French Charge Spanish Moroccans Aid Rebels

(By Michael Weigall) RABAT, Morocco, (Reuters) - French authorities charged Friday that officials in neighboring Spanish Morocco are "aiding and abetting" 2,000 rebellious Rif tribesmen who still are tying down 15,000 French troops after two months of revolt. Authorities said that 101 French soldiers have been killed and 173 wounded since the tribesmen rebelled in June, 1953, in Spanish Morocco, to a rebel army. The fighting has forced the French to build a new line of military outposts in the Rif region where it is feared it might take months to finally crush the rebels. The rebels are led by Communist-trained former French army warrant officer in Indochina, Mohammed al-Khachouchi. The French said Spanish district officials actually stepped up their help to the rebels after a protest last month by Moroccan

Council Of S'ide Hi-Y Chapters Elects Officers

The first meeting of the Council of the Summerside Hi-Y Chapters was held on Wednesday evening at the Summerside Y center. Members present were Elizabeth Nicholson, Marion MacLeod, Roberta Clark of the "Gamma" Girls Hi-Y Chapter, Cecelia Darby, Margo MacDougall and Hester MacPhee of the "Beta" Girls Chapter and James Norton, David MacDonald and Arthur Morrison of the "Alpha" Boys Chapter. Mentors present were Peggy Preston of the "Gamma" Chapter, Birdie Cairns of the "Beta" Chapter and Charles Ballem of the "Alpha" Chapter.

Executive officers of the council were elected as follows: president, David MacDonald; vice-president, Margo MacDougall; secretary, Roberta Clark. The Hi-Y Council constitutional committee were also elected as follows: Hester MacPhee (Chairman); Marion MacLeod; Arthur Morrison.

The initial business brought up before the council was the part that the Hi-Y Clubs would play in the extension of the Y's Century but no decision was reached. The suggestion that the clubs put in a fireplace was discussed but nothing definite was decided on. A sleigh ride in the near future was also given some discussion and also a skating party with the members of all three chapters present.

Christian youth week, which comes at the end of January, was put aside for the time when Summerside Hi-Y Clubs would do special service projects for the community. After a short discussion on week-end Hi-Y dances it was decided that the secretary of each chapter should write to the Y's Men's Club asking permission to use the center for their social evenings and taking full responsibility for the centre.

Mr. Charles Ballem, mentor of the "Alpha" Boys Chapter brought to the attention of the council that each club should have a Hi-Y Club for a pen pal. The secretary of each club was instructed to write to the national Hi-Y Council for advice on the matter. A short discussion was held about the "Gamma" Girls' rummage sale this coming Saturday in Trinity Epworth Hall and every one was urged to help.

Christmas Comes Early To 230 Convicts In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) - Christmas has come early for 230 convicts across Canada who have been granted their freedom for good behavior in jails and penitentiaries. It has been the practice of the justice department's remissions branch to release certain number annually in time for Christmas. In most cases, the released convicts have served at least half of their sentences. Until recent years they had to have served at least two-thirds of their terms. Among those who walked out of penitentiaries this year were a few originally sentenced to life imprisonment. The men are free on a signed "license," under which they pledge to abide by the law during the unexpired part of their sentence. They are required to report monthly to police and at regular intervals to specialized agencies such as the John Howard Society and the Salvation Army which undertake to help rehabilitate them. Officials said the plan has met with gratifying success, only about five per cent of the convicts breaking their pledges. Christmas was a trying time for those convicts who found themselves behind bars principally because of their addiction to liquor. The licenses under which they were released specify they must abstain from intoxicants. Upon leaving prison the men receive clothing, a small sum of money and a transportation ticket to the city where they were convicted. The convicts used to be released about Dec. 20 but in recent years they have started to leave the prisons about Dec. 15. Conditional freedom to convicts is not granted only at Christmas. Men who have earned tickets to leave through good behavior also are released in the spring for the opening of navigation and farm seeding in the late summer for harvesting and in late October for bush work. These usually are former seamen, farm hands and bush workers. MUST ACT PROPERLY They leave their cells after officials are satisfied about their probable future behavior and that they will receive supervision, employment and shelter on the outside. During the last year about 1,300 convicts were granted this type of parole. In 1954 they numbered 915. Last year the licenses with 262 were revoked, 27 for conviction on indictable offences while on parole and 12 for not living up to conditions of their release. Seventy per cent of the prisoners released in 1955 received trained supervision from social workers, compared with 82 per cent last year and only 16 per cent in 1949.

Royal Children Pay Visit To Santa Claus Kingdom

LONDON (Reuters) - Prince Charles and Princess Anne spent a wide-eyed hour Monday confiding their secret hopes for Christmas to Santa Claus and wandering through a wonderland of toys. The prince, 7, and his five-year-old sister were taken on their annual treat to the toy department of an expensive London store. There, amid spreading plaster trees of pink, blue, mauve and green representing an enchanted forest, they were met by the Queen's children arrived without announcement soon after the store opened. The princess, in her fitted brown coat, and the prince, in a green suit, wandered separately, each with a nurse, among the toys. Princess Anne was fascinated, but from the look on his face Charles was obviously at an age to be cynical about the idea of someone descending the chimneys of Buckingham Palace on Christmas Eve. Santa Claus said later that what the royal children wanted the most were "the same sort of thing that lots of kiddies of their ages ask for, but I can't disclose what." Anne dashed excitedly from counter to counter with delight. "She was enthralled by the clockwork trains—much more so than Charles," said one salesman. "spent several minutes helping me load tiny mail bags on a toy train and was fascinated by the signals." Charles, meanwhile, was trying out friction cars, and considering yachts with masts taller than himself and miniature clockwork toys. After carefully studying the price tags he fumbled in his purse and made his decision—a gay clockwork penguin for six shillings. On Christmas Eve, another expedition Charles tucked a miniature building set into his shopping bag and caught up with his sister in the store's private zoo.

Mink Rancher Sues For Jet Plane Disturbances

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) - The Exchequer Court of Canada has begun hearing a $3,846 damage suit taken by a northeastern Quebec mink rancher who claims vibrations caused by low flying RCAF jets have cut off many of his young mink and affected production. The case, in which rancher Cynaris Tremblay of nearby Kenogami, Que., is suing the federal government, is considered by legal experts here as a test case which could affect the national defence system in the area. One of the first witnesses at the hearing was Group Capt. Beverly Christmas, a former commanding officer of the RCAF base at nearby Baguville, Que. Group-Capt. Christmas, now stationed in Germany, testified that as commanding officer at Baguville he was advised in June, 1953, of the deadly effect of the jet vibrations on Mr. Tremblay's mink. However, it was the first and last complaint he had ever received on the matter. The hearing, before Judge Jacques Dumoulin, is continuing.

East Prince Jr. Farmers Annual Meeting Yesterday

George Riley of Hamilton was elected president of the East Prince Junior Farmers Association at the annual meeting in Summerside last evening, attended by a large representation of young men and women from several districts in this area. The meeting was presided over by the retiring president, Urban Laughlin, and his report preceded those of various committees within the association.

W. S. McMurtry, agricultural engineer for the Provincial Department of Agriculture, speaking on the topic "You have an obligation," told the meeting that they should do everything possible to promote and strengthen the Junior Farmers Association. He pointed out the importance of keeping farm records, and reminded them that the farmer was a professional man, and a member of a profession that had to be good managers.

Stressing the importance of care and maintenance of farm machinery, he gave several instances of seeing expensive machinery neglected and lacking any protection from the winter weather. He gave several important suggestions which would remedy such situations, and he advised that maintenance and repair of farm machinery be done during the winter months when more time was available and replacement parts were more easily obtained. He urged that instruction books be obtained when new machinery was purchased, and that a careful study be made of the information provided.

The meeting approved resolutions (1) requesting assistance of a fieldman for further expansion of the Junior Farmers organization; (2) requesting the Provincial Government to supply more seating facilities in the Summerside Department of Agriculture board rooms; (3) requesting the Provincial Department of Agriculture to continue the Junior Farmers grant organization and a larger membership that the grant might be raised; (4) requesting the directors to investigate the possibility of having regular broadcasts; (5) requesting the Junior Farmers Federation to conduct a Junior farmers field day next summer and to make this an annual evening; (6) requesting the Provincial Department of Agriculture to study the possibilities of exchange visits of Junior Farmers of P. E. I. with Junior Farmers of the United Kingdom, as is the policy in Ontario; (7) extending votes of thanks to the Provincial press and radio. New officers elected for the coming year were as follows: past president, Urban Laughlin, Sherbrooke; president, George Riley, Hamilton; vice-president, Junior Colwill, Sherbrooke; secretary-treasurer, Belle Small, Miscouche; recording secretary, Mrs. Adrian Dekker, Sherbrooke.

Directors: Adrian Dekker, Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. George Riley, Hamilton; Junior Colwill, Sherbrooke; James McLaren, Belmont; Robert Linkletter, Linkletter Road; Belle Small, Miscouche; and Arnold Waugh, Wilmot. The retiring secretary-treasurer is Miss Kathleen Dekker.

Denies Railways Unprogressive

MONTREAL - Allegations that the railways are "too conservative and unprogressive" were forcefully "not guilty" from N. J. MacMillan, Q.C., vice-president and general counsel of Canadian National Railways, at the Canadian Railway Club monthly meeting here. "If we are regarded as conservative because we have been cautious and moderate, we have no reason to hide our heads," he declared.

"The public has been the beneficiary and has come to regard the railways as the safest and surest means of all types of transportation," Mr. MacMillan said safely was achieved by people who were cautious and moderate. Railroads as a class were not the type who drove the snappiest cars nor wore flamboyant clothes. They were thus apt to be said "Quiet and law abiding self respecting and respected members of the community."

The allegations of conservatism probably flowed from the assumption that because railroads were of the type, these characteristics influenced their receptivity to new ideas. On the contrary, he told the club, the railways' safety considerations, the varied influences of weather across a trans continental system, public reaction in different localities, and Provincial laws all had to be thoroughly considered before any innovation was adopted.

"Staggering sums of money are inevitably involved in the adoption of the railways of some types of development," MacMillan said. "The vastness of these amounts requires exhaustive consideration of all such proposals and, frequently, implementation in progressive stages."

To emphasize the record of development of Canadian railways the CNR executive cited the increasing use of diesel locomotives. New designs for passenger and freight equipment, track laying and maintenance machines, and the costly centralized traffic controls system. "The railways have had their difficult days and probably will have more in the future," he concluded. "New forms of competition have arisen, but these are being met by improved service and economy of various kinds. The railways are still unequalled as the best and most economical method of moving large quantities of goods and great masses of people."

LABOR EARNS MORE

OTTAWA (CP) - Canadian labor income rose 6 1/2 per cent in the first nine months of this year compared with the same period of 1954, the bureau of statistics reported Monday. The increase of $587,000,000. In September, labor income was estimated at $1,012,000,000.

opinion polls indicate a steady trend against Benson in the heavily populated and politically vital mid-western farm areas. Reports current about a month ago that Benson was about to be fired from the cabinet were quickly squelched by Eisenhower himself. The president gave his secretary solid backing by issuing a statement saying he never had considered dismissing Benson, published reports to the contrary.

SURPLUS PROBLEM The American farmer faces a problem of rising costs and falling income. His expenses have gone up by 30 per cent since 1947 while net return has dropped that much. Estimated farm income last year will be $11,800,000,000. This year it will be $10,800,000,000 and Benson's departmental economists estimate another decline can be expected in 1956.

Agricultural surpluses are the cause of the farmers' distress, and the surpluses come from a 35-year drive by the farmer to produce more and more food, largely to reap the benefit of government price support and subsidy programs. The end result of this increased production is that the administration now is stock-piling farm surplus faster than it can dispose of them. Storage costs are tremendous, running currently at approximately $1,000,000 a day.

In his efforts to ease the internal pressures, Benson is trying to unload the surpluses on export markets. Congress has authorized him to dispose of the surpluses by outright give-away methods, by barter, and by sale for local currencies and by auction to the highest international bidder. The Canadian government felt these methods violate long-established rules of international trade.

Prosperity Has Replaced Austerity In Old Country

By GRAHAM LOVELL Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON (CP) - This Christmas in Britain will probably be the gayest and brightest for many a year, despite inflation, high prices and too few turkeys. Prosperity has replaced the austerity of the early post-war years and the bright lights in Piccadilly Circus are more flashy than ever. Nearby Regent street, one of London's main shopping centres, sets the pace for the rest of the country with huge paper snowflakes suspended over the traffic, illuminated at night by colored spotlights. Fantomies, traditionally a British favorite at Christmas time, head the entertainment list as usual. Something that would have shocked Britons in Victoria's day—pantomime on ice—is an added attraction. Musicals, plays and circuses are also offered in all leading cities, with London alone affording a choice of about 35 different stage attractions.

CHOICE FOODS Britons who for years have got along without some luxuries in the food line now can indulge their fancy with many exotic delicacies, such as caviar at 10s 6d an ounce, roast pheasant, chicken in aspic, and so on. But some items are still hard to get. Fowlpest has made turkeys scarce and prices—at 7s a pound compared with 6s last year—are expected to go up still further. Salmon is scarce because of dollar difficulties, and it is a proud grocer who can advertise the Canadian variety. Some home-grown vegetables are also limited in supply.

Imported fruit, raisins, dates and nuts are abundant, but prices have soared. Wines from South Africa, Cyprus and Australia are advertised and there seems to be more French and Italian wine, too. Whisky, gin, rum and other spirits have also increased in price in the last few months, a 26-cent cost ing 36s. Stores are decorated more lavishly than ever. Equipment for the junior space-age is prominent in the toy departments. At Harrods children stand enchanted before a monkey band that plays real music and a group of elephants making pastry. PRETTY DISPLAY A Coventry street store has drawn admirers with a nursery scene. As the cuckoo clock strikes midnight and the fairy wands wand, the toys come to life. But Christmas has its wicked fairy, too. Prices taxes, imposed in the emergency October budget, have increased the price of such practical presents as kitchenware, sheets, towels or blankets. Phonograph records were also affected by the budget, but the sales still are reported above normal, though long-playing records are less popular than the standard ones.

Christmas celebrations generally take the form common in North America, with Christmas trees, holly, mistletoe, family festivities and sumptuous meals. In Scotland, however, Christmas festivities tend to be less exuberant than at Hogmanay, the Scottish new year, when the real enthusiasm is uncurbed.

FIRST CLASS OTTAWA (CP) - Dr. E. S. Archibald, former director of the Experimental Farms service here, was presented with the imperial decoration of the Star of Ethiopia, first class. He spent the last year in Ethiopia as adviser and inspector-general to the agriculture department.

GREAT VIOLINIST Lady Halle, who died in England in 1911, was believed the first woman violinist to compare with men in fullness of tone.
