which was addressed by Prof. Anthony Adamson, consultant to the St.

Service, Sr. Capt. John Carter, Youth Service Chairman Richard Taylor, Edgar Lambe studies at Birchwood High and the others at Queen Charlotte High

Lawrence Development Commission.

A conducted tour of the Parliament Building concluded with the presentation of citizenship certificates by the Prime Minister, "a rare and thrilling experience," Mr. Storey said.

The speakers were thanked by the co-chairman.

Fred Fisher of Cleveland, Ohio was a visitor.

New Disposal System Of Sewage To Be Tried Here

A new, relatively inexpensive means for the sanitary disposal of sewage for towns of 5,000 population and less is to be put into operation in two communities in the Province this summer. Dr. B. D. Howatt, Health Officer and Acting Director of the Division of Sanitary Engineering, Provincial Department of Health, announced last night.

The system, called "lagooning" has been extensively tested and found satisfactory particularly in North and South Dakota and in Saskatchewan and W. H. Crandall, consulting engineer from Moncton, New Brunswick, sees no reason why it shouldn't be successful here.

The lagoons or ponds are from three to five feet deep, depending upon the season, and the sewage outlet is located in the centre of the lagoon. Bacteria decompose the sewage so that usually little or no noticeable odor is given off. The lagoons should be located several hundred yards away from dwellings.

ADVANTAGES
Dr. Howatt pointed out that the advantages of this type of system are that it is (1) relatively cheap to construct, one acre of lagoon being necessary for every 100 people in the village or town (2) Maintenance is practically nil as the lagoons need be cleaned out once in an estimated fifty years and (3) the bacteria in the sewage is reduced by nearly 95% depending upon the season. In summer the bacterial count has been known to be reduced by 99.9%. Another important point is that due to evaporation and a very small amount of seepage there is little overflow. This overflow is quite harmless for animals to drink and will not pollute or contaminate any streams into which it runs. In fact, it is recommended that fish be introduced into the lagoons where they will thrive.

TYPE OF SOIL
The type of soil on Prince Edward Island is quite high in silt, and as such is excellent for the lagooning of sewage where very little seepage is desirable. Dr. Howatt concluded by saying that, "if these lagoons prove a successful means for the sanitary disposal of sewage on Prince Edward Island, it will be a great boon for our towns and villages. With a reasonably low cost for construction, very little cost for maintenance and with no danger of pollution of our ponds and streams, installation of sanitary sewage disposal units becomes feasible for all, and our Island will be a more healthy and beautiful spot for residents of the province."

Evangelist Lands His Small Seaplane On Causeway Lake

A small plane, equipped with pontoons, landed last evening in the water on the north side of the North River causeway. Piloting the plane was Mr. J.A. Joyce of Victoria, P.E.I.

Mr. Joyce, a well known evangelist, who makes his home in Victoria, conducts a missionary circuit in Northern Labrador where he uses his plane to reach localities inaccessible to other means of travel. Last week Mr. Joyce flew his plane to Ontario to have it equipped with pontoons so that he might more easily reach people in outlying areas.

For the past several days the seaplane has been at anchor at Victoria. Since, however, salt water affects the pontoons, it was necessary to fly the plane to a fresh water anchorage at North River. Mr. Joyce returned to Victoria last evening by car.

Suggests Tax Deductions For Persons Building Own Homes

OTTAWA (CP)—Persons who build their own homes under the National Housing Act should be allowed deductions for income tax purposes, a Liberal member of Parliament suggested Monday.

Ostias J. Godin, Nickel Belt, said that the N.H.A., administered by the Crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, enables only the well-to-do, builders and speculators to undertake building a house.

He suggested that a person buying a home under N.H.A. might be allowed up to a maximum of $500 deductible annually.

Roland English (PC—Gaspé) asked that the government sponsor a railway in the Gaspé Peninsula, between Matane and Ste-Anne-des-Monts. Matane now is served by a 35-mile CNR spur line from Mont Joli. Ste-Anne-des-Monts is 55 miles farther east from Matane along the south shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

"It is impossible to develop that part of the country until it gets its railway," Mr. English said. Now dependent exclusively upon fishing and lumbering, its people would benefit by a diversification of industry.

Mr. English also asked that the government's agricultural prices stabilization legislation by extended to include fish. Fishermen in his constituency were obtaining only 2 1/2 cents a pound for their catch and he was convinced they were being "exploited."
