Cigarette Sales Slump, Cigars Jump Following Health Report

By JOHN BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although only 10 months have passed since release of the U.S. surgeon - general's report condemning cigarettes as a health hazard and shortener of life, the best indications are that cigarette sales have yet to recover totally from its impact.

Firm statistics are difficult to come by, but perhaps 16,000,000,000 cigarettes went unsmoked in the U.S. between January and June of this year.

Before the report, cigarette smoking was burning its way to new heights of popularity. In the last six months of 1863, it was running 6,500,000,000 cigarettes ahead of the same six months of 1962.

But the 1964 story is different. Even with its erratic recovery, cigarette production may end the year down three per cent over-all—its longtime advance cut and, say federal experts, its future uncertain.

CIGARILLO POPULAR

A real gainer in the wake of the report has been the small cigar—the cigarillo—and cigars in general. They may finish the year with sales up 30 per cent over 1963.

Meanwhile, there have been these developments:

—The U.S. public health service embarked on a long-range education program to discourage smoking.

—The federal trade commission set deadlines for cigarette firms to begin labelling cigarette packages and advertisements with danger signs.

—The tobacco industry promised a court fight against the trade commission ruling.

—The industry vowed to set up its own advertising police bureau in New York and fine violators, but this is still in the organizational phase.

—Congress adjourned without acting on a barrage of bills giving cigarette - controlling powers to federal agencies, and a counter-barrage which would deny agencies those powers.

More than nine months have passed since the surgeon-general promised "no foot-dragging" in the follow-up to the committee's prime finding:

"Cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the United States to warrant appropriate remedial action."

The most concrete action has come from the unilateral efforts of those who have quit smoking, switched to cigars or pipes, or at least tried.

SPREAD DISEASE

Dr. Eugene Guthrie, staff director for the surgeon-general's committee, sees cigarette smoking as a transmissible disease—with 60,000,000 cigarette smokers as the carriers — and one-third of high school students taking up the habit. There can be no doubt, Guthrie said, of human susceptibility.

There is, he said, an incubation period in that it takes from 1½ to two years for average youngsters to become habitual smokers. But by 18 or 19, half of them are smoking regularly.

But even if every teen-ager in the U.S. quit today, Guthrie said, it will be years before significant changes appear in the death rates. The person who most needs to quit—who has the highest risk of death, is the breadwinner of age 40 to 50.

"We do not buy the pessimistic view that this group cannot be helped," said Guthrie. "There are 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 ex-smokers in the population today. What they have have done, others can accomplish."

STOPPED SMOKING

Even before the committee's work was done, Surgeon-General Luther Terry himself one of some 70,000,000 American smokers, had switched to a pipe because of a slight cough.

There was a frantic, almost feverish air after the committee issued its report, the sum of 14 months of deliberating the validity of medical and statistical evidence.

The verdict, although expected, was electric.

The day of the report, evangelist Billy Graham suggested that smoking clergymen quit the habit, as an example. The Roman Catholic Review of the Baltimore archdiocese urged in an editorial that all Roman Catholic priests refrain from smoking.

Cigarette vending machines were banned in hospitals from Massachusetts to Pennsylvania to Minnesota.

The defence department banned free cigarettes in all military hospitals from Washington to San Francisco. The veterans administration did likewise in its 168 hospitals and 18 homes for infirm and aged veterans.

There were arrests for cigarette sales to minors in Chicago. There were smoking bans at high schools and colleges.

SALES DROPPED

Cigarette sales plunged, perhaps as much as 30 per cent.

Cigars and pipes, found relatively innocent in the report, were a sudden fashion.

In 1963, Americans consumed 510,000,000,000 cigarettes. In February, 1964, tax receipts indicated the annual rate had dropped to 385,000,000,000. It began to recover slowly as summer came on.

The tobacco industry has approached the matter cautiously. First, it acted to revise its advertising practices, indicating it would avoid appealing to youngsters.

Its advertising review board, under former New Jersey governor Robert Meyner, was given authority to fine offenders up to $100,000.

Secondly, at the outset, the industry seemed to avoid comment on the surgeon-general's committee or its report. At federal trade commission hearings, it challenged only the commission's legal powers to govern cigarette labelling.

PRO AND CON

Before the report, it had always seemed to be a partisan battle. Enemies of cigarette smoking would say, as did famed lung surgeon Dr. Alton Ochsner, that each cigarette smoked shortens life by 14.4 minutes.

Proponents of cigarette smoking would cite studies on laboratory animals that cigarette smoke was not cancer-causing. A greater danger, they said, was air pollution.

It was the job of the surgeon-general's panel to weigh the evidence and offer guidance. But its report was stronger than some observers had expected.

As much as he is against smoking, Dr. Charles S. Cameron, president of Philadelphia's Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, cited recently the statistic that 83 per cent of males between the ages of 25 and 31 smoke cigarettes regularly.

"My own view," he said, "is that there are a great many people—and they range from bums to bishops—who have a need for something which smoking affords, and the insidious thing about cigarettes is that they are so very convenient."

FOUR TOGETHER

The western provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are to share a pavilion at the 1967 World Exposition in Montreal.

BEDEQUE

Mrs. Walter Leard, is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Williams and family, Berrie, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Corbett, Halifax, were weekend guests of Mrs. Corbett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Craig, Middleton.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, has as recent guests, Mrs. Henderson's sister, Mrs. George Jones and Mr. Jones, Regina, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stavert, Charlottetown were in Bedeque recently calling on Mr. William M. Stavert, and Mr. Albert Weeks.

Mrs. William Barrett, Lower Bedeque has been confined to her home suffering from an attack of flu.

Mr. George Henderson is a patient in the Prince County treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber Weeks, Hospital Annex, undergoing Fredericton, their son, Roy and wife and their three children, Winsloe, were visitors here on Sunday last calling on relatives.

Mrs. Elliott Bell, has been confined to her home due to illness.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead— four of diamonds.

A lot of good plays made by declarer are wasted when it turns out that certain precautions he has taken prove unnecessary because a condition he feared did not exist. However, such precautions are frequently essential, as declarer found out to his sorrow in this hand.

South was in four hearts and West led a diamond. East cashed two diamonds and led a third one, declarer ruffing with the nine. South then played a heart to the king, losing to the ace. East led still another diamond.

At this point South had to go down because West's trump holding consisted of 8-6-5, while South had the Q-J-10-7. Whether South ruffed the diamond high or low, West was bound to make his eight to defeat the contract one trick.

Declarer could have made the hand had he played more carefully. After ruffing the diamond with the nine, he should have played a spade to the ace and returned a low heart from dummy.

In the actual hand East would have gone up with the ace and returned a diamond. This would not have helped the defense, because South would ruff high, play a heart to the king, return to his hand with a spade or a club, and draw West's trumps to easily make the rest of the tricks.

The point of the hand is that South should play this way even though he does not see the opponents' cards. He should make a realistic allowance for the possibility that the hearts are divided 4-1 instead of 3-2.

It costs declarer nothing to cover both possibilities by making sure that the first trump lead comes from dummy. It is true that if South plays this way and it turns out that the hearts are divided 3-2, he will have wasted a safety measure. But he will be amply repaid if, as in the present case, it develops that the hearts are divided 4-1.
