LET'S EAT

First Fall Party Menu Stars Melon Sherbet

By Ida Bailey Allen

It was twilight of an early September day in New York City. The Chef and I were walking down Fifth Avenue when a fragrant breeze stopped us with surprise and delight.

"Water lilies! The fragrance of water lilies. Chef. But where is it coming from?"

"Let us apply the old rule of follow the nose and find out, Madame," he suggested.

THE SOLUTION

Two blocks further, the mystery was solved. There, floating in the pools of water in the Channel Gardens of Rockefeller Centre, were the water lilies. Around the edge of the pools bloomed pink begonias and blue ageratum.

ARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Hostess Starts Fuss When Guest Uses Her Cosmetics

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently I was criticized severely, and called very selfish, because I voiced displeasure on finding that a guest had opened the cabinet in my bathroom and used a cosmetic article of mine she found there.

I didn't protest to the guest, but to my husband, and was overheard. I dislike having any of my personal accessories used by others; and I object to the idea of guests opening closet doors, or bureau or desk drawers—other than those set aside for their use.

If my attitude is selfish, I should like to know it, so that I can take steps to overcome my strong feelings in such matters.

Also please tell me, should I feel that my married stepdaughter is entitled to exceptional privileges in such matters—to be considered differently than other guests in my home? My husband and I disagree about this. I shall appreciate your sincere opinion.

MORE TO THIS
DEAR D.C.: It seems to me there are wheels-within-wheels in your displeasure. The explosion over the invasion of your bathroom cabinet was caused not so much by the happening itself, as by your habitual feelings towards the particular person who assumed a householder's privilege, I think.

Also, I would say that you aren't maternally disposed towards your married stepdaughter. She is a thorn in the side of your life with her father. Perhaps he encourages her to count herself a part of the family-flesh of his flesh and figuratively your daughter too. Whereas you can't "take" her, for some reason or other. And possibly she feels the same about you. May it be just garden variety childish female jealousy—two women unable to reconcile their overlapping claim to the loyalty of a would-be impartial male.

So much for preface. Now, about guests looking into closets, desk and bureau drawers not assigned to their use.—this is considered taboo curiosity in genteel society. But the rule gets broken. It may be a thoughtless lapse from punctilio; or it may be vulgar deliberate snooping. Thus there are degrees of offense, ranging from the innocent excusable to the other extreme—that warrant protest-feeding.

ISN'T HOSPITABLE

Your notion that your stepdaughter should walk a chalk line, as a guest in your house is a rigid unlovely attitude in my opinion—different from the attitude of amiable blood mothers. In most families, where good relations prevail, married daughters retain their familiar filial privileges, usually. There is an old couplet to the effect that "A son is son until he takes him a wife, but a daughter is a daughter all her life."—in the sense of retaining rather close emotional identification with worthy parents.

Your don't-touch feeling about your personal toiletries is understandable, it is a sentiment shared by many selfish persons of fastidious habit. But it is a far cry from that gracious spirit of sharing which is the essence of hospitality. When you raise your voice

Why your child needs your help when pimples strike

by MARCELLA HOLMES NOTED BEAUTY AUTHORITY
(former Beauty Editor of "Glamour" magazine)

Of all the mail that reaches a beauty editor's desk, there is none so urgent as letters from adolescent girls with pimples. That's why I want to alert mothers to the double dangers of this problem. Specialists warn that pimples undermine poise and self-confidence, can cause permanent damage to a child's personality. And everyone knows that acne-type pimples, if neglected, can leave permanent scars on the skin.

Is there a way you can help your child? Yes, thanks to CLEARASIL, a modern, scientific medicated formulation especially for pimples. In actual clinical tests, CLEARASIL brought positive relief in a high percentage of cases. Greaseless, fast-drying, anti-septic... CLEARASIL dries pimples surprisingly fast. Ends embarrassment immediately because CLEARASIL is skin-colored to hide pimples as it works. Must work for you as it did in clinical tests or money back. Only 69¢ and $1.19 at all drugstores.

Victoria, B. C., Is Setting For Recent Autumn Wedding

A traditional bridal gown of white lace and net was worn by Miss Helen Margaret Kermode when she repeated vows with Mr. Keith Arnold Sobey, in St. Aidan's United Church, Victoria, B. C., on Sept. 2, 1955, at 8 p.m. Rev. J. Lyn Clerihue officiated for the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kermode, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Sobey, Searlestown, P.E.I.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown fashioned with a floor-length skirt of filmy lace and net, topped with a matching lace jacket with Peter Pan collar and long lily-point sleeves. A headpiece of pearls and sequins held her fingertip veil of illusion nylon net and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Miss Virginia Kilgour, wore a dress of green taffeta and net with matching jacket. She carried a rosette bouquet of yellow marguerites and delphiniums and wore a matching floral headband. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Lou Kermode, sister of the bride, chose a gown of rose silk and net with matching jacket. Her bouquet was of blue delphiniums with matching headband.

Mr. Art Thomas was best man for his brother-in-law, and Mr. Bill Kermode, brother of the bride, and Mr. L. Mawson, ushered guests to pews marked with white satin ribbons.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where Mr. W. J. H. Miller, a family friend, proposed the toast to the bride. Rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells, and the young couple received friends while standing under an archway of pink and white streamers and green ferns, centred with two wedding bells. A three-tier wedding cake flanked by pink candles centred the lace-covered bride's table.

The couple left on a honeymoon trip to the interior of British Columbia.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thomas, Vancouver, B. C.

HOUSEHOLD HINT
Store sharp knives so they will not strike against each other or against other metals. Wall type slotted racks or the magnetic type holders are satisfactory. For drawer storage, a block of wood, vertically slotted to fit each blade, helps prevent dulled and blunted edges.

Wife Preservers
Bake frozen meat pies with pastry topping (400 degrees F. hot oven) for about 45 minutes for pint size; one hour for quart, or until the meat filling is piping hot and the crust is golden brown.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Your success and happiness lie in you. External conditions are the accidents of life. The great enduring realities are love and service. Joy is the holy fire that keeps our purpose warm and our intelligence aglow. Resolve to keep happy, and your joy and you shall form an invincible host against difficulty.—(Helen Keller)

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife
This morning—what did it bring? Bright blue sky, a stirring breeze and again harvest-weather to the farmers... After the choring they went to it, in a world cleaned, refreshed, by yesterday's showers. To later and last bits and pieces of reaping, this time at Alderlea, where to mark the close of it on our farms, that off the dot of new land, its virgin crop of grain, was bound.

It yielded a nice return in sheaves for the energy of springtime extended. We remember that frogs were playing their amorous tunes that night the clearing-fires were burning. Today, crickets had taken over the field-music they and the noisy crows along the hilltop.

"Crows are hateful things, aren't they?" granddaughter hearing commented. "Not always—sometimes their singing is as sweet to hear as the song of the thrush in summer," we returned.

"When we hear the first 'caw in the spring!'"
"Oh yes!" she smiled. "It's nice we can find something good to say about them. I guess" she added maturely, "there's good in everybody and everything."

"There's so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us, that it ill-behoves the best of us to make fun of the worst of us!" we quoted.

"And remember, Everybody's queer but..."
"Thee and me!" she giggled, "and sometimes!" she nodded "thee art a little queer!" It was a Quaker, who said that, wasn't it? Quaker

Vows Solemnized At Kelly's Cross

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Joseph's Chapel, Kelly's Cross, on August 3rd, when Miss Margaret Helena Laurencia Monaghan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Monaghan, became the bride of LAC FRANCIS E. Carragher, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Carragher. Rev. James Smith P. P. officiated. The altar was decorated with summer flowers and the guest pews were marked by silk bows. During the nuptial mass, celebrated by Rev. Smith, hymns were sung by Misses Vivian and Agnes Trainor, cousins of the bride, while Mrs. Mary Trainor, aunt of the bride, presided at the organ. The bride wore a gown of white lace over taffeta with matching fingertip veil and mittens. She carried a bouquet of red roses and a white prayer book, the gift of the groom.

The groom's mother chose white carnations. The groom wore a navy blue costume with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Groomsman was Mr. Edward MacDonald, cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Charles Flood and Mr. Russell Smith.

A reception followed at the Queen Hotel. Rev. Smith proposed the toast to the bride. Mrs. Maurice MacDonald and her son Mr. Wendell MacDonald supplied the music for dancing.

During the evening a later reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The groom has left for London, Ont., where he is stationed with the R. C. A. F. His bride will join him shortly.

"A dear old Quaker lady distinguished for her youthful appearance was asked what she used to preserve her charms. She replied sweetly, "I used for the lips, truth; for the voice, prayer; for the eyes, pity; for the hand, charity; for the figure, uprightiness; and for the heart, love." She put down the paper and looked out for a moment along the fields and wooded places of this valley of the mill. In some fields, there were stooks, in others the bare stubble, in pastures, cattle on the hills. "Quite nice, don't you think so?" she queried. Truth, prayer, pity, charity, uprightiness, love, we numbered them over. And "Ver lovely!" we said. Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night!"

Fashions Put Bulges On Spot
By Ida Jean Kain
It's fun to be able to wear high style fashions with a flare. The newest trend is the lowered waistline with the sculptured thighline, a style that puts thigh bulges conspicuously on the spot.

Shaping the side thighline are the gluteus medius and minimus muscles which give a rounded contour to the sides of the hipline. Since these muscles are not brought into vigorous action in everyday movements, pincushions of fat often perch in this spot and cling tenaciously. Let's iron out the bulges... Ease into exercise with a long stretch, combined with a side-bend directed through the bulge.

Position: Stand with feet apart, arms arched overhead, ballerina style. Movement: Step back with left foot, pull slim through girdle muscles, then bend sideways to the
