THE YEO MYSTERY.

NOT YET SOLVED—BRIEF SKETCH OF THE CASE—MOVEMENTS OF THE MISSING MAN—A REWARD OFFERED.

YESTERDAY afternoon Mr. James Yeo, of Union Road, called at THE EXAMINER office and asked to have the following advertisement inserted:—

$500 REWARD. Charles H. Yeo was last seen alive in Charlottetown on the 3rd of January, 1887. He then disappeared, and it is supposed that he has been murdered. The undersigned therefore offers the above reward to any person who will give such information as will lead to the discovery of the body, and the apprehension and conviction of the murderer.

JAMES YEO. Union Road, Oct. 27, 1887.

Since Mr. Yeo disappeared early in January last, his parents and friends have been unceasing in their efforts to ascertain his whereabouts. These efforts have not been successful, and they have arrived at the conclusion that he has been murdered and his body hidden in some out of the way place. If the latter is the case the murderer or murderers have done their work well. Not a clue has, so far as known, been left behind which can bring the terrible crime home to the guilty party.

Yeo was known to have considerable money in his possession while here. The exact sum, or just how he carried it, is however, not definitely known. Some say he had all his money in wallets on his person, and others state that he carried it in a belt round his waist. Whether either or both of these stories are correct it is at present difficult to say. His murderers could probably throw a little light on the mystery.

The missing man is a son of Mr. James Yeo, a respected resident of Union Road, and is about thirty-six years of age. He was a shoemaker by trade, having served his apprenticeship with Mr. William Passmore of this city, in whose employ he was for about eight years. Some eight or nine years ago he left for Winnipeg. While there he worked chiefly at the baking business, and being a steady and industrious young man, saved considerable money. He corresponded with his parents and relatives regularly, and always gave good accounts of himself and his prospects.

In September of last year he returned to the Island for the purpose of spending a few weeks with his parents and relatives and seeing his old friends and acquaintances. While here he spent his time visiting between his father's residence at Union Road, and his relatives' friends at New Glasgow, Bradalbane Station, Lot 10, and this city.

While on his way to the city on the 27th September last he dropped in at the residence of Mr. S. T. Sellick, at Bradalbane. Mr. Sellick having some important business to transact in the city, and being somewhat pressed for time, asked Yeo to attend to the matter for him as soon he came to town. Yeo said he would, and on his coming to town attended to Mr. Sellick's business as promised. This was the last Mr. Sellick saw of him.

Yeo, it is said, remained in the city from that time until the 3rd of January, the date of his disappearance.

He was a tall man, about six feet in height and well built. His hair and moustache were light in color. When last seen he wore a long blue overcoat, a light checked undercoat and vest, and dark pants. When Yeo disappeared it was at first thought that he had returned to Winnipeg; but had overlooked letting his relatives know of his movements. The authorities at the Capes and at other sections of the Island were communicated with, but nothing could be learned of the missing man. His friends in Winnipeg were also written to, only to learn that he had not returned there. Other places in the Dominion and the United States were applied to for information on the subject, but without success. This is how the case stands at present.

Some people assert that Yeo was a little weak-minded, and may have committed suicide. His relatives and friends say that he was all right, and not the kind of man to do away with himself.

Yeo's friends in this city and Winnipeg report that he was a model young man in every respect, and think that if alive he is being kept out of the way for some reason or another. Previous to his leaving the Island he also bore a good character.

We trust that there will be a speedy solution of the mystery; that if alive, Yeo will soon be restored to his friends, and that if dead the "murder will out," and the guilty parties will be made to feel that justice, though slow, is sure.

A RATHER good joke was many years ago over twenty at least—perpetrated by a well-known punster, who still remains here in apparently good health. At the time alluded to the Y. M. C. A. rooms were situate in the premises now occupied as the Crown Confectionery, Grafton Street. On the evening in question a debate upon the subject, "Was the execution of Charles the First justifiable?" took place. After a remarkably vigorous effort to introduce the question, the opener finished with the following proposition: "And Charles the First came forward and laid his royal head on the executioner's block, and it rolled beneath the blow of the executioner's axe, and Charles the First was no longer."

The audience was riveted with the impassioned eloquence of the speaker, but were quickly turned from grave to gay when our friend arose and thus proceeded: "Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen.—The opener of this debate may have taken us for fools or he may have not, but I do think he is imposing a little too much when he informs us that at the time the head of Charles was severed from his body, he (the King) was no longer. We admit it and have always been under the impression that he was then ten or twelve inches shorter!" The audience enjoyed the joke, but the opener showed considerable chagrin and wished to have his tormentor ejected. He was, however, allowed to remain. The foregoing circumstance is yet remembered by a number in our city.

In a certain district in Nova Scotia the name of John Crowe is so numerous that one individual indulges in the pleasure of having letters addressed to him as "John Crowe the Sixteenth." On this Island, especially the eastern end, the families of MacDonalds are so many, together with others holding the prefix Mac attached to some other name, that it is a usual thing for a stranger in the road, to salute and meeting a resident on the road, to salute him as Mac, and find that in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred he is correct.

THE Journal reports that Mr. Rob Angus, of Charlottetown, was there on Monday, enquiring as to the feasibility of putting in an electric light plant in Summerside.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The steamer Trinidad, from the West Indies, arrived at her pier, No. 47, North River, last night. Among her passengers were Capt. J. J. Hennessey, Mate George W. Hennessey, Cook David Webster and Seaman Robert Daniels, the crew of the bark Journal, of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, which was burned at sea Sept. 23, fifteen miles northwest of St. Croix. The Journal was 350 tons burden. She left Trinidad Sept. 18 with a cargo of pitch consigned to firms in Philadelphia. Late in the afternoon of that day flames were discovered in the fore-castle. Owing to the inflammable character of the cargo the fire spread rapidly and the crew were compelled to take to the boats. The men reached St. Croix at noon the next day. They were able only to save their personal effects. The captain and crew will leave for their homes in Nova Scotia to-day. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Purser Smith of the Trinidad also reports the loss of the brigantine Zerelle, likewise of Charlottetown. This vessel left the St. Mary's river, Florida, for Demerara, Aug. 12, was dismasted Sept. 1 and abandoned Sept. 11. The crew were picked up four days later by the schooner Curtis Ackerly, and landed at Trinidad, Sept. 16.
