The Tree and the Axe.

An old Upas Tree, whose baleful influence had cursed the country for many years, one morning observed a fine, sharp-looking Axe resting on the ground at its feet. "What are you doing there?" enquired the Tree. "Nothing just at present," replied the Axe, in a bantering tone. "I see you are labeled 'public sentiment,'" resumed the Tree. "Yes, that's my name," said the Axe. "I was thinking of cutting you down," it added, with fine candor. "Oh, you were, hey?" replied the Tree, shaking with laughter. "Why, certainly, cut away. I've no objection. I've read a good many resolutions of yours to the same effect, passed year after year at church conventions, alliance meetings, and so forth. By all means go on with your cutting!" Presently a man was seen approaching in the distance. The tree, thinking it recognized in him an old party leader, waved its branches playfully toward him and said, "Come on, my old and esteemed friend; I want you to have your usual little foolery with this confiding Axe." But as the approaching figure drew nearer, the Tree turned pale and trembled like an aspen. "Heaven help me, 'tis a stranger," it exclaimed. "I'm afraid," said the Axe, "your prayer goes in the wrong direction. This is the party I've been waiting for. And now you will show me what an Axe can do in the hands of a party that means business."

A SUCCESSFUL MAN'S ADVICE.—Geo. W. Childs, the successful and wealthy publisher of the Philadelphia Ledger, is one of the most honored business men in America. Recently he has given this advice to young people: "Would you climb the ladder? It has just three rungs—Industry, Temperance, Frugality. Besides these, I have had during my business career the following mottoes: 'Be true' 'Be kind' 'Keep out of debt' 'Do the best and leave the rest' 'What can't be cured must be endured' 'The perfect man is one who has a clear commission, an honest purpose, a bright mind and a healthy body.' I can't bring too great stress on the matter of abstemiousness. Drinking beer, wine or spirits is a useless and dangerous habit. It does no good, and if it is persisted in it is almost sure to lead to destruction and death. You should have courage enough to say no, if you are asked to drink. There is no safety in moderate drinking. The man who touches alcoholic drink at all is in danger. I cannot sum up my advice to young people better than to say the greatest pleasure in life comes from doing good to others. Do good constantly, patiently and wisely, and you will never have cause to say that life was not worth living."

Gen. Herbert's Observations.

COMPLAINS OF THE MILITIA'S POOR OFFICE, AND ISSUES ORDERS RESPECTING IMPOSITION.

The following pointed observations by Major General Herbert, appear in the last Militia General Orders:—

Commanding officers of permanent corps are held responsible that all non-commissioned officers and men under their command are at all times in possession of a complete kit, and that all articles composing it are of the regulation pattern.

The major-general has observed in the course of his inspection a very general neglect of efficient and practical kit inspection. The object of such inspection is to ascertain that the men are in possession of the articles which it is considered necessary for them to have for the sake of cleanliness and health, and to see that these articles are constantly maintained in such a state as to admit of the men taking the field at any time without the necessity for fresh issues.

He has further observed with regret an absence of care in watching over the interests of the men. Articles of inferior quality are provided for the men by contractors, to whom the men are then called upon to pay extra in order to obtain a serviceable article. Such transactions are simply a fraud upon the soldier, from which it is the duty of every officer to protect his men.

Commanding officers will bring to the notice of the major-general all cases in which the price charged to soldiers for articles of clothing or necessaries appears to be excessive. To the frantic appeals of such articles, and the cases where articles, received from contractors, or from militia stores fail to last the prescribed time.

Cremated in the Caboose.

A HORRIBLE SCENE ON THE GREAT NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

A frightful accident occurred on the Great Northwestern railway on Monday morning at Nelson station, five miles east of Alexandria, Minn., in which eight men were killed and five were seriously injured. There had been a collision Friday morning at Nelson, and a number of cars wrecked. The wreck train had been there two days clearing up and making up preparatory to pulling out for the east.

About 1 o'clock on the morning of the disaster the wreck train caboose was left standing on the track with a number of cars. An eastbound freight struck the wreck train and threw the caboose on the top of the next car, setting both on fire. There were 14 men in the caboose. One jumped off, five were hurt, three were burned beyond recognition and four were killed. One was burned up, not a sign of his remains being found. The men killed were asleep in the caboose when the engine struck it. The injured were promptly removed to Alexandria, where medical aid was given them. The men that were burned presented a horrible sight, being literally charred.

A Wesleyan Chapel—New Style

We have heard much lately of the "Forward Movement" in Wesleyanism. Would the old Methodists have considered the following account of a Wesleyan chapel and its services, progress or the reverse? It is contributed to a recent number of the Yorkshire Post by a correspondent:—

It is probable that nowhere throughout the country can a more complete and elaborate presentation of the higher type of Wesleyan service be found than that which, Sunday by Sunday, embodies the external worship of those who attend the chapel of St. John's, Manningham. To begin with, the church building lends itself readily to all that is reverent, worshipful, devout. Pure Gothic in style, with a spire of graceful proportions, a stranger would at once pronounce it to be an Anglican church, while, passing through the porch in the interior, many details there would lead him to the same conclusion. The chancel and chancel window, pictorially setting forth the Holy Supper and the Ascension, the organ chamber and choir stalls, the brazen eagle lectern, and the carved font, all suggest a sanctuary other than that which is supposed to accord with the prejudices of the Nonconformist. Neither would a more exacting scrutiny internally do much to shake his previous conclusion, though here and there some marked deviations from the ordinary arrangements of Anglican churches are forcibly apparent, giving the observer sometimes almost a rude shock. A solid gallery, however elegant or graceful, surrounding the Church on three sides, is no improvement; while a particularly beautiful carved stone pulpit placed in the very centre of the chancel becomes thereby rather an eyesore than a delight. Still, the harmonious blending of colors, the pearly polished pine pitch, the lancet windows, the genial air of ecclesiastical elegance and fitness, go to make up just that fitness of things which is all too rare in dissenting places of worship. The word "dissenting" should perhaps not be used, for the Wesleyans strenuously repudiate that word as applied to themselves. Dissenters, properly so called, they utterly renounce with all their works, and regard themselves rather as lawfully disobedient children of the Church of England. Some three minutes before the commencement of service, the tones of the organ were heard. One's amazement was excited, however, when a side door opening, a supple choir filed in, to the number of some thirty men and boys, followed by the minister in sober black, without either surplice or gown to indicate his sacred office. The service throughout was strictly liturgical and choral, the Order of Morning Prayer being used in full, followed by the sermon with two or three of the Wesleyan hymns interspersed, and closed with the benediction. It is difficult to speak too highly of the choral work from first to last. It was quite evident that not only was the organist a master of his instrument, playing with power and reverent spirit, but that he has an accomplished choir, well under control, excellent in quality of voice and beautifully balanced. Throughout, in psalms and responses, the choristers admirably led the congregation, and they rendered Stainer's beautiful anthem, "What are these arrayed in white robes?" with great delicacy and effect. It might perhaps have been improved had the passage, "And he shall wipe away all tears from their eyes," been taken as a solo, but it can scarcely be said to have been marred by the six fresh young voices which rendered it so well. The only blemish in this part of the service lay in the fact that both preacher and congregation sat and listened to the anthem instead of standing, and thereby joining, though silently, in the worship of praise.—The Scottish Guardian.

Bridegroom Wasn't Nervous.

ALTHOUGH THE BRIDE HAD RECOVERED THE WEDDING DIDN'T GO ON.

Geo. Bailey, a well-to-do farmer living near Norwich, Pa., had been keeping company with Esther Bailey, his second cousin, for seven years. They finally decided to marry, and the ceremony was to have been performed at the home of the bride's parents a week ago last Wednesday. A large number of guests were present, but the prospective bride suddenly disappeared. She was found locked in her room. To the frantic appeals of her parents to come out she had but one reply:—"I'm too nervous! I'm too nervous! I'll have to be put off!"

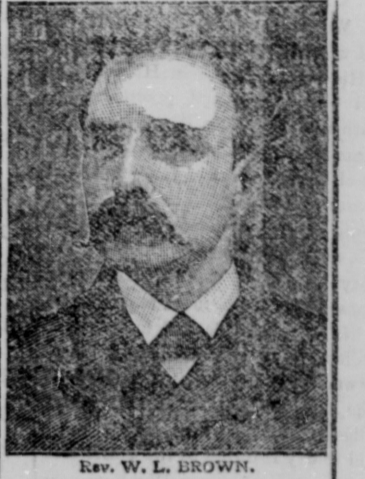

Nothing would avail with her, and the ceremony had to be postponed. The agitated bride from her locked room said she would be married the following Monday, and the groom consented to the reprieve. Monday came, and the bride was ready at the appointed hour. But the bridegroom did not come. In his place came a message. It said:—"I'm not nervous. On the contrary, I've got nerve enough to postpone this wedding indefinitely!"

The wedding adjourned sine die.

Neatness in Girls.

Neatness is a good thing for a girl, and if she does not learn it when she is young, she never will. It takes a great deal more neatness to make a girl look well than it does to make a boy look passable. Not because a boy, to start with, is better looking than a girl, but his clothes are of a different sort, not so many colors in them, and people don't expect a boy to look so pretty as a girl. A girl that is not neatly dressed is called a sloven, and no one likes to look at her. Her face may be pretty, and her eyes bright, but if there is a spot on her cheek, and her fingers' ends are black with ink, and her apron is dirty, and her skirt is torn, she can't be liked.

It is the testimony of all men who have tried it that Myrtle Navy tobacco has the most delicious flavor of any tobacco in the market, and that it leaves none of the unpleasant affects in the mouth that most tobacco do. The reason for this is the high and pure quality of the leaf, which is the finest known in Virginia, and the absence of all deleterious matter in the manufacture.

Heart Trouble, Dyspepsia, DIZZINESS, AND Muscular Rheumatism CURED!

REV. W. L. BROWN, FOR YEARS A MEMBER OF THE M. E. CHURCH, BUT FOR THE LAST TEN YEARS AN EVANGELIST IN THE CHURCH OF GOD. HE IS WELL KNOWN BY THOUSANDS WHO WILL VOUGH FOR THE TRUTH OF THE FOLLOWING:

GENTS—I write to inform you that the TWO COPIES OF SKODA'S DISCOVERY AND LITTLE TABLETS have done BETTER wonders for me. I had been suffering from Chronic Diarrhea in the Army, and since 1881 I have been a constant sufferer. In addition to this, I was troubled as follows: 1st, a lame back and kidney trouble, 2d, Dyspepsia, 3d, Flatulency and an all-gone feeling, 4th, Distress at night, 5th, Muscular Rheumatism, 6th, Headache and Dizziness; 7th, Nervousness, 8th, Sleeplessness. I had to get up in the night several times, and I had to get up in the night several times. I feel that I am completely cured of all my bodily diseases except the Diarrhea, which is not cured. I have been treated by very eminent Physicians, but would be compelled to resort to my labor and return to my home in a few days. In fact I have had a great deal of sickness in the last 26 years, and several times have been given up to die.

The Telephone Company

—OF—
P. E. ISLAND.

PARTIES using the Telephone would find it desirable to talk and be heard on their own place of business.

1st. Speak with the mouth about four inches from the transmitter.
2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud, and distinctly.
3rd. Place the telephone so as to cover the ear, just as if you wished to shut out all other sounds. Do not press too hard on the ear.
4th. It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back two or three feet from the transmitter, if you speak loud enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and is a useless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within range of your voice.
