

only ran from 11:40 - 1:10. This was probably due to the fact that John Mann (lead vocalist and guitar player) and Geoffery Kelly (sometimes lead vocalist, flute, tin flute, and "bodbran" drum player) were "somewhat" hung over. We were informed that it had been Geoff's birthday the night before. Despite this, the show was incredible. John Mann moved around with energy that might have been difficult to maintain if had been feeling fine and his vocals (as well as Geoff's and Linda's) were amazing, as was the music they played. Before the show we were fortunate enough to interview with vocalist/accordion player/bass guitar, Linda MacRae. We promise to print it next week.

The opening act, Mae Moore was "gifted" and her songs were really, really good. This was even more amazing when you consider all she had on stage with her were her guitar and a microphone. Lyrically and musically Mae Moore is one sharp performer.
