TO ERADICATE SMUT.

BURN ALL AFFECTED STALKS AND DESTROY ALL SPORE BALLS.

Prevention of Potato Rot—Buckwheat Should be Grown in Rotation—The Winter Use of the Fodder Cutter.

It is well to call attention to some of the efforts that have been in the corn-growing States to eradicate smut. Nebraska having made some valuable experiments at her agricultural station, the results of which are important to all farmers who grow corn. The smut of corn has long been known, being distributed over the whole of the United States, and in Europe and Asia, the injury to the corn often being as much as 40 per cent. It is also affirmed by leading scientists that the rust of wheat and the smut of corn are identical in many respects, and that where the wheat crop is affected the corn crop will also be liable, but opinions are not unanimous on that claim.

Disseminated by spores, the black powder of smut, which is so familiar to every farmer who has grown corn, consists of spores, the ball of smut being really a ball of seeds, as the spores reproduce smut as the seeds reproduce ordinary plants, and these spores may grow in the manure or liquids of the barnyard for an indefinite period. The smut enters the corn when it is very young, penetrating the soft tissues of the lower joint and the root of the small plant, and does not pass from plant to plant in the cornfield, as has long been supposed. It is plain, then, that in order to prevent smut the spores must be destroyed the year previous to growing a crop of corn. Smut is not considered an active poison when eaten by cattle, but opinions differ as to its harmfulness, some claiming that it is liable to induce abortion among cows. If animals eat the smut, however, they will distribute the spores in their droppings, which will remain in the fields if the cattle are loose, or to be added to the manure in the heap at the barnyard.

The ground must be protected against receiving spores. Outward applications to the corn plants will not avail, as the fungus is inside of the plants, where no substance can reach it, hence smut can only be prevented by destroying all affected stalks upon the first indication of the fungus. Rotation of crops, instead of growing grain on the same plot every season, will prevent the smut from increasing, but the surest method is to consign to the flames every stalk that is not entirely free from smut, and the smut balls must never be allowed to open in the fields. The corn seed must be perfectly free from contamination with the spores, and even as late in the season as this month it will pay to cull out the affected stalks and burn them, and by following up the work next spring, carefully observing for the first appearance of smut, it may be stamped out in two or three seasons.

SHORT TALKS WITH FARMERS.

Copper Preparations and Potato Rot—Buckwheat.

After experimenting through three seasons to test the value of copper preparations for the prevention of potato rot, by Professor Liebscher, in Germany, he found that by spraying the vines with a 1½ per cent. solution of Bordeaux mixture, using 30 gallons per acre, and following with a 2 per cent. solution four weeks later, at the proportion of 50 gallons per acre, there was some disease on the early crops, but the disease did not appear on the late crops, even when they were not sprayed. He considered his first spraying as being too late and the second spraying as useless.

It is claimed for a crop of buckwheat that it can be grown on the same land every year without exhausting the soil. The claim is correct so far as growing buckwheat to be turned under is concerned, but any crop that matures seed exhausts the soil to a certain extent, and for that reason buckwheat should be grown in rotation with other crops. Onions are also grown on the same location every year, but success is assured with them only when the land is heavily manured every year.

The fodder cutter is one of the most useful and important implements on the farm. It is not used as much as it should be, for it demands hard work if there is no power to be obtained, but it will enable the farmer to use a large amount of coarse food that is usually wasted. The fodder cutter should be kept in constant use during the winter.

It is believed by some farmers that no harm will be done wheat if the cows graze upon it for a short time after the wheat is well on in growth, but as there is always a liability of damage when the ground is somewhat soft it should be avoided. The young plants are very watery, and may cause looseness of the bowls which may also affect the flow of milk. Experiments that have been made in that direction show that the wheat is in no manner benefited by allowing cattle to graze upon it.

Turkeys should have an open shed under which to roost. If they are compelled to resort to the tree limbs the result will be a loss from disease.

Canada ashes vary in value to a greater extent than any other fertilizer. Numerous analyses show that some ashes are much richer in potash than others and their weight and fertilizing value depend upon many contingencies. It weighed during very damp weather the moisture absorbed from the atmosphere will add to the weight. The cheaper way to purchase potash is to buy the potash salts.

Gutters are not considered necessary on some farm buildings, but they will be found useful, as the water from the roof may then be more easily conducted away from the barnyard or manure heap.

Fruit for the family during the winter can be had by every farmer, both by canning and evaporating that which is not marketed. The evaporation of fruit, which was a slow and tedious process, when such work was done by exposure to the sun, is now made easy by evaporators which can be used on the stove. The better plan, however, is to can the fruit if possible. Even apples will be found valuable if cooked and canned.

Turnips should not be neglected because they have nearly reached their limit of growth, but the weeds should be kept down, which will greatly facilitate the harvesting of the crop when such work is done.

The Doctor Passed Him.

GRAVENHURST, Sept. 18—About a year the newspapers contained of the curious case of Sam Murray, a railroad brakeman, of this place. He was paralyzed, as a consequence of an injury received while coupling cars, and for two years was unable to work. Several doctors, among them some Toronto specials, pronounced him incurable and his case hopeless. The Grand Trunk Railway Company paid him his full disability claim, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was about to pay a similar claim, when Murray astonished everybody by a return to health. It was proven at the time, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that Murray's recovery was due to Dodd's kidney pills. A few days ago Murray applied to a life insurance company to take out a policy on his life. Two physicians have just examined him, pronounced him a desirable risk, and recommended the company to issue a policy. That's the kind of work Dodd's kidney pills do.

FIGHTING IN MOROCCO.

Desperate Struggle Between a Small Spanish Garrison and the Moors.

Further trouble has broken out between the Moors and the Spanish garrison at Melilla, a town on the northern coast of Morocco. The Spanish authorities recently decided to add to the strength of the fortifications at Melilla, the state of the country and the acts of the natives, in their opinion, warranting such a course. The work of constructing additional fortifications was begun and pushed forward as rapidly as possible. This incensed the Moors, and on Friday morning a force of more than 6,000 natives made an attack upon the Spanish garrison, which numbered, all told, not more than 400 souls. The Spanish troops fought throughout the day without relief being sent to them. They had no food, but this was a matter of small consequence to them, as they knew that death or slavery awaited them should they fall into the hands of their enemies. The Moors were constantly gaining fresh accessions to their ranks, and the outlook was becoming serious for the Spaniards, when the white residents of the town, without regard to nationality, offered to assist them. A civilian corps was at once organized, and took part in the defence. They were greatly outnumbered by the Moors, however, and were finally compelled to retire into the fortress, located on the outskirts of the town, where they are still besieged. During the battle eighteen of the Spaniards were killed and thirty-five wounded including three officers whose injuries are serious. The Spanish artillery did great execution. The gunners at one time directed their fire upon a mosque, and almost completely destroyed it. Other buildings in the range of their fire were also destroyed. Northern Morocco has been greatly excited by the news of the attack upon the Spaniards, and the fanaticism of the inhabitants is being aroused by the Mohammedan demands for revenge upon the "infidels" for destroying the mosque. The situation is critical, and further attacks upon the garrison and civilians are expected.

The attack of the Moors on the Spanish garrison at Mellila, Morocco, has caused intense excitement at Madrid. The government has despatched gunboats to bombard the Riffians' strongholds and a steamer with artillery to the aid of the Mellila garrison.

It is learned that the bodies of the Spaniards killed in the battle were awfully mutilated by the fanatic Moslems, and cable reports say that Mellila is surrounded by 12,000 fanatical Moors determined to have revenge upon the Spaniards for destroying a mosque.

STAYNER, Oct. 2.—Everyone in this section knows Valentine Fisher, of Collingwood, and nearly everyone knows that, for years, he was deformed and crippled by sciatica, and endured unspeakable suffering. The account of his complete restoration to health by means of Dodd's kidney pills, recently published in the Collingwood Bulletin, were read here with intense interest, because of sympathy for Mr. Fisher, and because of the marvellous cure of a man whom everyone considered doomed to certain death, and at an early day. As a result of the publication of Mr. Fisher's story, many in this vicinity have used Dodd's kidney pills, and always with the best results. People are awakening to the fact that diseased kidneys, in many cases, are the cause of sufferings which are ascribed to dropsy, rheumatism, sciatica and other diseases.

FRENCH CANADIAN SETTLERS.—A Montreal despatch says that during September, according to the customs returns, 102 French Canadian families representing about six thousand persons were entered at St. Hyacinthe custom house, all intending to settle permanently in that portion of Canada. It is estimated that fully forty thousand French-Canadians have returned to that province from the States since first May last.

Drop a postal card to Mr. George Rose, of Peterborough, and ask him what Menbray's Kidney and Liver Cure did for him in relieving him of the intense pain caused by the passage of stone or calculi from the bladder. Hypodermic injections had to be resorted to in order to relive the agonizing pains at times, but the use of Menbray's Kidney and Liver Cure enabled the kidneys to wash out the sand and debris from the system, and neutralized the acid formations. .....
