Commons Discusses Lobsters And Oysters

OTTAWA (CP)—There are East Coast lobsters and West Coast oysters and it appears that never the twain shall switch.

The Commons fisheries committee heard Tuesday about frustrations from both coasts. The East would like to grow some oysters; the West would like to grow some lobsters.

Felton Legere (PC—Sheburne-Yarmouth-Clare) asked Fisheries Research Board experts why oysters don't thrive in Nova Scotia waters. Nova Scotian fishermen had planted oysters "and then never even found the shells."

Harry McQuillan (PC—Comox-Alberni) wondered why lobsters haven't been successfully introduced on the Pacific Coast.

INHIBITED BY COLD To Mr. Legere's question, Dr. J. L. Kask, Fisheries Research Board chairman, says oysters are "warm water bi-valves" which will sometimes grow but won't reproduce in cold water.

Dr. Kask intimated he wasn't surprised that the oysters introduced to the Atlantic Coast waters around Nova Scotia didn't spawn or that the shells were lost. As for lobsters for the Pacific, he said a private industry's experimental introduction of lobster in the Prince Rupert area had had very little chance of success from the beginning.

The group found that the lobsters survived for a certain time, but during part of the lobsters' complex life cycle the larvae were swept out to sea.

LOBSTERS LIKE SALT Lobsters also don't take kindly to a change from salt water to fresh water, Dr. Kask explained in a reply to Mr. Legere who wanted to know why lobsters in fresh water "drink so much they kill themselves."

Dr. Kask said it wasn't so much a case of "drinking" as osmosis—a process where the lobster absorbs fresh water until an equilibrium is reached.

But lobsters could be kept in fresh water if oxygen were continuously added.

Move To Halt Shipping Tieup

By JOHN LeBLANC Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation for halting the West Coast CPR steamship tieup will be brought before the federal cabinet, it was learned late Tuesday.

Informants said it will involve passage of a back-to-work measure by Parliament.

But the actual terms of the legislation were not disclosed. A special cabinet session called for 10:30 a.m. ADT today will be to meet quick approval.

"The meeting won't be long," one minister said.

Prospects were that it would be completed in time for the customary Wednesday morning caucus of government members to be informed of the legislation's contents.

Possibly, normal Commons business could be sidetracked at the afternoon House sitting to get the legislative preliminaries under way.

Col. Abdel Salam Aref, deputy premier of the new Iraqi regime, announced at a huge rally that Iraq and the U.A.R. had concluded a mutual defence pact "to stand as one nation against aggression."

The rally also was addressed by Nasser, who promised Iraq "all the arms she may require for the defence of Iraq, the U.A.R. and Arab nationalism."

In Cairo Sunday, a spokesman for the Arab League announced the nine-nation organization for promoting Arab unity had officially recognized the Iraqi republic.

Latchmore Is Dir. Of Subsidies OTTAWA, (CP) — Captain Francis B. Latchmore, 60, a member of the fast-dwindling school of seafarers with master's certificates in sail, Monday was named director of the subsidies branch of the Canadian Maritime Commission.

Captain Latchmore, an inspector with the branch for 11 years, sailed around the world as mate aboard the four-masted barque Medway. He later was senior officer aboard other square-rig sailing ships.

He succeeds Captain J. A. Heenan who retired recently. Captain Heenan also holds a master's certificate in sail.

During the Second World War Captain Latchmore served as naval officer in charge at Quebec City with the rank of Commander.

WILL FOLLOW LEAD The announcement said a Security Council meeting of the kind suggested by Lloyd is clearly authorized in the UN charter, and added:

"If such a meeting were generally desired, the U.S. would join in following this orderly procedure."

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles had previously shown no enthusiasm for meeting Khrushchev at a hastily prepared summit session within or outside the United Nations.

Flight Cadet J. G. McCarthy, P.E.L., is a recent graduate of the RCAF Air Observer School at Winnipeg. He received his Air Radio Observer wings from Group Captain G. F. Jacobsen, DFC, CD, Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Winnipeg, at ceremonies held on July 18, at RCAF Station Winnipeg. At the same time, he received a commission, and was promoted to the rank of Flying Officer.

Prior to joining the RCAF in November 1955 as an Armament Technician, J. G. McCarthy attended St. Dunstons University in Charlottetown, and was employed by the Bank of Nova Scotia in Morell. He remustered to Aircrew in May 1957 after serving at Camp Borden and Comox, B.C., as an Armament Technician.

3 In Accord (Continued from Page One) face-to-face meeting in New York between Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev — if the Kremlin agrees to the West's conditions.

Khrushchev called Saturday for five nations—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and India—to meet Tuesday to draft what he called "concrete recommendations to end the military conflict in the Middle East."

He also proposed that United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld attend.

After some fast talking to iron out disagreements, the American, British and French governments, apparently agreed Tuesday to propose a counter-offer. It is that any Middle East talks be kept within the 11-nation Security Council.

At Britain's insistence, Eisenhower agreed to an upgrading of the Security Council session to include chiefs of government. Normally it would be attended by UN delegates or foreign secretaries.

CHANGE IN ATTITUDE The White House disclosed an overnight switch in Eisenhower's attitude an hour after Prime Minister Macmillan publicly agreed to such an emergency meeting.

Speaking for Macmillan, Foreign Secretary Lloyd said Britain was ready to attend any such session intended for discussion, not for voting.

"The prime minister has authorized me to say that if it were agreed there should be such a special meeting, he would certainly attend it himself," Lloyd said.

The White House kept silent on whether Eisenhower personally would attend. No immediate word came from Moscow indicating whether Khrushchev would accept the substitute and fly to New York to represent the Soviet Union. He had suggested summit talks in Geneva.

Press Secretary James Hagerty read a terse announcement that disclosed Eisenhower and Macmillan apparently had resolved a disagreement over how far to go in meeting Khrushchev's proposal.

The announcement said a Security Council meeting of the kind suggested by Lloyd is clearly authorized in the UN charter, and added:

"If such a meeting were generally desired, the U.S. would join in following this orderly procedure."

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles had previously shown no enthusiasm for meeting Khrushchev at a hastily prepared summit session within or outside the United Nations.

IKE IS CRITICIZED

British Papers Hail Macmillan

LONDON (AP) — The British press today hailed Prime Minister Macmillan's "meet you in New York" reply to the Soviet invitation to summit talks. And there was sporadic sniping at President Eisenhower's apparent "indecision."

Only the right-wing Daily Express and the Communist Daily Worker dissented. Both attacked Macmillan's proposal that the United Nations should be brought into the picture.

Says the usually anti-government Daily Herald:

"Full credit to Mr. Macmillan. He has recognized the strength and unanimity of British public opinion in favor of having a summit conference with Mr. Khrushchev on the Middle East crisis."

"Not only does he put forward a sensible plan for linking summit talks with the United Nations. He does another extremely important thing."

"He makes it clear at once that he does mean summit talks, or he would take part personally."

The Daily Mirror says: "Excellent. Congratulations to Mr. Macmillan."

"It is admirable that at this moment of the Middle East crisis he has a voided bitter party clashes over top level talks."

The News Chronicle: "Mr. Khrushchev now knows the West is willing to talk. It is his turn to show he meant what he said when the invitation was issued."

The Daily Sketch says: "President Eisenhower isn't exactly falling over himself to sit down with Nikita Khrushchev."

CAGEY NOTE "There's no mistaking the cagey note which now sounds from Washington. At first sight this looks like indecision — the first hint that America and ourselves do not, after all, agree in every detail about how we should respond to Khrushchev's call for a conference."

The Daily Express says: "In place of a few big powers on a business-like footing, Britain proposes a public meeting at the heart of all muddles and intrigues—UN."

"Britain's answer is made worse because it involves delay."

Kings County Boasts Yet Another Venerable Doctor

If a Doctor wishes to live and practise long, he should locate in Kings County. We have had two outstanding instances in support of this in the past few months, and a third might well be cited in the person of Dr. Lester Brehaut of Murray River, who is in his 83rd year and still going strong, and after a recent accident is taking on a new lease of life in preparation for carrying on for 10 or 15 years more.

Dr. Brehaut is a native of Murray Harbor, a son of the late George Brehaut and his wife, Margaret MacKinnon of Uigg who was a sister of the late Hon. D. A. MacKinnon who was at one time Lieutenant Governor of this Province. The Doctor was one of a family of nine—a family which has always been noted for their interest in getting education and several of whom have attained marked success in their chosen field.

A brother, Ernest, now deceased, was University Professor; Alder, a lawyer, still living and practising in Battleford, Sask., and Louis, also deceased, a Rhodes Scholar.

After graduating from Dalhousie University, he started practising in Murray River in 1903 and has served continuously there and in a very wide area throughout, ever since, where he is universally beloved and respected. A great deal of credit for his success belongs to his wife who before her marriage was Miss Annie Laurie MacRae of Point Prim., and who has been a true helpmate in every sense of the word.

CONGRATULATED In 1953 his 50th anniversary in practise was celebrated, when a very large number of friends gathered from many miles around to congratulate him and to offer many beautiful and valuable tokens of appreciation to him and Mrs. Brehaut.

In January of this year Dr. Brehaut suffered a fractured hip which kept him confined to his home for some months, but "you can't keep a good man down" and during that time he carried on quite an office practise. While not yet completely recovered, from the effects, he has for some time now been making professional calls through the country under the guidance of his chauffeur, Mr. Benjamin Senecaugh of Murray River.

Driver Blameless In Child's Death

ANTIGONISH, N. S. — (CP) — A coroner's jury has attached no blame to former lieutenant-governor Alistair Fraser of Nova Scotia in the highway death of a child killed while playing near Guysboro July 10.

Evidence at an inquest showed Beverly Fougere, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fougere of Chatham, N. S., was playing in the middle of a gravel road beyond a sharp turn.

An RCMP witness said at five miles an hour would have been within 18 feet of the child before she was seen. Speed of the car driven by Mr. Fraser was estimated at 10 miles an hour.

Rupture Of Relations With Nasser is Stated

AMMAN, Jordan (CP) — King Hussein's foreign ministry has announced the formal rupture of relations with President Nasser's United Arab Republic as the United States poured oil and dollars into Jordan in an attempt to strengthen his hard-pressed regime.

The foreign ministry announcement said the diplomatic break was made because the U.A.R. of Egypt and Syria had recognized the rebel government of Iraq.

Meanwhile, seven U.S. Air Force planes arrived from Beirut loaded with petroleum products. Jordan's supplies were cut off when Hussein's cousin, King Faisal, was toppled from power in the Baghdad revolution last week.

The American Embassy announced that the U.S. has released $7,500,000 to Jordan for budget support so that it can pay day-to-day expenses. The U.S. budget support so that it can pay day-to-day expenses. The U.S. has earmarked another $5,000,000 to finance the airlift of 1,000 tons of oil daily to replace supplies from Iraq.

Jordan has had only semi-official relations with the U.A.R. She closed her embassy in Cairo last year after accusing Egyptian and Syrian authorities of conspiracy against her government. The U.A.R. is represented in Amman by an embassy.

Announcement of the break came after King Hussein told a press conference Saturday that Jordan had asked the United States for troops and "expected them to arrive."

Hussein did not indicate what kind of troops he expected from the United States. He previously had asked for American assistance but informants in Washington indicated this was to be mostly material and economic.

Saturday night, about 200 of the 2,000 British paratroopers flown in to bolster Hussein's regime left Amman airfield and went unarmored into town on four-hour passes. There were no incidents.

A British military spokesman stressed that the paratrooper role remained the same: "To sit on the airfield until further orders."

INDUSTRY STEADY

OTTAWA (CP)—Level of Canadian industrial production in May was almost unchanged from April the bureau of statistics said Tuesday. The bureau's seasonally-adjusted index of industrial production declined fractionally to 278.7 from 279.2. The index of manufacturing production advanced 1.7 per cent to 274.2 from 269.3.
