Montreal Pays Tribute To An Eminent Doctor

Dr. John Hamond Palmer, 62, born in Bedouque, P.E.I., head of the Royal Victoria Hospital Cardiology Department at Montreal and one of the founders of the National Heart Foundation of Canada died August 9th.

The following is an editorial from the Montreal Star of August 12, with heading Dr. John H. Palmer.

Canada has lost a distinguished medical scientist in the death of Dr. John H. Palmer, a person who, quite apart from his professional eminence, had that rare gift—a great capacity for friendship.

In a self-effacing manner Dr. Palmer lent lustre to all he did, which was much and in many fields. He was associate professor of medicine at McGill University and as such quickly gained the confidence of his students. As head of the department of cardiology at the Royal Victoria Hospital he added to the laurels of that renowned institution. And as one of the founders of the National Heart Foundation of Canada he made an outstanding contribution to the important work which is going on in this country in this particular field.

Like so many doctors he was ready, at considerable personal sacrifice, to serve his country in the two world wars. His services in World War II were outstanding, "in the field" with Montreal's famed No. 14 Canadian General Hospital and later at military headquarters in London when he became chief consultant in medicine.

All these things Dr. Palmer did supremely well, but a host of friends will remember him as a kind, cultured personality with a profound fondness for the good things of this world.

Member Of Harris Family Dies In Toronto, Ontario

The Toronto East General Hospital is well known to many people in this province. It was founded by the late Joseph Harris, Conservative M.P., who for many years was known as the "baby member" of the House of Commons.

The name Harris can really be said to be synonymous with the Toronto East General Hospital. The Toronto Telegram carries the following obituary of J. W. Harris, brother of the late Joseph Harris, Mr. J. W. Harris as well as Mr. Joseph Harris worked hard to make the Toronto East General one of the finest hospitals in Canada.

The following is the Telegram obituary notice—
John Wesley Harris of Donegal dr., who died May 13 at St. Michael's Hospital in his 87th year, left an estate valued at $397,280.

NEWLY INTERPRETED CHEMISE

There's fresh, new inspiration in the sportswear world. Mr. John, famed for fabulous hats, now turns his genius to separates with a "together" look. His two part edition of the chemise poses an airy top on a reed-skirt. Simple (joyfully simple to sew), yet Printed Pattern M305 has a casual elegance that sets it realms apart from the usual. Note the shaping of the skirt—a long zipper, hidden in the back panel, fits it smoothly, superbly to your figure. And an elastic drawstring controls the fullness of the top at hip-level—fashion's point of interest this summer. Mr. John chose ice-white damask cotton with a blue dot for this Original, suggests linen, pique, cotton twined to you for now—silk crepe for late summer-into-fall.

Onion Tart Borrowed From A Famous Hostess

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

From spring to early summer, food editors in New York City are submerged in a semi-social swirl of delightful special events. These pose a twofold problem: How to find time to do any work and how to sidestep too many calories!

A most interesting International Buffet for the press was hosted by Elsa Maxwell in the Hunt Room of "21," to celebrate the opening of the recent Festival of Foods.

GRACIOUS HOSTESS
Miss Maxwell is a most gracious hostess, especially successful because she is genuinely interested in her guests.

Her recent book How To Do It, or The Lively Art of Entertaining, is outstandingly helpful in its down-to-earth, easy-to-take suggestions and the entertaining way in which they are presented. It contains the solutions to many problems untouched in books of etiquette—all handled from the human standpoint.

You'll enjoy reading every word. The following International Buffet menu, featuring foods from 38 countries, can serve as a model on which to plan either simple or elaborate buffets.

Buffet Menu: Roquefort Napolettes, fish of the seven seas, hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, lobster soup, whipped cream, tohera (soup), Maryland chicken, corn fritters, native smoky ham.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Safety On Highways Is A "Must" To Read

By this, the herdsmen of this farm and his herdsmen will be home from their week at the Fair.

And by this that outward trek will be continuing into the week-end which returns home every animal and herdsman, official and visitor, to leave at length that erswhile busy and colorful place that is "The Grounds," once more deserted and lone.

We think now of the outgoing machines, the giant and smaller transports bearing off the prizes of the farms, the trailers and other vehicles that made the Midway and other features of interest. The cars too easing out into the night or day, facing home to some island place or location distant, carrying folks who have pleasant memories of the gala week past, and nice anticipations of loved scenes ahead. And ever in our mind in connection, is the thought of that tragic toll of lives which invariably is paid out so needlessly it would appear by the weekend traffic.

An editorial in a farm journal recently lays this mostly to "High ways that Hypnotize." Most of us "it says" have come to dread the Monday newspaper, with its grim weekly record of traffic accidents over the weekend.

Highway safety is preached to us constantly, yet traffic tragedies continue to shock us with their wanton waste of lives. Surely we are coming to the limit of our endurance as a nation. Must we all give up those pleasant Sunday drives that have been so much a part of our Canadian way of living? Or can someone, or some group of people come up with really constructive suggestions for stopping this tragic toll?

It seems to us that the Highway departments are going in the wrong directions in many of their so called improvements. Those incredibly smooth four-lane highways are an invitation to speed. Why does anyone need to go at seventy miles an hour? What destination is so important that it must be reached by a mathematically precise line? Those ribbon smooth, straight roads are just bait for the speed
